TILSON TELLS COOLIDGE OF FLOOD CONTROL NEED

Republican House Leader to Urge Action on Colorado River Dam by Next Congress

BY ROBERT B. ARMSTRONG
"Times" Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27. (Exclusive)—Republican Floor Leader John Q. Tilson of Connecticut returned to Washington today deeply impressed with the immediate necessity of immediate Federal legislation to end for all time danger of flood damage in the Colorado River Valley and insuring the permanent safety of Imperial Valley. He had three conferences with President Coolidge during the day and among other things briefly outlined his impressions of his visit to California and the Colorado River Valley.

His first conference came immediately on his arrival in the city, when a White House car whisked him from the Union Station to the executive mansion on Pennsylvania avenue. After a short visit to his office at the Capitol he had lunch with President Coolidge and again returned to the White House at 5 o'clock for a further conference. It can be definitely stated that Floor Leader Tilson will insist that Federal flood control legislation and immediate appropriation for flood control of the Colorado River at a point approximately 100 miles above Needles be placed well at the head of the legislative program of the next Congress and on a full parity with relief legislation for the Mississippi Valley.

TIME TO ACT QUICKLY

Floor Leader Tilson told his association in government circles today that he was convinced that the time had come for the Federal government to act quickly to protect the Colorado Basin from flood. He favors the use of a natural reservoir site approximately 100 miles above Needles, where a huge body of water could be impounded by the erection of a 800-foot dam, that would protect the entire lower valley from flood. Engineers report that at this site such a dam would impound 26,000,000 acre feet of water. Nature has protected this site by a curving channel so that at the dam there would always be calm water and no large waves in heavy winds.

The site which he most favored at this point would solve the silt problem for 300 years and would permit a regulation of the river over the dam of an average stream of clear water that would, by gravity, clear the salt from the dam to the Gulf of Mexico and end the everlasting process of raising the levees in the Imperial Valley that now prevails. He was certain that the proposed low dam at this point would be an economical, permanent and complete insurance against flood damage in the lower Colorado River and said that Congress should authorize this work immediately, giving authority to the Secretary of the Interior to proceed at once on the project as soon as the act became law.

He told his friends that he is convinced that both in the Mississippi Valley and in the Colorado River the Federal government must improve those sections against a further flood damage and that the recent disaster in the Mississippi and Arkansas valleys has made the matter of prime importance in both houses of Congress at the earliest possible moment. He says that the duty of the Federal government in both cases is clear and that flood protection must be given in the Colorado Valley the same as it is to be voted for the Mississippi and Arkansas valleys in the next Congress and at the same time.

He says there is a consensus of opinion on the part of the engineers that the fight of the ever-increasing height of the levees in Imperial Valley caused by the tremendous deposit of silt cannot possibly last more than ten or fifteen years longer and that any year with heavy snows in the mountains or exceedingly heavy rainfall might again flood the Imperial Valley and that the United States cannot be responsible for permitting the old Salton Sea to be again filled with the stormy flood of the Colorado River. He thinks that the time has arrived for the Federal government to insure both the Mississippi and Arkansas Valleys as well as the entire lower Colorado Valley basin against any further flood and believes that the proposed dam will be a full discharge of the duties of the government in protecting that lower valley section.

Floor Leader Tilson thinks that this legislation should provide flood control alone at this time at the lowest possible cost for adequate flood control and for nothing else. The matter of power and water rights in the new created reservoir to be later allocated to those who desire and can utilize it, and who will for these privileges reimburse the United States for the initial cost of the dam and such added facilities as may provide both power and water rights at some later time. He believes that the Secretary of the Interior should not be handicapped by anything regarding either water rights or power rights or their allocation among States bordering on the Colorado River, but that he should immediately be authorized to build a dam for flood protection adequate to the necessities where water can be safely held and the passage of further silt into the lower Colorado basin immediately stopped. An average flow of the Colorado River over the dam would permit a clear stream of water at all times and make permanently secure and prosperous all the entire lower basin of this mighty stream.

HIGHER SITE FAVORED

Mr. Tilson believes that the proposed dam site is ideal, for the reservoir there would cover thousands of square miles of land now unimproved and unpopulated, while the project at or near Needles would necessitate several millions of dollars to move the improvements in Needles to higher ground. This would also necessitate the removal of the divisional headquarters of the Santa Fe Railroad at this point to the top of the higher bluffs, and not only call for additional millions, but would greatly delay such a project if determined on by the government as the proper place for a flood-prevention dam and reservoir.

Even if this site was to be selected, it would only impound 10,000,000 acre feet of water, as against 26,000,000 acre feet at the higher site. Should the dam be placed at the present site of Needles, the silt deposited there would cause a complete filling of the reservoir in a few years, as compared with 300 years at the upper site.

It is not improbable that the Colorado River flood menace will have a place in the next Presidential message, for President Coolidge has great confidence in the judgment and ability of Floor Leader Tilson. The fact that the Republican majority in the House is very large will make general flood prevention in dangerous rivers of the country a generally favored project at the next session of Congress.

EUROPE GAINS BANK RATE CUT

per cent rate to 5 per cent or 5½ per cent in order to hold the amount of gold necessary to maintenance of Great Britain on a gold standard basis.

Gov. Schacht of Reichsbank and Deputy Governor Rist of the Bank of France supported Sir Montagu's representations, Gov. Schacht asserting that unless the American rates were reduced it would be necessary for the German central bank to advance its rate from 6 to 7 per cent.

Sir Montagu is quoted as telling the American bank officials that the advance of the rate abroad would produce a very unfortunate effect. It would result in raising the interest rate and making the financing of industrial and commercial enterprise more costly. This would put another crimp in British industry already suffering from the prolonged coal strike and other economic ills. The French and German bankers echoed the Britisher's argument and asserted that European economic recovery would be halted if an advance of the money rates abroad should become necessary.

DISMAL PICTURE

With higher rates prevailing in Europe, foreign purchases of grain, cotton and other American products would fall off, argued the European delegation, capping the climax of its representations of what would happen if the American bankers should fail to accede to the foreign program.

It was a particularly dismal picture of economic conditions in England that Sir Montagu etched. Britain had been so hard hit by the coal strike, the consequent slackening of industry and the dole to the army of unemployed that the nation with difficulty would be kept on a gold standard basis. In fact, the economic disasters of the last year had convinced the British financiers that the return to a gold basis had been premature. It was a hard luck story equaling that unfolded by the British delegation when is came over to induce the United States to knock several hundred millions of dollars off the war debt—and succeeded.

If England should be unable to remain on a gold basis, it was insinuated by the foreign bankers, the return of Europe to the gold standard would be indefinitely delayed and the movement in France for the demonetization of gold would be given impetus. The abandonment of the gold standard by all the world but the United States would be a calamity for this country, it was represented, for under such conditions there would be no medium of exchange between America and other nations.

COST RISE FEARED

The gold specter was conjured forth in another form also. It was contended that if the status quo in money rates in this country and Europe were maintained there would be a further flow of gold to the United States, which already possesses half the world supply of gold and the result would be a rise in commodity prices and general increase in the cost of living.

Most of the reserve bank governors present confessed themselves greatly impressed by the representations of the foreign financial emissaries and expressed the opinion that the rediscount rate in this country ought to be lowered. The only discordant note was sounded by James B. McDoughall, governor of the reserve bank of Chicago, which held out against the reduction of the rate from 4 to 3½ per cent, until compelled to acquiesce by order of the Federal Reserve Board.

Since the reduction of the rate, the results aimed at by the foreigners have begun to materialize. Sterling exchange has advanced and a flow of funds from America to London and other European centers is in progress.

Electricity Use Sets High Mark

NEW YORK, Sept. 27. (AP)—Emphasizing that electric output is a barometer that reflects industrial activity quicker than any other and is the one first to show a quickening of industrial effort, Frank L. Dame, president of the North American Company, announced today another new high record of the system's electric output for the week ended the 22nd inst., amounting to 101,290,000 kilowatt hours, 6 per cent more than the corresponding week last year.

"I believe this is by far the largest weekly output of electric energy ever produced in this country by a singly controlled system, serving retail, industrial and domestic customers almost exclusively," Mr. Dame asserted.

"It may be the largest ever made by such a system in the world."

UTAH'S NEED OF WATER SET OUT

Senator Auerbach, Here, Tells State's River Policy

Quit the Six-State Pact Lest Arizona Grab Rights

Pictures Vast Benefits from Harnessed Colorado

State Senator Herbert S. Auerbach of Utah, author of the resolution by which Utah withdrew from the Six-State Colorado Compact last January, arrived at the Biltmore yesterday on a tour of the Colorado basin States and gave out the following statement as to Utah's position with reference to Colorado River water allocation and the pact mentioned:

In traveling about the State I observe that some Californians criticise Utah's Legislature for its action last January in withholding Utah's approval to participation in a six-State agreement pertaining to the Colorado River.

Following the unsuccessful attempts of California and Arizona to harmonize their interests, under the wise provisions of the seven-State compact, and in an effort to assure the passage of the Swing-Johnson bill in Congress, attempts were made to negotiate an agreement between the remaining six Colorado Basin States, leaving Arizona entirely outside of this agreement.

With Arizona thus unhampered in her freedom she could acquire, by right of priority, advantages which in the future undoubtedly would be of tremendous value to her, and of measureless harm to other Colorado Basin States.

Along the Colorado River, within her borders, Arizona possesses a number of natural sites for the construction of power dams, capable of developing almost unlimited electrical horse power.

She has within her borders vast tracts of virgin lands, so extensive that when brought under cultivation, a large part of the water of the Colorado River would be required for their irrigation.

FEARED ARIZONA GRAB

With such a menace from our neighbor on the south, unfettered by the provisions of any agreement, and realizing the probability that Arizona would reduce these water and power privileges to a beneficial use long before we would be able to, the Legislature of Utah wisely concluded that the six-State agreement which they had ratified placed Utah indeed in very undesirable and in fact a very dangerous position. Unlike California, Utah had ratified the six-State compact without qualification. Careful reconsideration brought out the fact that their act of entering the six-State agreement was premature, and left Utah, equally as much so as California, underwriting and guaranteeing the privileges of Arizona.

With California's anxiety to have this later agreement, known as the six-State compact, concluded so that an early passage of the Swing-Johnson bill would be assured, the action of your Legislature in withholding its indorsement was surprising to us. Your law-making body concluded that without certain reservations you would be unwise in accepting the allocation of the Colorado River water as fixed by the six-State compact, and this is precisely the reason why Utah insists on the complete ratification of a compact by all the seven States.

In order that those who may be unfamiliar with Utah's situation may realize the great responsibility we felt in this matter it is necessary to visualize by a brief history what our condition in Utah really is.

Utah is an arid State. In no section is there sufficient rainfall to produce crops, with the possible exception of a few tracts on which dry farming of grain has proven a success.

The valleys of Utah, in which are located many small cities and hamlets, are surrounded by farms producing in rich abundance all kinds of vegetables, grains and fruits from the fertile soils upon which the mountain streams have been led.

MUST HAVE WATER

At this time, nearly eighty years after the advent of the first settlers, one can determine unerringly the amount of water of each city and settlement throughout the valleys of Utah by the number of people residing therein. In no other irrigated section of our nation do the people have a keener appreciation of the value of water than have the people of Utah. Nowhere are there communities more intensely interested in acquiring additional water for their lands than you find in my own State.

Even now, after eighty years' establishment, we find that within an hour's ride of Salt Lake City, thousands of acres of fertile soil, located ideally are consigned to enduring waste until available water, which must be conveyed from remote sources, is brought to furnish the necessary moisture for profitable crop production. This is equally true in every valley throughout our State. It is in this great problem of acquiring additional water for our vacant lands that the future prosperity of the State of Utah rests. We know that in the near future we will see our vacant lands that are located so close to the heart of our cities, supplied with water brought thereon from enormous reservoirs and expensive canals reaching to remote water supplies.

With the success that has come to some of the valleys of Utah whose water supply has been augmented by reservoirs and extensive canals, the vision of many of Utah's population has been extended. They are looking forward to the day when the vast water resources of the eastern part of our State and which are now largely running wild in the bed of the Colorado, can be controlled through the erection of reservoirs and by the construction of canals, and be made to furnish an irrigation supply that will double the present producing area of our State. There is no question that through this means, the farming resources of our State will be doubled, resulting in a greater growth and prosperity. The stagnation that seems to hover over many sections of Utah will be removed and with our ability to greatly increase our population will come to us industries that at the present time we are grievously lacking.

IN UPPER BASIN

The section of Utah in which the greatest transformation will occur is the eastern section of the State, being that part located within the upper Colorado basin. The soil throughout the valleys of Eastern Utah is remarkably fertile. The climate is temperate and the waters from the mountain ranges of Central Utah, which flow to the East, are large streams and pass through mountainous formations which readily lend themselves for reservoir purposes.

Within the last two months I have traveled over and made inspection of this region. Near the headwaters of the Duchesne, a tributary of the Green River, are more than 100,000 acres ideally situated for irrigation purposes and capable of producing fruits, vegetables and grains in great abundance. The water of this river passes through this vast tract and it is only awaiting the magic of engineering skill and capital to transform it from barren waste to a highly productive region. Adjoining this potential project there are located many similar propositions which are traversed by large, unused streams of mountain water. The total acreage of that region capable of cultivation will probably exceed 1,000,000 acres, of which only about 300,000 acres are now cultivated.

These projects are the greatest undeveloped resources of our State. The representative men of Utah realize that it behooves them to guard with the greatest of diligence Utah's water rights, without which this vast acreage of fertile lands will be consigned to enduring desolation. For this reason the officials of Utah are carefully scrutinizing every move made by the settlers of the lower basin country—California and Arizona—that may seriously affect, some time in the future, this precious water supply. Utah desires that the controversy that has been agitating the Colorado River Basin States for the past seven years be settled by a friendly treaty, so that the future may find us on friendly terms with our neighboring States, rather than in bitter and expensive litigation in the Federal courts.

GHOSTS ARISE AT RIVER MEET

time, the upper-basin States sheered off.

STAND OF UTAH

Gov. Dern of Utah, explained he is not empowered to negotiate a deal on power for his State, but is here acting as a mediator, while Commissioner Francis S. Wilson of New Mexico, in forceful terms, said New Mexico will not be drawn into a controversy with any of the lower-basin States. Arizona's attitude is based upon her avowed intention of building a dam at Glen Canyon, which will back water into Utah and New Mexico.

California today submitted her reply on allocation of power benefits from development in the lower river. She said she is willing to allow Arizona and Nevada, each fifteen per cent of the power created at cost, the remainder to be sold by the Federal government in accordance with the Swing-Johnson bill. Nevada's proposition is to apportion the power to California and Nevada. Arizona, California and Nevada. Arizona, apparently, wants to get as much power as possible and lay as heavy a tax as the traffic will bear.

REACH DEADLOCK

Commissioner McCluskey of Arizona, intimated that his State and Nevada have reached a deadlock on the power question. He said an expression from Utah and New Mexico might go far toward ending this deadlock, but it is this suggestion that gave fright to these upper-basin States, who wish free hands to make a deal on the matter at a future date.

Congressman Taylor of Colorado this morning said he fears the compact does not protect the power rights of the upper-basin States. Numerous and able speeches were made on the matter, and at last Gov. Dern appointed a committee of five to study the situation and, on motion of Mr. Wilson, to make a statement for the record to settle these doubts.

Division of water between the lower-basin States was sidetracked pending discussion of the power question. As it stands now, Arizona and Nevada accept the proposal of the upper-basin governors, with California refusing to recede from her demands for title to 4,600,000 acre feet.

Girl Prevents Rail Disaster

RHEIMS (France) Sept. 27. (AP)—A possible disaster on the Chalons Railroad was averted today by the heroism of a 15-year-old girl, Renee Chossenotte, daughter of the agent at the small station of Prunay.

The agent, Jules Chossenotte, was struck and mortally injured by a train while tending the switch lamps. Renee called a neighbor to attend her father and then, choking back her tears, worked the switches for five hours without a mistake until a substitute arrived.

Her father, carried into the station building, died within a few minutes.

RACER DOWN ON ISLAND IN RIVER

Believed to be Goddard, Lost in Portland Derby

Holman, St. Paul, Wins Prize; Chicagoan Second

Rand and Frye, Los Angeles, Land at Pasco

PORTLAND (Or.) Sept. 27. (Exclusive)—With the landing late today on an island in the Columbia River of a plane believed to be that of Norman A. Goddard of San Diego, all the flyers in the Spokane—Portland Class A air derby are thought to be accounted for. The race was won by E. W. Holman of St. Paul, piloting a Laird commercial biplane. He receives a prize of $1000. E. E. Ballough of Chicago was second and N. B. Namer of Spokane third.

The report that Goddard, who was piloting an Imperial monoplane, had been forced to land on the island was received by the Oregon-Washington Railway and Navigation Company when preparations were under way to begin a search for the aviator.

LAND NEAR SHORE

The dispatch stated that the plane had been sighted flying over the river at a low altitude. It circled the island and made a landing close to the shore. Two men stepped from the cockpit and began an examination of the plane. A boat with several men aboard put out to learn the identity of the flyers but had not returned late tonight.

Although Holman was declared winner of the race, he arrived on the flying field here a few seconds behind Ballough. But Holman had left Spokane at 3:14 p.m., while Ballough had got away a full two minutes earlier. Check of elapsed time, according to race officials, showed that Holman won by thirty-seven seconds. Namer's flying time was 7m. 6s. longer than Ballough's.

LOS ANGELES FLYERS

M. C. Lippiatt of Los Angeles arrived 11m. 18s. behind Namer. Lee Schoenhair of Los Angeles was 18m. behind Lippiatt.

Jack Rand of Los Angeles, Jack Frye of Los Angeles and McInaney of Denver landed at Pasco, Wash., on account of poor visibility. McInaney was not entered in the race, having started from Spokane before the signal was given. The three plan to continue to Portland tomorrow morning.

Duke Schiller with the Royal Windsor and Eddie Stinson with a Stinson-Detroit craft both arrived in Portland tonight.

Dickey Defeated in Paper Battle

JEFFERSON CITY (Mo.) Sept. 27. (AP)—The Missouri Supreme Court today denied the mandamus application of Walter S. Dickey, publisher of the Kansas City Journal-Post, to compel Atty.-Gen. Gentry to join with the publisher in his suit to set aside the sale of the Kansas City Star and Times to the present owners in August, 1926.

Dickey asserted the sale of the papers to the present stockholders was fraudulent and illegal, and that his bid for the properties after the death of Mrs. Irwin R. Kirkwood, owner and publisher, was the best one.

SEISMOMETER GIVEN

Instruments for Studying Quakes Presented to University

BERKELEY, Sept. 27. (AP)—The University of California is to get one of the best-equipped seismometer stations for studying earthquakes on the Pacific Coast, it was announced here today. The station, costing $10,000, is the gift of F. W. Bilger of Oakland.

The station will have two sets of instruments, one to record near-by disturbances and the other to record distant shocks. The instruments will be of the latest type. The earth movements will be recorded on sensitized paper by a ray of light, thus doing away with the needle seismograph which often has been jarred out of order by a heavy shock.

The station here will be one of four planned for construction on the Pacific Coast by the Seismological Association of America. The other three stations will be located Stanford University, Lick Observatory at Mt. Hamilton, and in San Francisco. The Stanford station is nearly ready to operate.

CLARK BODY REFUSED BY HIS WIDOW

Fund Raised by Offic... Sent to Her from Hos... Interment at Prison

SAN QUENTIN, Sept. 27. (A...—Warden Holohan of San Quentin penitentiary received a telegram today from Deputy Sheriff Johnson of Los Angeles saying that a fund had been raised among Los Angeles officers to send the body of Red Clark, who was hanged for murder last Friday, to his wife, but that the latter declined to take charge of the remains. Johnson stated that the fund then was sent to Mrs. Clark's home in Minot, N. D.

Under these circumstances, Clark will be buried in the prison cemetery tomorrow, Warden Holohan announced.

Clark wrote a letter to his prison officers in Los Angeles stating that they "chip in" and send the body to Minot. After the fund was raised the Los Angeles officers notified Mrs. Clark's home of their plan. The reply was that Mrs. Clark was ill from the shock of her husband's death and could not take care of the body.

MORROW HOPES TO WIN FRIENDSHIP OF MEXICO

Coolidge's Courageous Appointment of Morgan Partner May Prove Outstanding Diplomatic Stroke

BY BRUCE GOULD

NEW YORK, Sept. 27. (Exclusive)—President Coolidge's recent appointment of Dwight W. Morrow, Morgan partner, as Ambassador to Mexico, bids fair to become the most outstanding of all his appointments. Half an hour's informal conversation with Mr. Morrow concerning his acceptance of the most difficult of American diplomatic jobs leads one to the conclusion. The courage of Mr. Coolidge in appointing the leading member of the country's leading financial house to represent us with a government which some have dubbed "bolshevik" already has been widely commented on in both the conservative and radical press.

Yet an examination of the attitude and mind of this man, whose public acumen in the Mitchell aviation controversy received universal commendation, leads one to conjecture that Mexico may find in the lawyer-banker school friend of the President an ally on whom it will come more and more to lean for support in vexing controversial questions.

If so, it will not be the first time that foreign countries have found among our financial leaders a more powerful support than any lent by their most puissant business men. For it is no secret in Wall street that Owen D. Young of General Electric Company, a Morgan institution, became such a symbol of forthright justice in the settlement of international affairs that his word was accepted as even better than his bond and his advice sought in matters where he held no personal stake.

NOT SEEKING LEISURE

And Mr. Morrow makes it plain that he aspires to no less a position in the affection and esteem of the responsible Mexican citizenry. With a wide experience in Latin-American affairs behind him gained during his twelve years' association with the Morgan firm, he realizes that the job is hard. But that does not daunt him. Had he been seeking leisure, his name has been mentioned in connection with secretaryships of both State and Treasury, or it is quite possible that the mantle of the St. James Ambassadorship would have been slipped onto his stalwart shoulders.

But seated amid the somber commercial magnificence of a Morgan partner's office his small, plainly shod feet cocked up on a widespreading luxurious desk, he lets it be understood that the only sort of a job he is interested in is a "hard" one, one, moreover, which promises him an adventure.

The man who can understand aviation, who speaks affectionately of Lindbergh, has not a counting-house soul by any means. Uninterested in personal grandeur, as instanced by his nondescript blue and green tie, scarcely shined shoes, and a press in his trousers that would make a valet wince, Mr. Morrow is sincerely grateful that his friend, the President, thought enough of him to saddle him with the most disagreeable task it was in Mr. Coolidge's power to assign.

FOREGOES SECURITY

And he does not want to give interviews stating concisely what he intends to do with the delicate Mexican situation. He smiles hazily when it is pointed out that he has left the secure Morgan domain and now is a public target for bouquets and brickbats. He realizes with philosophic view that success would bring him little, important though success would be to both this country and Mexico. He knows that everyone expects him to succeed, while failure would bring curses upon his head and furnish ammunition for the enemies of his order of society.

Beyond the fact that the President asked him to do so, it is to be doubted whether he quite knows why he has given up a $1,000,000 a year income, a position in the financial community beyond price, and comparative freedom from heckling by irresponsible demagogues for the shifting uncertainties of a position which asked him to accept the responsibility which has proved too tricky for many otherwise capable individuals.

"Men have not yet found a method of measuring the motives of other men," he says, "and it is difficult to know our own motives."

Though Mr. Morrow asked that his words be not quoted, he did point out that many of the beliefs which will guide his Mexican policy were available as public statements and directed attention to them. Therefore, it is possible to hazard a few conjectures regarding these policies.

Most important, perhaps, to those whose minds are disturbed by the thoughts of possible war with Mexico over the so-called alien land and oil laws, which James R. Sheffield fought so bitterly, is the opinion that nothing which Mr. Morrow does will ever lead this country into war with Mexico because of tangled commercial relations.

"Differences of opinion between States are the incidents of international life," says Mr. Morrow. "The acknowledgement of the possibility of such differences is the effective way of preventing serious consequences arising therefrom.

"It is apparently believed by some that loans to foreign governments made by our citizens throw up on our own government the responsibility of using the armed forces of our government for the purpose of collecting the debts.

"The establishment of the principle that nations are justified in going to war where the sole issue is the collection of a debt would be not only most hurtful to the nation at large but, in the long run would prove injurious to the property interests of the bankers who sell and the investors who buy foreign government loans.

SHOULD LOOK TO MEXICO

"Is there anyone who thinks that if a man owes him money and cannot pay it there is profit in going out and killing the debtor? Entirely apart from the immorality of putting human lives to the hazard of modern war where the sole issue is a pecuniary claim, there is a conclusive, practical reason against such a source in that war. In the great majority of cases, does not and cannot accomplish the desired result."

As he said in speaking of Cuba so does he believe in connection with the possible commercial differences between Americans and Mexicans, which already exist in connection with oil lands across the Rio Grande. They should seek remedies "for their alleged wrongs through the ordinary channels" in Mexico. "They should not look to Washington."

At the same time, President Coolidge could have picked no man in the country whose belief in the right of property to full legal protection is more firmly grounded. Thrift he believes, should be rewarded, and nations as well as individuals must respect their agreements to the fullest in spirit and letter.

"No man," he said, "can play an important part in modern commercial civilization unless he respects his promises in letter and spirit. We want no commercial dealings with people who cannot or will not keep their promises. The keeping of a promise is the fundamental virtue of commercial life."

The man whom the Mexican administration and whom Mexico City will come to know as our Ambassador has a high respect for the integrity for Mexican culture, habits of thought and modes of life. Beyond anything else he will try to understand them. As he once said of the Cuban he might again say of the Mexican people.

REJECTS MEXICAN CULTURE

"They do not want to be Americanized, and we should not want to Americanize them. They have inherited from their mother country, with which, despite their war of independence, they still have close ties, a culture which is as much their culture as our culture is ours."

Of all those who confidently expect that Mr. Morrow will speedily settle our difficulties with the Mexican state the Ambassador is probably less confident and more hopeful. It is probable that he does not expect to settle anything, but hopes to understand as fully as possible, in the hope that an amicable state of adjustment can be reached where mutual confidence is restored and cooperation gained.

One-Way Roads for Autos Seen

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 27. (AP)—A nation-wide network of one-way roads, under park restriction, for the use of the recreational motorist in order to lessen traffic congestion and decrease accidents, was predicted today by Albert M. Turner of Hartford, Ct., an address before the annual convention of the American Institute of Park Executives.

"A traffic survey has shown that more than one-half of all motor vehicle mileage is of the nonbusiness or recreational class," he said.

The convention voted to meet in Los Angeles next year.

JAPAN HAS NO FEAR OF NAVAL RACE

Admiral Saito Hopes Next Parley Can be Held Prior to 1931 Scheduled Meet

TOKIO, Sept. 27. (AP)—Viscount Admiral Saito, head of the Japanese delegation to the recent three-power naval conference in Geneva, believes that, although the United States may build new auxiliary vessels, severe naval competition among the powers is extremely unlikely. Interviewed on his return from Geneva, he expressed hope that it will be possible to hold the naval parley provided for in the Washington treaty earlier than 1931, so as to avoid unnecessary naval construction.

Admiral Saito expressed the opinion that the British proposal regarding the size of gun calibers and the tonnage of future battleships might well form the basis of discussion at the scheduled conference in 1931.

The most important requirements for success of the disarmament movement, the admiral said, are mutual respect and an earnest desire for peace.

Admiral Saito considers that the failure of the Geneva naval conference was due to the refusal of the United States to agree to the British plan, but emphasized that neither the British nor American attitude was unreasonable as their respective delegates mostly were manifesting public opinion in their own countries.

Klan Seeks to Prevent Ousting

TOPEKA (Kan.) Sept. 27. (AP)—The Ku Klux Klan today had on file in Federal District Court here an application for an injunction restraining Gov. Paulen and William A. Smith, Attorney-General, from enforcing the ouster order which the State obtained against the Klan several years ago. This order was affirmed by the United States Supreme Court.

"While there was no pressing necessity for the filing of this suit at this time," said a statement issued by John S. Dean, attorney for the Klan, "as no effort is now being made by the State to enforce the judgment of ouster, nevertheless the head officers of the Klan organization, desiring to be relieved from any criticism upon the ground that they were not respecting the judgment of our Supreme Court, insisted that the question of the validity of the former judgment be formally and finally determined."

Road Cops Sent Back to Cycles

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 27. (AP)—All State traffic officers are to be returned to their motorcycles by an order issued today by Frank G. Snook, chief of the State Division of Motor Vehicles.

During the last few years, Snook pointed out, there has been a tendency for the traffic police to forsake motorcycles for touring cars. The practice became so general that when Snook became motor-vehicle chief nearly half of the traffic force were driving automobiles.

Snook believes the use of the motor cars has impaired the efficiency of the squad, particularly in view of the fact that the automobiles driven by many of the officers are incapable of matching speed with some of the more powerful cars they are called upon to pursue

Game Refuge Laws Favored

KLAMATH FALLS (Or.) Sept. 27. (AP)—Oregon and California game commission officers and Federal officials in conference here today considered indorsement of proposed legislation for establishment of migratory game refuges and discussed feasibility of reflooding a portion of lower Klamath Lake.

The State officials decided to bend every effort toward reflooding of the Bear River marshes in Utah.

Oregon and California will vigorously support the pending Phipps bill in Congress appropriating money for that purpose.

Texas Hold-up of Bank Foiled

FORT WORTH (Tex.) Sept. 27. (AP) An effort by four armed men to rob the Stockyards National Bank here this afternoon failed. The robbers, foiled by getting into the wrong vault, shot up the bank and wounded one man, a customer. Many shots were fired at the bandits as they sped away.

One man, W. C. Kitchin, a cashier, was clubbed over the head with a pistol by one of the bandits. Charles Babb, employee of the bank, was struck on the arm but was not injured.

Sacramento Vote Beats Bond Plan

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 27. (AP)—Residents of Sacramento and adjacent territory to the east, north and south today defeated an $11,600,000 bond issue to pipe a mountain water supply to this district to supplant the present supply drawn from the Sacramento River. Complete unofficial returns from the fifty-seven precincts showed but 8838 votes in favor of the issue, against 6834 in opposition. Two-thirds majority was required. The supply was to be brought here from the Silver Creek watershed in the Sierras.

Boy Vindicated for Slaying Man

OAKLAND, Sept. 27. (AP)—Jerome Cornell, Jr., 13 years of age, was absolved of blame in the fatal shooting of his step-father, Charles Van Alderwerelt, when a Coroner's jury tonight returned a verdict of justifiable homicide.

The boy killed his step-father with a .22-caliber rifle Monday when the man started beating and choking his wife, the boys' mother.

FRENCH TARIFF PLAN SURVEYED

Washington Believed to be Framing Penalty Rules

Commission Prepares Report to Send President

Government Still Awaiting Reply to Last Note

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27. (AP)—Intimations that the Washington government, pending receipt of the French reply to the last American tariff note, is making a survey of possible ways and means of applying penalty provisions of the tariff act to French imports should the most-favored-nation treaty plan again be rejected by the Paris government, were seen today in disclosures that a special report on French tariff relationships is in preparation by the Tariff Commission for submission to the President.

A copy of the portion of the Tariff Commission report already submitted has reached the State Department but neither there nor at the White House is any information forthcoming as to its contents aside from the general statement that it covers cases of French tariff discrimination during the last forty years.

Nevertheless, a report persisted that the commission has included in its study a survey of specific French imports against which conditions in the United States would permit the levying of an additional duty of 50 per cent or even in some cases an embargo without drastic disruption of business conditions. As a complement to that study, it is further reported, the commission also has considered the probably retaliatory action that might be taken by France if the United States was compelled to employ the authority of Sec. 317 of the tariff act against new French duties regarded by the Washington government as discriminatory.

The State Department has received no word as to when the French answer to the reiterated American proposal for a most-favored-nation commercial treaty might be expected, and in the meantime officials here are evasive as to the real significance of the report that has been prepared by the Tariff Commission.

It is known that some administration officials regard French silk imports as well as French perfumes and some French textiles as legitimate articles for super-duty levies in the event that the counter discrimination provisions of the tariff act are to be invoked. There has been no intimation, however, as to what the findings of the Tariff Commission may be in that regard.

ESCAPED ZOO LEOPARD LAYS SIEGE TO DEPOT

KARLSRUHE (Germany) Sept. 27 (AP)—Many would-be passengers missed their trains at Karlsruhe rather than risk an encounter with a large leopard which took possession of the station approach and wandered into the ticket office and about the platform. The leopard had escaped from the zoo. One of several workmen in the station yard kept the animal at bay in a corner with a shovel until keepers arrived and shoved the leopard into a cage.

The isolation and culture of a microscopic plant known as Acidophilus, promises to do much for the relief of human suffering. The acidophilus plant has the remarkable power of displacing health-destroying, disease-producing germs in the digestive tract which cause food decay and auto-intoxication.

Research workers in the laboratories of the Los Angeles Creamery Company have found that these plants grow readily in pure milk and have perfected two products, A-dof-lus Cheese and A-dof-lus Milk. Mrs. Isabelle Gordon of Pasadena, who suffered as the result of her sedentary occupation, says: "I've been helping myself to health with A-dof-lus. Improvement was noticeable the very first day, and in time restoration of mental and physical alertness—natural functioning by natural means."

A-dof-lus Milk and Cheese is made exclusively by the Los Angeles Creamery Company and may be obtained from any of their drivers, or by phoning the main plant, WEstmore 9331, or any one of their ten branches.—[Advertisement.

FEDERAL COURT JAM RELIEVED

Sargent Surveys Docket at Judge's Conference

Cases Pending at End of Year Only 149,302

Department Cost Reduced to $24,000,000

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27. (AP)—The last fiscal year saw a noticeable decline in Federal court congestion, Atty.-Gen. Sargent today told the annual conference of senior circuit court judges, in session here, with Chief Justice Taft presiding.

This has been particularly true, he declared, in cases involving the government, although no change has been noted in the rapidity of the disposition of litigation involving only private citizens. The smaller dockets he attributed to the increased number of district judges.

The total cost of operating the Department of Justice during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1927, Mr. Sargent told the jurists, was approximately $24,000,000, or about $300,000 less, he said, than that of the preceding year.

Cases pending at the close of the fiscal year, Mr. Sargent said, numbered 149,302, or 6008 less than at the end of the year before, and of these, 33,386 were criminal cases and 16,448 civil actions, in which the government was involved as plaintiff or defendant, the remainder being suits between individuals, comparing with 38,858, and 18,458 cases, respectively, on June 30, 1926.

Solicitor-General Mitchell and Asst. Atty.-Gen. Marshall also appeared before the conference and presented the views of the government on certain cases that have been disposed of, and their attendant court decisions.

The conference is called annually for a delineation of conditions in the various districts, and suggestion and adoption of any remedial measures that might be considered necessary.

FUNDS FOR SPEAKEASY WITHHELD

Treasury Official Vetoes Bielaski Expense Account for Bootlegger Trap

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27. (AP)—The weight of a ruling by Comptroller-General McCarl that government funds may not be spent in operation of a speakeasy for entrapment of bootleggers has been added to a Treasury decision to abandon that sort of enforcement activity.

McCarl's ruling came in considering an expense account of A. Bruce Bielaski, former prohibition undercover man, who included in his expense items $4973 as the cost of operation of the Bridge Whist Club in New York City. The amount was paid by W. A. Green, chief prohibition investigator, but the comptroller has demanded a readjustment. The club, subject of much discussion in the last session of Congress, was used to gain information about bootleggers, who were subsequently arrested.

Assistant Secretary Lowman, in charge of enforcement, has discontinued the club operation plan since he took office.

COOLIDGE BACKS NAVY CRITICISM

President Sees No Harm in Honest Opinion

Wants 100 Per Cent Navy; Welcomes Suggestions

Admiral Magruder Not to be Disciplined for Views

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27. (Exclusive)—President Coolidge does not expect that Rear-Admiral Magruder will be disciplined for his now famous article about the American Navy, but sees little merit in his suggestions for changes. About the only expectation of change in navy methods may be the increase of the navy strength so that more ships can remain in commission, it is said by those close to the administration.

The President's attitude toward Rear-Admiral Magruder's recent criticism of the Navy as revealed at the White House, explains why Secretary Wilbur has not undertaken to discipline the free spoken flag officer, but instead, practically has dared him to come on and show, if he can, how to run the Navy better than it is now being run.

The President plainly does not feel that the government's, nor even the Navy's dignity has been jarred by Admiral Magruder. Nor does he think that an officer who obviously has the public interest at heart should be punished for expressing his views, particularly when that officer does not impute improper motives to his superior officers. While no reference to the fact was made at the White House, it is apparent the President draws a sharp distinction between the acts of Admiral Magruder and the one wherein former Gen. William Mitchell of the army air service, recklessly assailed his superiors, made extravagant statements about them, some of which were subsequently proved false, and defied official lightning to come down and strike him.

WANTS MOST VALUE

What the President wants is to have the Navy get as nearly 100 cents of value out of every dollar expended on it as possible and if Admiral Magruder or anyone else can show how to get more cents than are now obtained, the President proposes that he shall have a chance to demonstrate.

It is not that the President thinks Admiral Magruder's criticisms, direct and implied, are all sound. The President is very frank to say that he does not consider himself enough of a naval expert to pass judgment on them. But he has some ideas, based on his experience, that lead him to question some of the admiral's suggestions. Furthermore, he realizes that it is not difficult to criticize. In the President's opinion no set of men, even though they be as wise as those who are administering the Army and Navy at present, are humanly able to spend the $700,000,000 a year those two departments are spending and do it so perfectly that no one can come forward and show how they might do it better. When some one comes forward with a reasonable suggestion for betterment, that suggestion should be considered.

ABLE TO HAVE BEST

The President believes it is a matter of public knowledge that he is desirous that the country have a first-class military establishment in the Army and Navy and he wants those establishments maintained at reasonable costs. In his opinion, the country is well able to meet the present rate of expenditures without feeling that it is going unduly burdened. The President's main desire at present, therefore, is not so much to reduce expenditures as to see that the appropriations are wisely expended, in order that we may have the very best army and navy possible for that money.

President Coolidge does not agree with the suggestion contained in Admiral Magruder's article that perhaps the Navy has too many officers. It is the President's belief that the nation ought to have a large supply of trained army and navy officers, because, while in time of emergency it is relatively an easy task to obtain enlisted men, it always takes a long time to make officers. His judgment is that there should be a large supply of army officers and at least an adequate supply of navy officers.

NOT IN AGREEMENT

Another criticism which has been advanced that too many naval officers are stationed in Washington also fails to register with the Chief Executive. He does not believe it makes a great deal of difference where the officers are stationed. If there is nothing for them to do elsewhere, he sees no reason why they should not be in Washington, the headquarters of the service and the place from which the expenditures are directed.

Nevertheless, the President thinks that the Magruder suggestion should be given careful consideration and if the plan to be proposed by Admiral Magruder for reorganization offers possibilities of giving the Navy larger returns for the money spent the naval service itself should be gratified.

WILBUR TAKES ISSUE WITH ADMIRAL'S FIGURES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27. (AP)—While the White House was announcing today President Coolidge's discovery of some helpful criticism in the controverted naval article by Rear-Admiral Magruder, Secretary Wilbur delved into the article's charges of lack of economy in the Navy and disputed them.

Secretary Wilbur lifted from the article Admiral Magruder's statement that "for every dollar expended for repairs," in the Navy, "it requires nearly $4 to be expended to maintain a navy yard to make repairs," and cited figures which he said show its inaccuracy.

To his request that Admiral Magruder submit any naval reorganization plan, he might have, Mr. Wilbur today received this reply:

"I have no full detailed plans for the reorganization of the Navy and the Navy Department."

Going into the economy phase of the article, the Secretary declared total productive work at yards and stations is $101,000,000, while the total maintenance charges are $60,000,000, "from which it will be seen that instead of $4 for each $1 of productive work, a more correct figure would have been 80 cents for each $1 of productive work."

"If it is desired to confine this discussion to industrial yards," the Secretary continued, "the total productive work is $64,000,000 and the total maintenance charges are $35,000,000, from which it will be seen that for each $1 of productive work, maintenance charges of approximately 40 cents were incurred."

He said that Admiral Magruder in reaching the figures he quoted in his article used only the charges to repairs to vessels and repairs to ships' equipage, totaling $16,000,000.

"There are other items of productive work at navy yards," Secretary Wilbur continued, "such as changes and additions to vessels, new construction of vessels, improvements to yards, tests and experimenta, repairs to equipage in stowage, operations and repairs of aircraft and manufacture of materials." All these charges, he said, must be taken into account in computing the total productive work at yards and stations.

ADMIRAL GRATIFIED BY WHITE HOUSE VIEWS

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 27. (AP)—Admiral Magruder, commander of the Fourth Naval District, read with interest today the views expressed at the White House regarding his articles in the Saturday Evening Post that the Navy is overorganized.

"I am gratified with the views expressed," was all the admiral would say for publication.

Small Child Lost on Beach

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 27. (AP)—Johnny Warner, 2-year-old son of Harold Warner, San Diego contractor and aviator, was hunted along the beach here today by police and frantic relatives where he was last seen earlier in the day.

Accompanied by his grandmother, Mrs. Mary Douglas, the child visited friends at the beach and was put out in the yard to play. Neighbors told the police they saw him toddling toward the surf but thought he was being watched.

WRIT OF MANDATE IN OIL FIGHT OBTAINED

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 27. (AP)—Thomas A. Joyner, today obtained an alternative writ of mandate from the Third District Court of Appeal against W. S. Kingsbury, Surveyor-General, in an effort to compel the State official to issue a permit to prospect for oil on beach lands within the city of Huntington Beach. The writ is returnable November 7. Kingsbury refused the permit on the strength of a State law closing tide lands within a mile of a city's limits to oil prospectors.

GHOSTS BECOME VERSATILE

They Can Work in Daylight and Perform Numerous Mystifying Stunts, Psychic Congress Hears

PARIS, Sept. 27. (AP)—Ghosts do not need the shades of night to cloak their movements. They can operate in broad daylight, their thumbprints can be taken by properly trained mediums, and they can write on a typewriter from a great distance. These startling assertions were made before the International Congress for Psychic Research today.

The spirit mediums who were ruthlessly thrown overboard yesterday by Sir Oliver Lodge, British scientist, were rescued by James Malcom Bird of New York, several German spiritualists and Dr. G. W. Reitz, head of an insane asylum at Leningrad, all of whom brought forward masses of evidence to rehabilitate the mediums.

Dr. Reitz, while admitting that the medium needs training to produce the choicest phenomena, declared they all operate in good faith. The audience was unanimous in applauding this sentiment.

KNOTS TIED IN CORDS

Speaking of the performances of mediums with whom he experimented, he said some introduced articles into safes doubly locked and sealed, while others tied knots in a cord both ends of which had been attached to a seal.

Some mediums turned out typewritten documents at a long distance, he declared, while all of them were able to get all sorts of objects moved about without the help of any material agency.

How a medium produced changes of temperature in a room was described by Harry Price of the American Society for Psychical Research.

Prof. Ferdinando Cazzamali of the University of Milan who two years ago asserted that the human brain emits radio waves now asserts he has obtained photographic records of these emanations.

He wrote that, in order to make his studies more complete in regard to the psych-sensorial phenomena of the brain, he had constructed an apparatus containing a sensitized plate. Subjects in a state of hypnosis were placed, one after the other, in a room with this apparatus, and later it was found that the plates were marked with lines and blotches.

LINES VARY

These markings, the professor contended, corresponded to the thoughts of the subjects, being more or less straight as the subject was more or less of nervous temperament. The phenomena, he added, were not found in persons of unsound mind.

Prof. Cazzamali, who is head of the department of neurology and psychiatry in the University of Milan, asserted in a report published in August, 1925, that the human brain emitted sounds which were to be heard distinctly by means of a radio receiver.

Using highly excitable persons as subjects, he placed them in a hypnotic state and, at the extremely low wave lengths of from four to ten meters asserted he heard sounds which he was satisfied came from the brain. The sounds were similar to wireless signals, he said, but were often accentuated until they resembled whistling or the tones of a muted violin.

LODGE PAPER READ

In the paper by Sir Oliver Lodge he recommended that etheric phenomena of a simple and familiar nature, especially any sort of radio transmission, be utilized for testing the supernatural powers studied in metaphysics, as employment of the ether is more likely to eliminate the necessity of using a medium.

The first object of science, he said, is to discover the true nature of matter. When that is accomplished the action of incorporate bodies of material things will be shown to be possible.

Rappings of ghosts, for instance, are possible through the agency of a form of matter created by the mind. Messages from the other world are quite possible, he added, when the psychical nature of the matter of the "other world" is understood.

Charles Richet of France, who presides at the congress, declared that metaphysics is "on the verge of becoming an authoritative science." He contended that "there is a sixth sense" and promised to have well-supervised demonstrations of psychic power during the five-day meeting.

THUMBPRINTS SHOWN

Photographs of what he described as "spirit thumbprints" were thrown on a screen by James McMaster Bird of New York.

The thumbprints photographed, Bird told the congress, were found identical with the thumbprints of the medium's father who had died fifteen years previously, comparison being made with a thumbprint taken by a police officer from a razor which the deceased had used just before his death and which since then had not been touched by anyone else.

MEXICANS WILL HEAR ORATORS

National Champions to Give Speeches at Fiesta, Visit Universal Plant

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 27. (Exclusive)—The five national champion orators visiting this city had a full program yesterday, which included inspection of El Universal's plant, being there received by Miguel Lanz Duret, owner and managing editor of the paper which is sponsoring their visit. They were welcomed formally to Mexico by Dr. J. M. Casauranc, Secretary of Public Education, who told them of the importance of their visit.

In the afternoon the party went to Sanagel, a beautiful colony near here, and visited public buildings. This evening they are to attend a festival at Theater Hidalgo, where each will be given a chance to speak in his native tongue, an opportunity being thus afforded members of foreign colonies to hear their champions talk.

Brief interviews have been published in El Universal describing the visitors' impressions of Mexico, while a special story on the first page tells how Dorothy Carlson, United States champion, won her laurels. Miss Carlson declares she turned down an offer to appear in the films to pursue her studies at the University of Southern California, where she later intends to major in the dramatic school.

The orators all seemed enthusiastic about their reception here and expressed regret that they must leave so soon. They are to return to the United States Friday.

NEW HAVEN (Ct.) Sept. 27. (AP)—A strong church in the heart of the university, to include students, members of the faculty and their families, is planned by Yale University, which today announced that some of the leading preachers in the United States have accepted invitations to deliver addresses at the public services conducted Sunday morning in Battell chapel.

AMBASSADOR HERRICK REPORTED IMPROVING

CLEVELAND, Sept. 27. (AP)—Myron T. Herrick, United States Ambassador to France, who underwent two operations here more than a month ago, is improving and expects to return to Paris before January 1, says an announcement by his son, Parmeley Herrick. Mr. Herrick said his father, who is 71 years of age, takes an automobile ride daily.

NORWAY SHAKEN BY SLIGHT EARTHQUAKE

OSLO, Sept. 27. (Exclusive)—Western Norway today experienced a slight earthquake. While there was no loss of life, windows were shaken for several seconds.

CANNIBAL CHILDREN STIR STRIKE

Czecho-Slovakian Pupils Quit School Fearing Hungry Looks of Swarthy Classmates and Demand Separate Building for Human Flesh Eaters

PRAGUE (Czecho-Slovakia) Sept. 27. (AP)—School children in the town of Hommonna, Czecho-Slovakia, have struck for separate schools because of their deep instinctive fear that the swarthy juvenile nomads beside whom they sit have cannibalistic proclivities.

The striking children have been strongly supported by their parents who declare that their children are in danger of being eaten.

Seeing the force of their arguments, the authorities have decided to build a separate school for the gypsy children which is believed would be the only one of its kind in the world.

The present protest grew from asserted cannibalistic orgies of last year for which thirty-six gypsies are awaiting trial. They are said to have confessed to murdering and devouring scores of persons, pleading the times were bad and they could not afford to buy ordinary meat but that they did not see "anything wrong in eating human flesh."

EIGHTH LEAGUE ASSEMBLY ENDS

Two Notable Developments Result of Meeting

Great Advance Predicted to Cause of Peace

Step-by-Step Disarmament Plans Arranged

GENEVA, Sept. 27. (AP)—The delegates to the Eighth Assembly of the League of Nations are returning to their respective countries tonight virtually unanimous in the conviction that the meeting has been one of the most important in the history of the league.

The assembly has been marked, in their view, by two notable international developments. The first is the great moral impetus given to the consolidation of peace, and the second is the decision to tighten the grasp on peace by gradually constructing a machinery which the nations feel they can accept as adaptable to changing conditions of international life.

It is generally believed that the Geneva peace protocol, fashioned by the 1924 assembly of the League, is too idealistic for the present age and that as President Guani put in his valedictory oration today, it is better to approach the complex problem of peace by distinguishing more clearly the boundary between the practical and the ideal.

DISARMING PLANS

The assembly decided to approach the question of attaining reduction of armaments not by one, but a series of international conferences and by simultaneously creating a system of arbitration and security pacts between nations which will make it possible for nations really to lower their armaments by the time the first disarmament conference is held.

The assembly ended today with the growing conviction that for Europe at least any considerable lowering of armaments is not likely unless the feeling of national security is greater than afforded by the Locarno agreements. Many delegates expressed a hope that the United States, in addition to co-operating at the disarmament preliminaries, will collaborate in security negotiations even if it should Find itself unable to engage its national responsibility as a party to the actual security treaties.

A remarkable feature of the assembly has been the repeated reference by the speakers to a movement among the American people to obtain definite outlawry of war by the extension of arbitration.

PLAY HELPING ROLE

Several of the delegates expressed the opinion to the Associated Press correspondent that the United States could play a helpful role in the forthcoming long and complicated effort for outlawing war by lending the support and advice, if only unofficially, ahd that any world movement to brand an aggressor nation as an outlaw can never succeed unless the United States, tacitly accepting any League decision concerning the identity of the outlaw, might agree to waive certain neutrality rights, and, without engaging in any actual League war, consent not to trade with or help the national declared to be the aggressor.

In the domain of economics, deemed by many the potential cause of war, much has been done. International economic co-operation, hailed as essential by the recent economic conference, will be promoted by the creation of an advisory committee on which Americans will be invited to sit, in an endeavor to find means of establishing genuine liberty of commerce and the removal of vexatious tariff restrictions.

The Latin-American states have taken a leading part in the deliberations of the assembly, and, although the League took no action and was not asked to take action, in the Panama Canal problem raised by Dr. Morales, the Panama delegate, the impression prevails here that Latin-American political problems will at least be aired in the future at Geneva as the great forum of international questions.

FILM PIONEER SUCCUMBS

NEW YORK, Sept. 27. (AP)—Walter Hays, vice-president of the Stanley-Mark Strand Corporation of New York, a pioneer in the motion-picture industry, died today at his apartment here. He was 57 years of age.

To Avoid Engine Repair Bills

Wise motorists check their ignition when the engine falls short of the fine performance that it once had.

Many times expensive repair bills are incurred and it is afterwards found that all that was needed was a new set of spark plugs. This for the reason that spark plugs in time deteriorate and need to be replaced.

This is the simplest, safest and least costly thing to do before authorizing extensive repairs or adjustments.

When you buy spark plugs, be sure to insist on AC—the spark plug on which Lindbergh, Chamberlin, Byrd and other flyers staked their lives—then you will be sure of perfect spark plug performance.

Your dealer has the right type and size for your engine.—[Advertisement.

JUSTICE SETS SPEED RECORD

English Jurist Works so Fast He Gives 110 Divorces in One Minute

LONDON, Sept. 27. (AP)—English justice has the reputation of moving fast, but Judge MacKinnon, in Divorce Court, stepped on the accelerator so hard that the bandage over the eyes of the Goddess of Justice almost blew off.

In one minute he granted 110 absolute divorces. He still had a few seconds left to take out one case, it the request of a young man who had come all the way from South Africa, and order a retrial.

Missing Heiress Found in North

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 27. (Exclusive)—Nation-wide search for Victoria Burger, purported 14-year-old Tennessee heiress reported missing from the home of her parents at Kingsport, in that State, August 28, last, ended today at San Bruno, a peninsula suburb, when the girl was taken in custody for investigation by a policeman there.

Struck by the girl's heavily rouged cheeks and disheveled appearance, the officer questioned her when he found her wandering the streets aimlessly. Her identity was not disclosed until a search of her garments revealed a newspaper clipping of her disappearance.

LIQUOR NO ISSUE SAYS OLDFIELD

Democratic Leader Regards it State Question

Not Competent to Figure in Presidency Campaign

Candidate's Personal Views Called Immaterial

(Will prohibition be an issue in the next Presidential campaign? There is disagreement on this among the leaders of each of the two major parties. This is shown by a series of interviews written by Robert Barry, well-known Washington correspondent. Mr. Barry interviewed Democratic and Republican leaders throughout the country. The interview with the Democrats are being published now; then will come those with the Republicans. The fourth interview appears here today.)

BY ROBERT BARRY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27. (Exclusive)—With both parties divided among themselves, it is difficult for Representative William A. Oldfield of Arkansas, chairman of the Democratic Congressional Committee, to see how prohibition could be made a political issue in a Presidential contest.

WILLIAM A. OLDFIELD.

Chairman Oldfield speaks as head of the only working organization the Democrats have undertaken to maintain since 1924. His office has overshadowed that of the chairman of the Democratic National Committee, Clem L. Shaver. Mr. Shaver has not been active in political discussion and has assumed only slight influence in party councils.

Chairman Oldfield believes prohibition enforcement might well dominate popular discussion in a Presidential contest.

"The President has to see that the law is enforced," he said, "and revelations made in the administration of the dry law, with graft, corruption and tyranny charged, indicate that law enforcement may be a very live issue in the 1928 campaign."

"If prohibition is not an issue what would be the issue?" Chairman Oldfield was asked.

"It is too early," he added, "to predict with certainty what the major issues will be in the Presidential election campaign next year. Much can happen during the next twelve months, enough to change the whole course of political events.

ISSUES SHAPE THEMSELVES

"The conventions of the two major political parties will give expression to issues, and the nominations the parties make will have much to do with emphasizing them, probably even more than the conventions themselves.

"But we have learned through long experience that issues have a habit of shaping themselves, and the most that conventions or candidates usually can do is to emphasize them."

"Yet you are familiar with the trend of Democratic thought," he was reminded. "If Democrats are not talking prohibition, what are they discussing as potential issues?"

"Regardless of what the other major or paramount issues may prove to be," he said, "the record of the party in power will be one.

"The voters will have opportunity to say at the polls whether they indorse a policy of tariff and other governmental favors for what we call 'big business,' at the expense of the consuming public as a whole and the agricultural class in particular, or whether they wish a return to the Jeffersonian policy of 'equal rights for all, special privileges for none.' We already are hearing an echo of this from the West, where the farmers have adopted the slogan, 'protection for all or protection for none.'

ATTACKS ADMINISTRATION

"If the Republican convention indorses the Harding-Coolidge administrations' record, which it will do, of course, that one act will throw a number of issues to the front; honesty in government, honest elections, the tariff, taxation, farm relief, flood relief and many other things, including claims of 'economy' and 'efficiency' which will not bear analysis, for it can be shown conclusively that the Coolidge administration has been neither economical nor efficient.

"The Harding-Coolidge administrations have not merely been inefficient in many things, but they have been disgraced by the worst corruption that ever has marked any administration since the founding of the government."

"And differences among Democrats over prohibition are reconcilable, in your opinion?"

"It is difficult to see how prohibition can well become an issue between the parties," Mr. Oldfield replied. "It never has been a party question, and with both parties divided among themselves on prohibition, it is difficult to see how either could make it an issue if it wished to do so.

"In some States the majority of one party is wet and in other it is dry. Prohibition is in the Constitution. It will stay there until two-thirds of the members of both houses of Congress and three-fourths of the States vote it out."

PRESIDENT OUT OF IT

"You don't believe, then, that the personal views of a nominee would be the issue?"

"The President has nothing to do with the question of wet or dry, and if it is to be an issue at all, it will be so in individual States and Congressional districts, for it is members of the House and Senate who, if anyone, will vote on any proposal to repeal the dry amendment.

"The President has nothing whatever to do with prohibition, except to see that the law is enforced.

"One thing on which the Democratic party will insist is an end to bureaucracy, the restoration of rule of the people themselves, and honest elections and honesty in government."

(An interview with Gov. Ritchie of Maryland will be presented next.)

JEALOUS OF ITS FIRE BRIGADE

Village Arrests Clerk Who Called Out-of-Town Department

BUFFALO, Sept. 27. (AP)—The village of Blasdell, a suburb of Buffalo, is jealous of its fire department.

A dairy office caught fire last night and the book-keeper, Henry Datler, tried to summon the Blasdell department, but found it had no telephone. In desperation he called the Lackawanna department, which responded.

After the fire had been extinguished the Blasdell police arrested Datler on a charge of turning in a false alarm, but this charge later was changed to malicious mischief. It is the contention of police that the book-keeper had no authority to summon the out-of-town company.

VOLSTEAD LAW CLAUSE UPSET

Omaha Federal Court Rules Procedure Illegal

Little-Used Section of Act Held Unconstitutional

"Personal Injunction" Bars Trial by Jury

OMAHA, Sept. 27. (AP)—That portion of the national prohibition law which permits a court to grant personal injunctions has been held unconstitutional by Federal Judge Woodrough, sitting here.

Judge Woodrough's ruling was made yesterday in answer to a petition which asked a personal injunction be granted against Fred Cunningham of Scotts Bluff, Neb. The petition charged Cunningham with five offenses against the prohibition laws, involving sale, transportation, possession and solicitation of orders for whisky.

The personal injunction, if granted, would have made it possible for a court to send Cunningham to jail for contempt if he at any time should be found selling or in possession of liquor.

HELD UNCONSTITUTIONAL

Judge Woodrough held that such an injunction would mean that Cunningham might be sent to jail without a jury trial, contrary to the Constitution.

The right of a trial by jury, the court ruled, is assured by the Constitution and "an injunction relating solely to the commission of personal acts and not affecting property is a deprivation of liberty in violation of the Constitution."

According to the opinion, "the defendant denies that any judge has the power to try him upon an accusation and asserts his immunity under Article III, Constitution of the United States, 'the trial of all crimes, except in cases of impeachment, shall be by jury.'

NO ROOM FOR DEBATE

"To my mind," the opinion continued, "the matter does not admit of argument or debate. If this defendant has a bad reputation as a bootlegger let the matter be inquired into, a charge formulated and a jury of his peers called together.

"But the bill in equity, though it is based upon a section of an act of Congress, calls upon the judge to do that thing which the Constitution forbids that any judge shall ever do: To try a person for crime and deprive him of his liberty without a jury.

"The bill should be dismissed, and it is so ordered."

LITTLE LIKELIHOOD OF APPEAL BEING TAKEN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27. (AP)—There is little likelihood that the government will appeal from the decision of Federal Judge Woodrough at Omaha holding that the personal injunction section of the Volstead Act is unconstitutional.

This provision has been resorted to in only rare instances and there never has been a test case as it carried to the Supreme Court. The general policy has been to proceed against individual bootleggers under other provisions carrying penalties upon conviction by a jury.

LEGION MEN GREETED BY EMMANUEL

Delegates Visit Palace and Chat With Italy's King; London Cheers Marchers

PISA (Italy) Sept. 27. (AP)—King Victor Emmanuel received a delegation of the American Legion headed by Commander Howard P. Savage at the Royal Palace here today. They conversed cordially for a while with the King, who spoke English easily and who was applauded by the Legionnaires.

After taking leave of the King they left the palace for an automobile tour of the city and then went to a municipal luncheon in their honor. Having heard that Donna Rachelle Mussolini had given birth to a son they sent the Premier their warm congratulations.

Chief Magistrate Buffastni after the luncheon paid tribute to the Legionnaires in the name of the city and the Italian war veterans.

LONDON, Sept. 27. (AP)—The people of London gave a wildly enthusiastic reception to a delegation of nearly 150 American Legion members from New York who marched through the streets this afternoon, causing a difficult traffic problem. Then the visitors marched to the Cenotaph in column, resplendent with red, white and blue ribbons, British and American flags and the marchers' bright costumes.

After placing a wreath on the Cenotaph the American veterans visited the tomb of the Unknown Warrior in Westminster Abbey.

MINER KILLS FAMILY AND TAKES LIFE

Note to Friend Indicates Slaying Had Been Agreed to by Wife

ELLENSBURG (Wash.) Sept. 27. (AP) A quadruple slaying with a possible suicide pact angle stirred the little mining town of Roslyn today.

William Gorman, 50 years of age, Roslyn coal miner, shot his two children, Irene, 13, and Billy, 11, drowned the family dog in a wash tub, slashed his wife's wrists, and then poisoned himself.

The tragedy was discovered when a letter containing $500 for funeral expenses and revealing the slaying plans, was received by Dan McKean, engineer of Mine No. 8 at Roslyn.

Joe Hovey, County Coroner, and Sheriff George Gray investigated and found the bodies of Gorman and his wife in their car in their garage and the children in bed.

No motive for the slaying was found by officers. The letter to McKean hinted that the crime had been planned by both Gorman and his wife.

Huge Inflow of Liquor Asserted

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 27. (AP)—Canadian rum runners have sent nineteen ships laden with liquor to the United States within the last y... according to M. J. Long, former wireless operator on the steamship Clackamas and now a Federal prohibition agent.

All but two of these ships, the Clackamas and the Bulko, Long says, have landed cargoes valued at millions of dollars. Both the Clackamas and the Bulko were captured here after having landed part of their cargoes at Newark, N. J. The Clackamas was seized last February and the Bulko about two weeks ago.

Long came here in an attempt to identify four members of the crew of the Bulko who were to have a hearing before a Federal Commissioner, but who failed to appear, forfeiting their bail for the second time since they were arrested on the 10th inst. Twelve other members of the crew, who jumped their bail after their first hearing, also are at liberty.

The liquor seized by customs officers when the Bulko arrived here was only about one-fourth of the original $2,000,000 cargo, Long told local authorities. The remainder, he said, was unloaded at Newark.

ANNULMENT AFFIRMED

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 27. (AP)—The freedom granted Alice Jones Alameda, from Joseph Alameda, San Joaquin county man, in annulment proceedings today was affirmed by the Third District Court of Appeal. The suit was brought by J. M. Jones, father of the bride, on the ground that his daughter was but 15 years of age when she eloped to Columbia, Tuolumne county, May 23, 1923, and married Alameda.

ICEMAN'S TRADE JUST BEGINNING

Survey Shows 60 Per Cent of Homes Unsupplied

Business Expansion Wonder of Modern Age

Electric Refrigeration Not Factor to Worry

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27. (Exclusive)—That competition is the life of trade has never been more conclusively demonstrated, perhaps, than in the case of the ice-manufacturing industry. The development of mechanical refrigeration to domestic use has within the last two or three years given ice manufacturers the kind of competition that worried many of them. They could see the day at hand when practically every home would have its own ice plant and the iceman would take a place among the relics of bygone ages, along with the dodo and the handloom.

But for the industry as a whole that competition has been merely a healthful stimulant, it is stated, and dates an era of unprecedented expansion in a business that already ranks ninth among the great industries of the United States.

Through their national association the manufacturers have been doing a deal of research and they have uncovered conditions and statistics that cheer them mightily. They know a lot more about their business and their prospects than they did before they were aroused to action by their new competitors.

CHANCE TO DOUBLE

For instance, despite the fact that the ice industry since 1850 has grown into a business having invested capital of $600,000,000 and annual sales of more than that amount, only 8 percent of the 27,000,000 homes in the United States use ice the year round and only 40 per cent buy ice all the time or during July and August. That leaves 60 per cent of the homes of the country that do not now use ice, which is a whale of a potential market for the manufacturers to develop.

There are now only 12,000,000 ice boxes in the 27,000,000 homes of the nation, but refrigerator manufacturers expect to sell 2,000,000 more during the present year, which will mean much new business for the iceman. Also it is not to be forgotten that at the present rate of increase in population almost 400,000 new families are added in the United States every year. These new families, being moderns, are almost all prospective ice consumers.

SELLING NEGLECTED

Because the demand for ice has grown and continues to grow steadily, says Leslie C. Smith, secretary of the National Association of Ice Industries, little attention has been given to merchandising methods, which did not include organized advertising until recently. Plants were operated locally and business grew through reinvestment of profits. Under these conditions there was no need of appealing to the public for capital to be used in expansion. Consequently the industry attracted little public attention.

"Now that ice, like other great businesses, is effecting consolidations for greater industrial stability and for better technique in operation and management," continues Mr. Smith, "the industry is being recognized as an essential public utility. Many small plants formerly owned and operated locally with little attention to modern methods of manufacturing and selling are being taken under the management of large operating organizations.

POSSIBILITIES IMMENSE

"Competition has stimulated the ice industry to a realization of its own future possibilities for use in home refrigeration. The standard of living is ever rising, which results in a use of ice growing constantly greater. The national dietary is changing, to furnish food suitable for those engaged in nervous rather than physical activity. The use of refrigerated food is said to have doubled within the last ten years. Fruit, vegetables and dairy products are making great demands upon ice. Good roads and automobiles mean rural customers. Soft drinks and ice cream, especially since prohibition, consume great quantities of our product. These, and other factors, total a market of great magnitude.

"Leaders in the industry are intent both upon reaching the untouched market strata of 17,000,000 homes not now using ice and upon educating the public to the advantages of using ice the year around. They have under way extensive national advertising and publicity campaigns of an educational nature. These are designed to reach approximately all urban homes in the United States with information on the advantages of an abundant supply of pure ice—protection for health, saving in food bills and increased comforts of living."

NEW FEATURES

Up-to-date manufacturers are said to be introducing many new features of service that are attractive to the housewife. Among them are special day-and-night delivery, regular delivery at uniform hours before noon, the scoring of blocks at the plant for improved appearance and to insure full weight, courteous and efficient deliverymen who are more highly trained and paid, and the use of canvas bags for carrying ice, to prevent soiling kitchen floors. Outside icing arrangements are being promoted in building circles and ice companies are selling refrigerators and maintaining repair service on them.

Per capita consumption of ice in the last ten years, between 1917 and 1927, is said to have increased from 480 to 1040 pounds annually. For 1926 the total ice consumption for the country was 59,700,000 tons and trade authorities estimate that by 1940 it will have reached 100,000,000 tons with a sales value of $450,000,000.

PROFITS INCREASE

Meanwhile, statistics compiled by financial organizations dealing in ice securities show, it is stated, that gross earnings are rising steadily. For 1922 gross earnings were 6.3 per cent more than in 1921; for 1923 the increase was 13.5 per cent; for 1924, 10.4 per cent, and for 1925, 13.6 per cent. The number of ice manufacturing plants has increased in the last twenty years from 2216 to 6500. The industry is fortunate, it is pointed out, in that it has little inventory and few credit extensions.

Why the ice manufacturers no longer fear the threatened competition of mechanical refrigeration in homes is explained by Mr. Smith, who says that this competition is absorbing less than one-fourth the annual increase in ice sales, or an annual volume of business estimated at 700,000 tons.

"The powerful advertising and publicity campaigns for the mechanical unit have done much to stimulate the ice industry," he adds. "By calling national attention to the need for home refrigeration they have given the icemen three to four customers for each one taken away."

The manufacture of ice as an industry began in this country as early as 1806, but it did not become of commercial importance until about 1880.

BREAD SALES IN BILLIONS

Baker Says Housewives Pay $1,617,960,000 Annually for Their Loaves

CHICAGO, Sept. 27. (AP)—Filling the American bread basket requires 12,240,000,000 loaves of bread annually, Henry Stude, president of the American Bakers' Association, estimated today. Mr. Stude was one of the speakers on today's program of the association's annual convention. Baking, he said, is one of the country's first six industries.

"The annual bakery bill of America's housewives is approximately $1,617,960,000," he said, "and commercial bakers supply 80 per cent of the bread consumed. Of the total bakery bill something like $700,000,000 goes for bread, rolls and coffee cake."

Built First Brick Business Block in City

Leaves Nine Children and Southland Relatives

PHOENIX, Sept. 27. (Exclusive)—Joseph A. R. Irvine, one of the founders of Phoenix, has died at his home in this city at the age of 69 years. He leaves his widow and nine children, resident in Phoenix and Tempe, Ariz., and in Sacramento, San Diego and Glendale, Cal. In addition are a number of half-brothers and sisters, most of them living in Southern California. Mr. Irvine was a native of New Brunswick. In 1868 he went with his father, Edward Irvine, to California, thence coming to Phoenix, where the elder acquired large property interests and erected, in 1879, the city's first brick business block. J. A. Irvine was a member of the first Arizona State Legislature and until two years ago, for several terms was a member of the Phoenix City Commission. For many years he had been a trustee of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

AGREEMENT ON BUILDINGS

PHOENIX, Sept. 27. (Exclusive)—Though with employment of different architects, decision has been reached by the County Supervisors and the members of the City Commission that the new Courthouse and City Hall, on the present courthouse block, shall be built as one unit, though with separate administrations and divided by a wall, with doors on each floor. Planning of the city's part of the joint structure will be by the architectural firm of Lescher & Mahoney of Phoenix, with about $980,000 to be expended out of a voted appropriation of $450,000. The county structure will cost $600,000, from a bond issue of $750,000.

BOND ISSUE FOUGHT

PHOENIX, Sept. 27. (Exclusive)—Suit has been filed by Arthur Luhrs, a heavy taxpayer, seeking to enjoin issuance of a municipal bond issue of $750,000 for reconstruction of the city street car system. Assertion is made in the complaint that the ordinance calling the bond election last April is defective and that the issuance of the bonds did not follow the terms of the ordinance. The bonds have been sold, but the purchasers will await a Supreme Court decision concerning the validity of the issue.

FIGHT IN PROSPECT FOR WAR MOTHERS

PROPOSED CHANGES IN LAWS OF ORGANIZATION FACE STRONG OPPOSITION

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 27. (AP)—Opposition to proposed changes in the national constitution of the American War Mothers' Organization gathered impetus today as the annual convention got under way.

With 500 delegates from more than thirty States present, leaders predicted a stubborn fight will develop over the question of changes in the organization's government.

The New Jersey delegation was expected to oppose a move whereby the tenure of office could be extended. National officers cannot succeed themselves now.

Under the New Jersey plan Mrs. Anna Shanahan, Jersey City, would be advanced from third vice-president to second vice-president. Providing a change in the constitution is made, Mrs. Carrie L. Root, Wray, Colo., will be permitted to run again for first vice-president.

SCHOONER WRECKAGE BROUGHT INTO PORT

LUNENBURG (N. S.) Sept. 27. (AP)—The mystery surrounding the fate of one of the four Lunenburg fishing vessels, lost this season with their combined crews of approximately eighty men, was lifted today when the fisheries-protection steamer Arras towed into this port schooner wreckage consisting of a main boom, main gaff, top mast halyard, blocks and pieces of sail. The wreckage was identified as having belonged to the Una Corkum. The Una Corkum last sailed with a crew of twenty-one in command of Capt. Wilfred Andrews. All were Nova Scotians.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27. (AP)—The Yanks handed the Athletics a 7-to-4 drubbing today before 12,000 fans, while Ruth and Gehrig each contributed a homer, the Babe poling out his fifty-seventh with the bases full in the sixth and Lou his forty-sixth with none on in the fourth. Ruth needs a homer in each of the three remaining games to break his 1921 record of fifty-nine. Hitting for the circuit with all the bases occupied has been a rare feat for Ruth. He had accomplished the feat six times previously, this was his third as a Yankee.

STARS AND INDIANS OPEN LAST WEEK'S PLAY TODAY

Killefer and his tribe of Indians arrive in Los Angeles this morning to open a series of games with the Hollywood Stars that will bring the 1927 Pacific Coast season to a close—and a disastrous one at that for the local fans. The Indians have third place cinched, but they also have a chance to hop into the runner-up position provided they take a good week against the Stars and the Seals lose a majority of their games to the Oaks. Having clinched the pennant last week. However, inasmuch as first place means as much as second place in this league, which does not offer any financial inducement for the clubs' final position in the standings, Killefer will probably give all the youngsters he has a chance to show their stuff in an effort to uncover some good talent for next year's race.

Oscar Vitt's Stars return home from San Francisco, where they took five out of seven from the Seals last week. The Stars haven't much chance of bettering or lowering their present position in the standings, which happens to be seventh place. The Stars also will give their rookies a chance to show their talent.

A double-header probably will be played Friday or Saturday to make up for yesterday's game, which was lost by the fact that the Indians were traveling.

Barrager Replaces John Fox at Center Berth

Trojans Look Bad Against Santa Clara Plays

BY BRAVEN DYER

Spectators who were able to successfully "crash" the gate at Bovard Field yesterday afternoon were treated to a number of unusual sights.

JESSE HIBBS.

The first was Jesse Hibbs, the behemothic tackle, functioning as a punter and getting away with it in splendid style.

The second was two complete teams running Santa Clara plays against the first and second varsity elevens.

The third was Nathan Barrager's installation at the center berth in place of John Fox.

There were other things to catch the eye, but these three will suffice for the time being.

Hibbs has more leg power than any of the so-called regular punters and it will not be at all surprising to see him do all the booting against Santa Clara Saturday. He clicks off sixty-yard spirals with gratifying regularity. Were it not for a trace of slowness in getting his kicks away Jess would probably be installed immediately as chief punter. This fault will disappear with constant work and Jess is getting just that these days.

FIRST REAL DRILL

U.S.C.'s kicking was terrible in the Occidental game. There was some excuse for this, however, as the punters had not worked behind a line at all this fall, it being impossible to polish up on all points in but nine

GIZZARD SQUEEZING

Here's Joe Stecher, the champeen, giving a first-class demonstration of the way in which he expects to subdue Lil' Dickie Daviscourt at the Olympic tonight. Note the look of agony upon Dickie's face.

STECHER DEFENDS TITLE

Exchanges Holds With Daviscourt in Feature Top Spot on Olympic Program Tonight

Joe Stecher, world's heavyweight mat champion, who still retains that title because the bell saved him from being crushed to death from headlocks two weeks ago, will crawl back into the ring again tonight at the Olympic against the same opponent who almost finished him at that time—Dick Daviscourt, the 225-pound Wichita (Kan.) cyclone.

In order to get Stecher to risk his title against Daviscourt again, Daro had to agree to give the champion nearly half of the gate receipts, while Daviscourt had to be content with 8 per cent as his end. He was willing to meet Stecher for nothing but $250 to cover his expenses so confident is he that he can dispose of the champion in a return bout.

LOU DARO

The big fellow's confidence has not lessened during the past week in which he has been training. He put one of his trainers on the hospital list with a jackknife scissor, the one hold besides the headlock he expects to use to uncrown the champion tonight.

Daviscourt has a pair of the strongest arms known in the mat game. He can get nearly as much power with them as Stecher can with his legs. He will not use them in applying straight headlocks as he did two weeks ago. Reverse headlocks will be in order tonight, according to the Wichita cyclone. Stecher dislikes this kind more than the straight ones, he discovered. The challenger can shake, twist and tear the champion's neck off bet-

RABBIT PUNCHES

By PAUL LOWRY

MAYBE it's a mere coincidence, but it looks funny anyhow. Lou Daro staged a mat seance between little Dickie Daviscourt and the champeen, Joe Stecher, a day or so after the local fight writers skipped out to Chicago, and on returning we find the same bill dished up for consumption this evening.

Watson might make something else of that, but offhand it looks as if Lou expects the boys to do penance by having a quorum on hand. The observers at the last show report that Dickie and Joe staged one of those hot-time-in-the-old-town-tonight affairs, so the seance this evening may turn out to be something of a rough-house treat to the returned journalists.

This is my last chirp on the Tunney-Dempsey fracas, which was settled in Chicago last Thursday night, definitely and for all time, and really is a note to Cliff Horne, who almost had me convinced that the referee and timekeeper robbed Dempsey.

I want Horne to read a paragraph in Section 6 of the Illinois rules, entitled "Downs,"

ILLINOIS BOXING BOARD FORMALLY BACKS ACTION

CHICAGO, Sept. 27. (AP)—The Illinois Athletic Commission in a formal statement today defended the action of the timekeepers and referee who officiated at the Dempsey-Tunney fight, declaring that the two timers and the referee acted in strict accordance with instructions they had received from the commission on the afternoon of the fight.

The commission's statement said that the wide discussion of the seventh round when Dempsey knocked down Tunney caused the statement to be issued, adding that the timers in starting the count and the referee in starting it over again when Dempsey did not retire to a neutral corner, as the first count was started, were acting on the commission's instructions.

Members of the commission said they had not received the protest that Dempsey and Leo P. Flynn, his manager, said was being forwarded and added that they did not expect to receive any protest.

JOHNNY HILL OUTCLASSES KRAMER TO WIN DECISION IN OLYMPIC TEN-ROUNDER

BY PAUL LOWRY

Johnny Hill, a good two-fisted little southpaw with youth as an endowment, won decisively from a veteran southpaw, Danny Kramer, in a ten-round main event at the Olympic last night.

The winner, a Filipino from Franck Churchill's bottomless bag of islanders, dropped Kramer twice and held the upper hand throughout the fight.

Hill plunked Danny on the canvas with a one-two to the chin in the opening round, and it looked for a few minutes as if the cash customers would start going home early.

SECOND KNOCKDOWN

But Danny came back with stinging right hooks to the Filipino's chin and slashing lefts to the stomach and it was not until the eighth that the brown boy uncorked another knockdown. This resulted from a right-hand uppercut to the chin.

Hill was unloading quite a fusillade of wallops to the stomach during the early rounds, but Referee Harry Lee cautioned him to keep his punches above board, and thereafter the visitor, who was making his first start here, appeared scared to drive for any spot but the head.

Kramer put up a good fight, but the veteran finds it hard to keep pace with the younger fellows who have speed as well as noodle and punch.

NEWCOMER WINS

In the semi-wind-up of eight rounds Gilbert Attell, a straight puncher with a right-arm jolt that staggered Herman Auerbach ever and anon, walked off with the verdict. Auerbach's swings failed to connect until the closing rounds, and then it was too late to make up the lost ground.

Michael Durande was awarded a four-round decision over Frankie Tierney that was so un-

LANDIS APPROVES LIST OF WORLD SERIES ELIGIBLES

NEW YORK, Sept. 27. (AP)—Names of the twenty-seven players on whom the New York Yankees will rely in the world series were announced today in an official list approved by Commissioner K. M. Landis. Eligibility lists were announced also for the Pittsburgh Pirates and St. Louis Cardinals, leading contenders in the National League.

The Yankee roster for the series showed Miller Huggins will rely on nine men to carry the pitching burden, eight hurlers were named by the Pirates and ten by the Cards. The Cardinal list, like that of the Yankees, totaled twenty-seven and the

BROADCASTING FOR HEINZ

Tune in, folks, and listen to Mr. George Herman Ruth tell the world that he slammed out his fifty-seventh variety home run of the season yesterday. The Bambino has three more games left in which to break his home-run record of fifty-nine that he established in 1921. To have to hit three home runs in three games is a gigantic task, but Ruth specializes in those kind of jobs—and home runs are the best things he hits.

Bucs Cop From Chicago in 2-1 Game

CHICAGO, Sept. 27. (AP)—Pittsburgh retained its two-game margin over the St. Louis Cardinals today by taking the final game of the series from the Cubs, 2 to 1, making a clean sweep of the four-game series.

RAY KREMER

It was the final game of the National League season in Chicago.

George Grantham's home run smash in the fifth inning following a single by Traynor, gave the league leaders the victory.

Chicago jumped into the lead in the third inning when Adams walked, a single by English and Heathcote's sacrifice fly produced a run.

Lee Meadows, who started for the Pirates, was received in the fourth inning after Wilson had led off with a single and Hill, who succeeded him, was yanked in the sixth inning when the Pirate pitcher broke his glasses. Carlson held the visitors to seven hits, only three of which came in one frame. The Cubs touched Mea-

CINCINNATI, Sept. 27. (AP)—Grover Alexander held the Cincinnati Reds to two paltry bingles and a three-base hit while his team-mates plyed the willow to defeat the Reds 4 to 1 and make the Cardinals' wins two straight in the series.

Prisch ran his stolen bases to forty-nine by taking two today and Hafey's homer swept over the left-field wall to make the game spicy.

Bottomley's double to right in the fourth with Prisch on second scored the Red Birds' first run and Schulte broke a 1-to-1 score in the seventh with a double that scored Toporcer.

Hafey made sure of things in the eighth when he poled the long one after Douthit had singled. Donohue got in a worse jam in the eighth, but pulled through safely. Bottomley singled and Orsatti forced him. Orsatti stole second and Toporcer

TWO MORE VICTORIES AND BUCS CAN'T HELP BUT WIN

NEW YORK, Sept. 27. (AP)—Pittsburgh was breezing along at full speed for the National pennant goal today, holding the two-game advantage on the second-place Cardinals by defeating the Cubs for a complete sweep of the four-game series. St. Louis stayed up close to the leaders by downing the Reds again. The Giants tripped up the Phillies, but they have only a slight mathematical opportunity of coming through o ntop of the heap.

Chicago	85	67	.559	4

The Pirates may clinch the flag by winning two out of three games left to be played with the Reds in the event the Cardinals triumph in three contests left on their schedule. The standing then would be:

Official Check-up Shows That 145,000 Fans Paid $2,658,660 to See Title Fight

CHAMPION MADE FORTUNE IN GO

Tunney Paid Off $990,000 for Meeting Jack

Gene Earned $7700 While Down in Seventh

Dempsey Received $437,000 for Comeback Try

BY EDWARD BURNS

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—Mabel G. Reinecke, collector of internal revenue, and the auditing firm of Overlock, Burke & Co. yesterday completed the official check-up of attendance figures and receipts of the Tunney-Dempsey fight.

TEX RICKARD

It was revealed, among other things, that Champion Gene received $7700 during the fourteen seconds in the seventh round he was sitting in the resin listening to the birdies sing. This amount, it was pointed out, is more than four times the average annual income of the 40,000,000 income earners in the United States.

After Gene arose from the resin he got on his bicycle for an uninterrupted ride of one minute and a half. On the basis of the official figures, Gene got $49,500 for that bicycle ride.

TUNNEY PAID $990,000

The foregoing figures are compiled on the official announcement of Tunney's purse, which was $90,000 more than the total announced after the fight. Gene got $990,000 for his end. The same source revealed that Jack Dempsey got $12,500 less than the originally announced amount. Jack's end was $437,500.

The official receipts, according to the financial official recapitulation, were $2,658,660 an dthe total attendance a few over 145,000.

It was again explained by Mrs. Reinecke that the figures, about which the East has been making so much ado, placing the attendance at 102,456, was based upon incomplete data dispatched at 7 o'clock the night of the fight.

Although Dempsey on Sunday wired the Illinois Athletic Commissioners that he and his manager-trainer, Leo P. Flynn, would have a formal protest in their hands by Tuesday morning, the protest did not arrive.

ANSWERS CHARGE ANYWAY

The omission, however, did not stump Chairman John C. Righeimer, who issued an answer to the phantom protest though he did not receive it. Mr. Righeimer reviewed the commission rules which he contended sustained the officials of the fight in allowing Tunney fourteen seconds on the floor instead of the ten seconds provided in the Marquis of Queensberry rules.

Tunney arrived home in New York today and announced he would stay in town for ten days before going to the Maine woods on a hiking expedition. He said he planned to attend several world series baseball games before departing.

Gene, according to his plans, will not fight before next fall. He will not go into vaudeville, but may appear in one motion picture, he said.

The champion discussed the fight and his apparent lack of popularity. In commenting on the latter he said the condition didn't worry him in the least because he didn't think the public or the prize-fight racketeers ever would be able to understand the various phases of his character.

popular that the fans heaved programs and newspapers into the ring to express their displeasure at Steve Nyland's decision.

Virgil Chandler copped the opening bout by a knockout in the second round over Joe Flores.

Johnny Cruz and Roy McIntyre fought four rounds to a draw in the other preliminary.

The crowd was only fair. Hill weighed 127 pounds for the main event and Kramer 125 3-4 pounds.

KERWIN BACK FROM EAST TO PLAN SCRAP

Back from the big fight at Chicago, Frank Kerwin breezed into town yesterday to direct the affairs of the coming Dundee-Hudkins title fight at Wrigley Field the night of October 29. Kerwin was not greatly impressed by Tunney's victory, but showed plenty of enthusiasm concerning the coming welterweight title scrap.

Just before departing for the Coast, Kerwin had a talk with Dundee and Max Waxman, his manager. While both claim the title will not change hands, Kerwin stated that they are showing plenty of concern.

GENE TUNNEY TELLS HOW IT FELT TO MEET FIRST KNOCKDOWN CRISIS

BY EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Sept. 27. (AP)—The crisis Gene Tunney expected to face sooner or later in his ring career—coming up from the floor, dazed and wobbly at the count of nine—taught the heavyweight champion something new about psychology.

GENE TUNNEY

On his homecoming today from the Soldier Field battleground, Gene told how for several years he had planned to meet the situation that confronted him when Jack Dempsey floored him in the seventh round of the spectacle on the Chicago lake front.

Outside on Forty-second street, more than 1000 fans yelled for a sight of the champion who rose from the resin dust to pound Dempsey into submission for the second time. They had met Tunney as he came into Grand Central Station from Cleveland, rushed the guards, closed in to shake his hand, and had pursued the big marine through an underground passage to a hotel lobby and thence to the front of Manager Billy Gibson's offices, now they wanted a speech.

GREETS SCRIBES

Unmindful of the racket outside, Gene sat on the top of the same desk, in the same position in which he greeted friends and scribes after stripping Dempsey of the title at Philadelphia last fall. His mind was full of psychology and the reaction he had planned for the crisis—a reaction that never came.

"Ever since I entered the professional ring in 1919, I have known that sooner or later I must be knocked down. I also knew that when that happened I must get up, come on, and win my fight despite the handicap.

"I had worked out two lines of action. The first was to get up and camouflage my real condition by letting go a right-hand punch with everything behind it—including a prayer that it landed. The second was to get up and dive into a clinch, holding on desperately no matter how the referee tried to break us, and if necessary to go down again for another nine count from whatever punch came next. If my head then was not clear I planned to take still another count and so on until I regained my senses.

"But when I actually found myself down I realized my plans were foolish. I couldn't gamble with my title. My best chance was to make Dempsey follow me and I thought: 'He can't catch me.'

BEST AGAINST SLAMMERS

"Dempsey always has had trouble hitting a man who was going away from him. His greatest successes have been scored against men who carried the fight to him, trying to outslam the master slammer at his own game.

"They say that I ran away from Dempsey. You don't realize that I could have traveled twice as fast if I had wanted and if I had been hurt just a bit more. Instead I regulated my pace, putting on steam when I thought it necessary, and slowing enough to let Jack catch up whenever I thought he would come close enough for a stiff counter-wallop.

"My head was clearer right then than at any moment from the time I reached Chicago three weeks earlier. All the cobwebs left in my brain by the heat at Lake Villa and the excitement of the day, were swept away by that series of punches to the head in the seventh round.

"Those counters slowed Dempsey up even in the seventh. Two in particular I remember, both solid smashes to the chin. As they landed I could almost see Dempsey losing his advantage and thinking to himself: 'I'd better watch out myself or this fellow will knock me out.'

AGAIN MASTER

"Then he beckoned 'come on and fight,' admitting his own inability to control the situation. It certainly was gratifying to think that again I was master even though I had been on the floor only seconds before."

Gene smiled at the recollection and then explained how the first principles of "situation mastery" had been pounded into him by one of his early fistic tutors.

"I've forgotten his name," Gene said, "but his teaching was this: 'If you can be master of every situation even when you are being licked, you'll be great. Know when to box, when to slug, when to protect yourself at all costs, and then box enough and slug enough to keep things under control even when you are being outboxed and outslugged.'"

Tunney said he was startled in viewing the motion pictures of the fight to realize that Dempsey landed six smashes on his chin before the crash in the seventh round. Gene said he felt the first three only and that his first impression as his brain cleared was:

"Gosh, but this floor is comfortable."

Referring to the "long-count" controversy, Gene said the referee warned both him and Dempsey on the knockdown rules just before the first bell.

"The referee, Dave Barry, called us both 'boys,'" Tunney said, "and the last thing he said to us was: 'In case either of you boys score a knockdown, the boy who does goes immediately to a neutral corner or I won't count.'"

The champion, after ten days in New York during which he plans to see two world series games, will leave for a few weeks in the Maine woods. He does not expect to fight again until next fall.

COLTON TROPHY RACE ON SUNDAY CALENDAR

The Colton trophy race, a three-lap dash for the fastest cars on the track, will open the seven-race automobile speed program Sunday at the Colton track. Promoters C. C. Knolter and Johnny Thiele announced yesterday that a trophy will be given the winning driver. A roadster race is also scheduled and it will precede the twenty-five-lap main event.

Charley Woods and Albert Ford, who are handling reconstruction work on the half-mile track, report that great progress is being made and that the oval will be ready for the drivers to try out Friday.

AUTO RACES PLANNED BY BANNING POST

Arrangements were completed by the Banning American Legion post last night for a series of auto races, featuring the greatest drivers in the country on Armistice Day. The committee in charge announced that seven races ranging from two to forty laps would complete the program. It was positively also stated that Gilbert Rowland, one of the foremost movie stars of Hollywood would start the main event.

Gilbert Rowland stated that he would be only too pleased to be the honored guest for the Banning American Legion post. Several other features will make up the celebration that is expected to be the greatest in the history of Banning.

CALTECH TO MEET REDLANDS SATURDAY

REDLANDS, Sept. 27.—The University of Redlands football team will open the season on Saturday with a game at Pasadena with Caltech. The Engineers are doped to win by virtue of the fact that they won handily last year, but it may be that the green team that the Redlands coaches are developing will do better than expected. For the backfield they have Niedermeyer and Rowe for quarters, Loper and Davis for full, Fox, Hawkes, Curtis and Thomerson for halves. For ends there are Lenhart from last year's team, and Greenfield and Montague, good freshman material last year. Bunch and Price are working at center, with the three, Smith, Dargent and Cook, for the line.

MERCURY SOCCER TEAM HUNTS NEW PLAYERS

Seeking to fill up holes left in last year's championship team and to bolster the line-up of his new junior squad, Soccer Football Commissioner Al Milford of the Los Angeles Athletic Club, has sent out the call for new material for the Mercury squads. The team is minus the services of eight of last year's flag-winning aggregation.

The opening of the soccer league is only one week distant and Milford wishes to fill up these gaps as quickly as possible to enable him to iron out any kinks in team play as quickly as possible. Players seeking to affiliate with any club team are asked to report to Milford or Team Manager Oscar Kozma, Wednesday evening in the L.A.A.C. gymnasium for a tryout.

DEMPSEY THREATENS TO KNOCK TUNNEY OUT IN NEXT BATTLE

NEW YORK, Sept. 27. (AP)—Jack Dempsey came out tonight with a flat denial of Gene Tunney's claim regarding final instructions from Referee Dave Barry in the championship bout at Chicago.

"I received no warning or instructions about retreating to a neutral corner in the event of a knockdown," Dempsey told newspaper men. "I feel that I lost the decision through the fault of a referee who was not favorable to me. I knocked Tunney out and I can do it again. I want another match with him and I'm going to do my best to get it."

Dempsey repeated that he would make no protest of any kind but that his manager, Leo P. Flynn, would have a statement ready tomorrow that would throw a new angle on last-minute developments before the fighters climbed into the ring. Flynn's statement, Dempsey declared, would be in the form of a formal protest.

The former champion said there had been no break with Flynn.

"Leo's contract expired with the Chicago fight," Jack said. "He will handle me in my next fight under a new contract."

Regarding Tunney's ring prowess, Dempsey had nothing but praise.

"Gene is a much better fighter than he is given credit for being. He's a better fighter than Jack Sharkey because he hits straighter and is more clever. I don't feel that I fought as well against Tunney as I did against Sharkey, however. I just couldn't seem to get going. I wasn't hurt much, at least not enough so that I didn't know what was going on."

The Manassa Mauler said he would keep in condition, realizing that his future in the game depended entirely on his ability to keep active.

TENNIS STARS ASSEMBLE

Dutch Women's Champion Leads Galaxy of Lights to Attend Pacific Southwest Matches

Not only a collection of some of the more famous of national tennis stars, but a variety of nationalities will feature the approaching Pacific Southwest tennis championships which open at the Los Angeles Tennis Club, Hollywood, Monday.

Already the women's Dutch champion, Miss Kea Bouman, has arrived in this city and enjoyed several stiff workouts on the cement courts at the club, while Big Bill Tilden, once kingpin of all players and six times national champion, was scheduled to arrive here either yesterday or today.

Such a galaxy of stars has never before competed in this city at one time. Southern fans will have ample opportunity in the one week of the titular event to witness Tilden and Little Bill Johnston, American Davis Cup veterans, and Francis Hunter, doubles mate of Tilden; Manuel Alonso, Spanish cup star; Jean Washer, Belgium champion; Kea Bouman, Dutch champion, and Molla Mallory, seven times national women's champion.

Southland and Los Angeles city players will be given one chance in a million when the locals face these invading internationally famous court wizards during the week. Chief interest in local talent will be centered about youthful Johnny Doeg, 19-year-old Santa Monican, former junior national champion, and youngest member of the American Davis Cup team. Ben Gorchakoff, national collegiate finalist, of Occidental; Cliff Herd, club president; Tom Bundy, ex-champion; Norval Craig and other prominent Southern racketers will rally toward the side of Doeg in an effort to stave off invading talent.

From the north will come Gerald Stratford, James Davies, Ray Casey and Neil Brown, a quartet of invaders that have proven the masters of locals during the summer to annex the Southland, city and county championships.

Miss Midge Gladman, newly crowned national junior champion, another product of Santa Monica courts, will make her first appearance since her return from the East in the women's titular event where Mrs. May Sutton Bundy, Kea Bouman, Louise McFarland, Marion Williams and Gladys Patz are among the leading entries.

BUD TEACHOUT TO BE TRAINER AT OXY

Bud Teachout, erstwhile southpaw twirler of the Hollywood Stars of the Coast League, has deserted the diamond for a time to return to his alma mater, Occidental College, as football trainer, succeeding Bill Anderson, who is assistant gridiron mentor this season for the Tigers.

HARVARD LACKS QUARTERBACK WITH VETERANS ON PROBATION

CAMBRIDGE (Mass.) Sept. 27. (AP) Harvard's football army, facing one of the stiffest schedules in the history of the university, finds itself on the eve of the opening with only young subalterns to lead its forces. With prospects of generally better material than last year for the line and ball carriers, the problem of developing a quarterback still is apparently unsolved.

Eliot Putnam, the pilot of 1926, is on probation, as is "Shorty" Crawford. Bill Wetmore, captain and quarterback of the freshmen last year, is just getting out for light practice with no prospect that he will be able to play this year because of a serious leg injury. Head Coach Arnold Horween, former Crimson captain, who is directing the squad for the second year, must find his field general among Dana Kelly, Howie Burns, Bill Jones and Gordon Brown, all light and inexperienced.

The opening game [illegible] with Vermont appears to be the only one on the Crimson schedule which will not [illegible] powers. Purdue, Holy Cross, Dartmouth, Harvard, Pennsylvania, Brown and Yale make up the rest of the formidable [illegible].

Five good ends are available, including four with varsity experience. All probably will [illegible] on Saturday. Capt. Charlie Brickley, Tim Clarke appear certain to tackle berths in the [illegible] outstanding material. Turner, hero of the Yale game [illegible] years ago, will play [illegible] pered by scholastic difficulties [illegible] year. Five good ends are available, including four with varsity experience. All probably will show their wares on Saturday. Capt. Charlie Pratt and Tim Clarke appear certain of the tackle berths in the absence of the outstanding material. Dan Hogan is back at guard with Jack Parkinson, Ralph Stewart and George Shapiro fighting for the other place. Jim Turner, hero of the Yale game two years ago, will play center unhampered by scholastic difficulties this year. His reliefs will be Dudley Bell of last year's team and Art Ripley from the freshmen.

ONE ORDER FOR TWO MILLION RAZORS FROM ENGLAND

Britishers Prove They Know What's What in Razors.

CROSS SEAS FOR EVER-READY

LONDON, England.—One of the largest single orders ever placed for razors or blades has been sent to America. This order calls for a shipment of two million Ever-Ready Razors to England.

This order is most significant when it is remembered that England—especially Sheffield—has been the world center for fine cutlery for generations.

Americans can be justly proud that smartly turned-out Englishmen send to the United States for Ever-Ready Razors and Blades.

PRESIDENT GIVES REASONS

In a recent interview, the English director of the American Safety Razor Corporation told why the English are so partial to Ever-Ready.

"You must remember," he said, "that the Englishman pays especial attention to personal appearance in terms of continuous social activities. Not infrequently he shaves as a day so that his face may be absolutely clean at all times.

NO SCRAPES—EVER

"Shaving as often as this, he must have a blade which does not scrape—otherwise his skin would quickly get very tender. He finds that Ever-Ready has an edge so exceptionally keen that it takes off every hair right at the base. He doesn't have to go over his face at once with this exceptional blade. And it never scratches, scrapes, or pulls.

"As a matter of fact, he can actually shave less frequently with an Ever-Ready because it doesn't leave any quick-growing fuss behind it.

THE SECRET OF THE STEEL

"It took us years of experimenting and scientific study to achieve a edge with this miraculous keenness. Our metallurgists were not satisfied until they forged a steel with just the proper temper to take a perfect shaving edge. The steel we use in Ever-Ready Blades is absolutely controlled and never varies down to the smallest fractional variation."

UNDER THE MICROSCOPE

"You would be positively amazed if you compared different blades under the microscope. The edge of the new-process Ever-Ready is as straight as a die—not a single nick in it—not a single valley or depression. If you could see the saw-like edges of some blades, you would appreciate what a gift to humanity this inflexibly straight edge is. You would understand why some blades tear into the skin while an Ever-Ready glides over it with ball bearing smoothness.

TRIPLE-TESTED PERFECT EDGE

"You see these blades. They are tested three times before they are packaged. A bad blade simply cannot get by. People used to think that bad blades were due to unnecessary deficiency in blade making. They thought occasional bad blades had to be. But our unique control has absolutely eliminated the bad blade as a factor in shaving. Ever-Ready Blades run from perfect to the package."

Newspaper Attacks Shadowy Salesmen

COLUMBUS, Ohio.—Starting a campaign for "clean" selling and better salesmen, the Columbus Dispatch has placed in the business office a large mirror which every salesman must see as he goes out in the morning.

Above the mirror is a sign with the following statement: Your appearance will have either a favorable or an unfavorable reaction on every prospect you meet today. Look yourself over.

Selling organizations wishing to convey the same message to their men in a subtle fashion are provided their men with Ever-Ready Challenge Outfits. The suggestion is appreciated—and so is the Challenge Outfit.

Russian Badgers Taken by Storm

Badgers, badgers, badgers—thousands of them are captured in Russia every year to make the shaving shave pleasant for Americans. The fur of thousands of these animals is brought over to America every year to make Ever-Ready Brushes.

One important process in handling the bristles is sterilizing them. As the brushes are in use around—touching the cheeks every morning, they must be safe and clean as a surgeon's instrument. The latest approved sterilizing machines are employed for Ever-Ready Brushes so that each brush leaves the factory absolutely sterilized and guaranteed sanitary.

The bristles of Ever-Ready Brushes are held in a vise-like grip in a base of vulcanized rubber. They can't come out. In this way Ever-Ready Brushes are actually better than imported ones—for in the latter, the cement base soon loosens under hot water and the bristles do not stay in.

Ever-Ready Razor and 2 Blades Free!

10 Singing Shaves free to introduce the greatest edge in the history of blade making

THE new Ever-Ready is a vastly superior blade. If it were not, the offer we are making would be financially impossible. No matter what razor you are using we can prove to you that the new Ever-Ready Blades represent the last word in shaving ease and luxury.

© A.S.R.C. 1927

We challenge any other blade to shave as well as the new Ever-Ready. To the great army of men who for years have been enjoying the Ever-Ready Razor and Ever-Ready Blades, this announcement of our new blade with its wonderful shaving qualities is naturally interesting.

For users of razors other than Ever-Ready—we make it doubly easy to try the new Ever-Ready Blades. It would be unfair to ask you to buy a razor to make this test. Just buy a package of 10 Ever-Ready Blades, no matter what razor you now use. Without cost to you, we'll supply the razor—a handsome new triple-nickeled self-adjusting Ever-Ready Razor with two extra blades. If we do not prove our case, the test costs you nothing.

Our challenge is the boldest and most fearless to which a razor manufacturer could subject his product. At the same time, it is the easiest and fairest to the shaver, because you don't pay if we don't prove.

CHALLENGE OFFER

For a period of two weeks, your dealer will sell you a package of 10 of the new Ever-Ready Blades for 69c.

With it, he will give you the finest standard Ever-Ready Razor, and 2 additional new Ever-Ready Blades, FREE. Some people hesitate to return merchandise after they have opened a package; for this reason we have added these two gratis blades so that you will not hesitate to use them first, to prove the superiority of our product.

Then, if in your opinion, we have not proven our case, return the package of 10 blades intact and get the entire purchase price back.

In towns where we have run this remarkable offer, we have converted hundreds and hundreds of men who had been using another brand of razor for years past. These men were so in the habit of buying blades to fit their old razor that it was hard to get them to try a new razor through an out-and-out purchase. Year in and year out these men had been accepting poor blades and poor shaves as a matter of habit because they "never knew that self-shaving could be any better than that which they had experienced". They accepted the Challenge Outfit and convinced themselves.

You, too, may think you are satisfied with your present razor and blades. You, too, may be putting up with bad shaves from force of habit because you imagine you are shaving with the best.

It is just such men as you that we hope to interest in this offer, because we know that we can prove our case 100 per cent. After all, if you don't agree with us, we pay for the trial.

As this challenge offer is for a limited period, take advantage of it at once—now—while you think of it. You will gain a new conception of clean, quick self-shaving.

Southern Conference Elevens in Important Games Saturday; Pomona Lays Off

BRUINS TACKLE FRESNO ELEVEN

Occidental Hopes to Repeat Over Arizona

Redlands and Caltech Engage in Battle

Whittier Stages Opener With La Verne

Most of the Southern California Conference teams go into action this week-end and after the results come trickling in fans ought to know a lot more about who's who and why. Five games are billed with Pomona the only member not slated to play.

GEORGE W. PHILBROOK

The Bruins of U.C.L.A. entertain the Fresno State outfit at Moore Field, with indications pointing to a victory for Bill Spaulding's boys. This Fresno club lost to Stanford's reserves, 33 to 0, last week and should be good enough to make the Bruins get up and hustle. The rivals did not meet last year.

Albert Exendine takes his Occidental athletes to Tucson for a game with Arizona U. The Tigers have recovered from the battering they received in the U.S.C. struggle and with a bit of luck may be able to repeat their 9-to-7 victory of last year over the Sagebrushers.

Redlands and Caltech tangle in a bona fide conference game at Pasadena, with odds very much in favor of the Engineers. For Stanton's team thumped out a 30-to-9 victory a year ago and ought to repeat this time, although perhaps by a less impressive score. Redlands started practice a full week after other Southern California teams and in addition is none too well stocked with veterans.

La Vern and Whittier ought to have a real scrap at Whittier, both teams finding no difficulty in recalling last year's scoreless tie. The Leopards certainly upset the dope at that time and the Whittier boys will be watching for them this Saturday. Coach Philbrook hopes to get off to a good start and with Capt. Oak Pendleton apparently in rare form there seems to be a strong likelihood of the new mentor seeing his wish fulfilled.

San Diego State plays a nonconference game with California Christian College, the encounter being scheduled for the border town. Last year San Diego won, 21 to 16, and with many veterans returning Coach Peterson may increase the margin this time.

CALLAGHAN HANGS UP GREAT RECORD

Marty Callaghan, Seattle outfielder, has made but one error this season in 165 games. He has accepted 412 chances. Callaghan established a world record when he played through 153 successive errorless games. Callaghan is also one of the top-notch batters of the league, with an average of .341. He has scored more than 100 runs and has made more than 200 safe hits. Callaghan appears with Wade Killefer's Seattle Indians at Wrigley Field in the closing series of the 1927 baseball season.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27. (AP)—Humbert Fugazy, metropolitan promoting rival of Tex Rickard, was suspended indefinitely today by the State Athletic Commissioner for alleged failure to return $2500 forfeit money to Charles Cardio, manager of Red Chapman, a Boston featherweight.

YOURS TRULY

Rogers Hornsby — Ty Cobb

Dear Ty:

I have to laugh when I read all these expert opinions on the world's series because you and I know mighty well what the real trick is in a big championship in seven games.

It doesn't make much difference how the teams compare and what the chances are of Ruth and Gehrig hitting home runs. What we think about the pitching may be all guess work any time. The figures on the season won't amount to a rap when these two clubs get against each other on the field.

The club that can be easy enough in its mind to play the every-day baseball will be the winner, and that, to my mind, is all there is to it. You and I know that a world's series ball game is no different from one played before a small crowd in July but, we also know how hard it is to make the gang believe that. The young fellows read so much about themselves in the newspapers that they get to believing it and try too hard to live up to what they think is a reputation. In doing that they get all tightened up in the minds as well as in their muscles. The upshot of it is that both sides are trying to make something hard out of something that is really no different from what they have been doing all season.

Not one of the clubs that have had a chance for a month is any novice in the world's series. The Pirates, Cardinals, Giants and Yanks all have had plenty of experience.

The way I personally feel about it is that some National League club is going to knock off the Yanks in a surprising way.

This thing of the Yanks having two or three weeks in which to let down and take it easy is not going to be any advantage to them. To tell the truth I believe that the club in the middle of a hot driving fight right up to the last minute will keep up their momentum and play right on through the series on their toes.

The National League champion won't have a chance to let down and take it easy.

If you will remember the same thing came up back in 1914 when the Braves fought their way through. The Athletics had won easily and it must have been a much better ball club, according to what everybody tells me. Just the same the Braves, still up on their toes went right on through and won the series in four straight games. That busted up all the figures, the comparative dope and everything.

The same thing is liable to happen this fall. Take it from me, though, the club that plays the most natural is going to be the winner. That's the way we all feel about it.

Yours truly,

which he did not spring on me in quoting the code to explain the duties of the timekeeper. Here it is, and I think it covers very clearly the disputed count:

"When a contestant is 'down' his opponent shall retire to the farthest corner and remain there until the count is completed. Should he fail to do so the referee may cease counting until he has so retired."

How about it, Cliff?

Who would you consider football's greatest coaching genius? The late Percy Haughton? Alonzo Stagg? Fielding Yost? The late Andy Smith? Gil Dobie? Bill Roper? or any of several other great teachers?

Nope, you're all wrong in the estimation of bald-headed Knute Rockne.

He says we have the real genius of the game here on the Coast.

And it's none other than old Pop Warner of Stanford. Knute says he's not only the genius, but the dean among coaches, and his hat is off to him.

DAVISCOURT IN TITLE MAT GO

ter with this hold. The hold not only punishes, but it also tires the receiver. Although the Wichita bone-buster used the reverse headlock only three times on Stecher in their last encounter, it was enough to give the champion a cauliflower ear, his first in the sixteen years he has been wrestling, and weaken him to such an extent he was ready to drop when the bell ended the bout.

There is little doubt but tonight's fracas will be twice as rough and tough as the last one. His showing against the champion has tended to place a lot of confidence in Daviscourt. He will be the real cyclone of the mat against Stecher and the champion will need more than a storm-cellar to keep clear.

The two other bouts on the same card will also be real battles. Pete Sauer and Hassan Muhamed clash in the special. Very little is being said about or by Sauer, but he is known to have been receiving expert instruction from top-notchers during the past two weeks.

Vic Russell, the sailor boy who tackles Russell Vis of the Los Angeles Athletic Club in the opener, is said to have been after a bout with the former world's amateur welterweight champion for the past three years. Vic is the navy champion. He claims Vis ran out of a bout with him in 1924.

OXY FROSH IN FIRST GAME NEXT SATURDAY

Coach Eddie Kienholz's freshman football team at Occidental will open its 1927 gridiron season Saturday when the Tigers clash with the Santa Ana Junior College varsity at Patterson Field.

Several weaknesses on the frosh eleven were found in practice scrimmages last Thursday and Friday afternoons at Patterson Field. Chief among these is a severe case of early-season greenness, greatly augmented by the fact that few of the members of the team have played together before, while many have had little, if any, football experience.

FIGHT FILMS TO GO ABROAD

LONDON, Sept. 27. (AP)—A European motion-picture company today received a cable from New York that all difficulties in the way of transporting the Tunney-Dempsey fight films had been overcome and the film is now on its way to London, where it will be shown on October 10.

Bear Backfield to See Action

BERKELEY, Sept. 27. (Exclusive)—Tied down with injuries on either side and faced with possibly the weakest opponent of this year's schedule on Saturday afternoon in Nevada, Coach Clarence (Nibs) Price, in tonight's practice of the University of California football varsity, indicated that his large aggregation of backfield stars will see service in ample measure this week-end.

Contemplating a stiff fight in the Santa Clara game and being given the same by Adam Walsh's fighting Broncbos, Nibs used hardly a fourth of his total ball-carrying strength. Three complete sets of Backfield men and more sat on the side lines in bitter anticipation that was never satisfied.

A few of the ball-carriers given considerable attention his evening as likely participants in Saturday's fuss were Frank (Red) Gill, a letter man; Paul Perrin, likewise a letter man, and one of the heroes of the 1925 Stanford-California big game; Harold Breckenridge, halfback; Harry Bruno, Leland Rice, 1926 frosh halfbacks; Charles Schmidt and Charles von Tagen, both of whom are credited with fine showings in practice. With injuries flocking down upon the Bears like bills at the first of the month, Nibs is offering up nightly thanks for his overabundance of backfield substitutes, although they are sadly lacking for the line.

singled. They tried a double steal and Orsatti was safe back at third when Dressen dropped Donohue's throw and Toporcer made second. Schulte walked to fill the bases. There were two down and Maranville's fly finished the inning.

The Cardinals took eleven hits from Donohue.

Before the game the Cardinals, optimistic over the results of the season, held a meeting and cut their season's baseball money based upon two ifs—if they win the pennant and if they finish second. Score:

CHAMPIONSHIP BOUT AT HOLLYWOOD A. C.

Manual Trevino, Mexican holder of the Coast amateur flyweight championship, and Harry Abajian will scrap the semi-wind-up on the Hollywood Athletic Club boxing "smoker" program, October 5, it was announced yesterday by Bob Howard, athletic director.

These battlers have fought several times and in the last meeting Abajian gave Trevino one of the toughest fights he has ever had.

Their bout will support a main event which will feature Tom Elliott, coast heavyweight champion. Howard and Tom Gallery, boxing commissioner, will get together this week to work out the rest of the program.

PASSPORTS FOR GRID GAMES

CHICAGO, Sept. 27. (AP)—Northwestern University students will need "passports" to attend their football games this fall. Every student ticket must bear the portrait of its owner, it was made known today by Max Hayford, student ticket manager.

PLAN WATER POLO

The Jesse L. Lasky water polo team, coached by Roger Cornell and Ray Randolph's Harold Lloyd squad will meet in a polo game this Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the A.A.U. pool of the Breakers Club at Santa Monica.

Talbot Wins Track Award at Berkeley

BERKELEY, Sept. 27. (AP)—Wilburn Talbot of Crafton, Cal., captain of the 1928 varsity track team of the University of California, has been awarded a gold spike for placing second in the Pacific Coast intercollegiate meet last fall. He competed in the quarter-mile dash.

Talbot, who is a graduate of the Amaly Union High School, was a prep star in football, basketball and track, and while at the University of California has twice participated in the I.C.4-A. track meet.

HIBBS TO DO U.S.C. PUNTING

days of practice. Last night saw the first punting drill from scrimmage and Hibbs did the booting for the varsity.

Santa Clara has a phenomenal kicker in young Guido Simoni, a 19-year-old boy who kept the Bears continually in a hole with his long spirals. Simoni's kicking alone would decide a close game and there is every indication that Saturday's clash will be all of that. So Jones lost no time in getting Hibbs acquainted with his new duties.

Fox was replaced by Barrag : midway in the afternoon's workout. Jones discovered that John wasn't working as hard as he ought to and the former frosh fullback took over the center duties for the rest of the night. How long the change will last remains to be seen, but Jones was dead in earnest about what he declared was Fox's inability to bear down.

CENTER WORRIES JONES

The center problem is without a doubt Jones's chief worrk, and the Trojan mentor sprouts a few more gray hairs as each day passes without much improvement being snown in the situation. Fox has the ability if he will only exert himself—not just now and then—but at all times. Barrager is willing and powerful, but so green that Jones can hardly afford to start him just yet. If Fox would only show Barrager's drive and eagerness or if Barrager only had John's experience, everything would be hotsy-totsy. In justice to Fox, it should be stated that he suffered an injured shoulder in the Oxy game, which has, no doubt, left him less vicious than he would otherwise be.

Leo Calland and Gordon Campbell guided the Spartans in their baptism by fire, for it was yesterday afternoon that the ineligibles launched forth with Santa Clara's formations. If the Spartans exhibit Adam Walsh's stuff only one-third as effectively as do the Broncos—which they probably don't—U.S.C. is in for a terrible time Saturday afternoon. The Trojans really looked bad last night against this style of attack and as far as we're concerned it's the first time they've looked downright rotten this fall. Walsh has some clever pass formations and although the Spartans were using 'em for the first time, they had no trouble at all knocking off huge gains against the varsity. Calland and Campbell, being human, chuckled, but it was no laughing matter from a varsity standpoint.

Howard Elliott may not be able to play Saturday. He twisted a knee last night and had to be assisted from the field. Just how fast the member will mend is problematical. Clark Galloway's leg is coming along, but Anthony had to bat for him at left guard in scrimmage last night. Harry Edelson, plunging fullback, did no heavy work.

OBSERVATIONS

By The Innocent Bystander
Bill Henry

THE new rule regarding the shift seems to have accomplished one thing, if nothing else, and that is to cause the ambitious pigskin pursuers to restrain their ardor on the offensive. As we recollect the Trojan-Occidental game of last Saturday, neither team was penalized once for being offside on the offensive, although both teams were plastered for being too anxious while the other side had the pill. Cliff Herd tells us that the same thing held true at Stanford, and also up at Berkeley. The boys still use the shift, but they take plenty of time to get set before the pill is tossed into the backfield.

Paul Lowry is the second guy to bust into our midst with a lot of stories about the prowess of Mullins, the South Pasadena gridiron gladiator who is now performing for Notre Dame. Al Parmenter, the automobile editor of this paper, likewise heard of Mullins, and claims that he is going to be as much of a riot as Christy Flanagan. Mullins was the bright and shining light among the freshmen athletes at Notre Dame last year, and captured a flock of all-around honors. This season he looks good for a regular berth on the varsity.

The football season, by the way, is descending upon us with a terrible rush. It scarcely seems possible that two weeks from this coming Saturday afternoon two of the biggest and toughest football games of the season, as far as Southern California is concerned, will be taking place. At Palo Alto the Trojans and Stanford will be coming pretty close to settling the championship of the Pacific Coast Conference, and at the same time, day and hour, but at the local Coliseum, the U.C.L.A. Bruins and the Oxy Tigers will be doing their best to settle the Southern Conference championship.

Far be it from such as the proprietor of this column to state that these four teams are the only contenders in their respective conferences. What we are pointing out is that these games will certainly be among the crucial contests of the year, and will be worth going miles to see. A big crowd doubtless will go north to watch the Trojans perform, and another big crowd will be at the Coliseum to get the double enjoyment of watching the Bruins and Tigers and hearing about the Trojans and Stanford over the radio.

MAZEAU SIGNED TO TAKE ON MALDRANO

The semi-wind-up and special events to the George Rivers-George Brady ten-round bout at the Main-street Athletic Club Saturday night were arranged by Manager Carlo Curtis yesterday.

In the semi-wind-up, Bert Mazeau, featherweight amateur boxer of California, who won that title at the Los Angeles Athletic Club several months ago, will make his professional debut against Henry Maldrano, a very good boxer.

Gam Soko, a San Francisco Japanese glove slinger who knocked out Skeeter Harding at Pismo Beach last Saturday, will clash with June Lagera, a sailor, in the special.

Giants Annex, Cling to Hope

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 27. (AP)—The Giants found the Phillies easy today, winning 6 to 2 and thereby retaining their mathematical chance to continue in the pennant fight. The McGraw men drove Jack Scott, their old team-mate, out of the box in the second inning when they clubbed him for five hits and three runs. Fitzsimmons held the Phils to seven hits, one a homer by Fred Leach. Score:

CULVER CITY FANS STRING WITH DAVIES

Although Willie Davies has been eliminated from the flyweight tournament in Hollywood, there are still several thousand ring fans in Southern California who believe that he is the best flyweight in the country and will be at the ringside Thursday night in Culver City to see him tackle Freddie Imperial. Jimmy Murray has matched the boys for the ten-round main event and it figures to be one of the best flyweights battles staged here in months.

Bill Manahalan and Harry (Bubber) Johnson, a pair of hard-punching middleweights, are in the six-rcund semi-wind-up, and Oscar Baker, sensational young Venice heavyweight, meets Albert Duisden in the special over the same route.

...Ed first introduced grass ...and grass fairways to ...California and he lived ...long enough to see his fondest dreams materialize, for Southern California, with a growing band of more than 100,000 golfers and more than 100 all grass golf courses, is rapidly becoming the logical golfing center of the universe.

Any tribute or testimonial to the memory of the departed leader will be inadequate and while many suggestions have been offered, the most fitting seems to be the naming of a local championship course in honor of the man who made that course possible. Uncle Ed's heart was wrapped up in golf—and golfers. He advised and offered helpful suggestions regarding the construction of practically every course in this vicinity—he was particularly partial to both the north and south layouts of the Los Angeles Club. To golfers the world over, the Los Angeles Country Club meant Ed Tufts, and it is very possible that Beverly officials will name the north course the Edward B. Tufts Memorial course—in the near future.

NAME SUCCESSOR

In the meantime, Uncle Ed's spirit will carry on—association business must be transacted and R. R. Hurst, former president of the California Club, and vice-president of the S. C. G. A. groomed by Uncle Ed to handle the association, will accede to the presidency until the next regular meeting in November. Hurst is one of the most progressive officials in down-State golf and recently engineered the deal whereby California Club members purchased outright all land and other property comprising the Culver City layout.

There has never been a contest for Uncle Ed's job during the past twenty-three years—his election has always been unanimous. Hurst is well and favorably known over the circuit and is the type of executive Southland golfers would welcome as a leader. Filling Uncle Ed's shoes is an impossibility, but of the score or more local officials tentatively mentioned for the association leadership—George Cline of Wilshire, it seems, should be Hurst's most dangerous rival. Cline has done just about as much for California team golf as Hurst has for progressive organization. Either would make a fine down-State leader.

GRUBER IN FRONT AT PALOS VERDES

Al Gruber, former club employee, who paced the invitational field last year, scored a 74 at Palos Verdes yesterday and again ranks as one of the most dangerous title fight challengers in the annual interclub affair that will reach the match play stage tomorrow.

The original Palos Verdes schedule called for but two days in which to qualify, but club officials, out of respect to the memory of Uncle Ed Tufts, announced Monday that golfers might qualify today also. With more than 100 ranking amateurs already under the wire, the field today should bring the total number of entrants very near the 300 mark, which would be a record for Pro Jimmy Fiske's hospitable organization.

Les Hensley, State junior champ, and E. M. Jones, both of the Virginia club, marked up 78's yesterday, to share second low gross honors. Wallie P. Lohman and Russ Turner—out of a field of seventy contestants yesterday, were the only other starters to break eighty.

A. H. Painter, tournament chief, announced late last night that starting times for today were still available, but advised local amateurs to be ready to tee off before noon. Low scorers at the end of the play today will be grouped in eight brackets, scheduled to start match play tomorrow. There will be an eighteen-hole medal consolation round Friday for nonqualifiers and players defeated in first-round matches. A two-ball mixed foursome event Sunday will conclude the invitational.

Low scores yesterday were as follows:

KINNIE DROPS ACE AT BEVERLY

Ray J. Kinnie, playing with Dave Llelwyn, Bert Walker and George Hoss, dropped his tee shot to the 141 yard fourteen hole of the north course at Los Angeles yesterday, for his first hole-in-one. During the ensuing excitement, Kinnie's score on the remaining holes suffered accordingly, his friends stated.

RECORD PLAY AT SUNSET FIELDS

The Sunset Fields golf development, including two full eighteen-hole golf courses, a standard nine-hole course and a short mashie pitch course, has done and will do a great deal for Southern California golf. It has relieved the heavy congestion at Griffith Park, making it possible for daily fee players to enjoy their Saturday and Sunday golf with pleasure and safety and this winter it will be a godsend to the thousands of tourists who will visit Los Angeles, it was stated yesterday.

Sunset Fields has inaugurated the starting-time reservation system, making it possible for players to make their appointments in advance, drive to the course a few minutes ahead of time and start off from the first tee without delay. This does away with the tedious wait that has in the past characterized municipal golf both in California and in the East. The fact that Sunset Fields is so close in, fifteen minutes from the center of Los Angeles, makes it unusually popular with the business man golfer.

VON ELM LAUDS CHEVY CHASE

Chevy Chase Country Club needs more caddies. The club professional, Charley Johnston, has sent out an SOS. On week-ends particularly, a score or more boys would be very welcome at this sporty little course. Special busses, starting as early as 6 o'clock Sunday morning, have been put on the run to Chevy Chase to take care of the week-end throngs.

FRENCH BOXER KAYOED

PARIS, Sept. 27. (AP)—Johnny Cuthbert, featherweight champion of Great Britain, knocked out Humery, the French contender, in the fifth round of a twelve-round bout tonight.

DADO TO BATTLE NOVEY

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 27. (AP)—Speedy Dado, a former flyweight champion of the Orient, meets Frankie Novey of Sacramento in a ten-round bout at National Hall tomorrow night.

NATIONAL AMATEUR HERE IN 1929 AS TRIBUTE TO TUFTS

United States Golf Association officials have practically consented to stage the 1929 national amateur golf championship in this State. Roger Lapham of San Francisco, a member of the parent board, has waged a ten-year fight to have the annual classic in the Bay City, while Uncle Ed Tufts has led the drive to have the competition in Los Angeles. During the last State amateur at Del Monte, Lapham and Tufts agreed to unite and urge the U.S.G.A. to hold the affair at Pebble Beach and the reigning board responded favorably—so favorably in fact that resort officials immediately appropriated $50,000 to be used in grooming and remodeling the famous Pebble Beach layout for the coming championship.

GOLDSTEIN, HUGHES MIX IN LEGION BOUT FRIDAY

Harry Goldstein and Tommy Hughes make up the flyweight tournament dish that Tom Gallery will serve the patrons of Hollywood Legion Stadium Friday night, in one of the most important battles of the eliminations.

Goldstein, a great counter-puncher and a flashy boxer, will have to overcome the heavy guns and experience of Hughes, who is a protege of Johnny Kilbane, and who will likely have the former featherweight champion as his chief adviser when the bell rings.

Hughes has much of the style and class of Kilbane, from whom he learned all his boxing and veteran ring fans who watched the Cleveland Alderman when he was in his prime, fight many of his greatest battles here, will be amazed at the manner in which Hughes works.

Goldstein got a draw with Roy Wally in his first start in the tournament, but most of the critics agreed that Harry was entitled to any shade there was in the mill. It is said now that Goldstein is in much better shape and will be a tough boy to get out of the race for Fidel LaBarba's discarded title insignia.

Gallery is sending Joe Bitto and Eddie Gill into the semifinal of six rounds. They are middleweights and hefty punchers so there should be plenty of thrills to their brawl.

Goldie Hess and Leo Claro meet in the six-round special and a pair of fours complete the card.

Jess Barnes to Hurl for Toledo Club

TOLEDO (O.) Sept. 27. (AP)—Jess Barnes, a veteran of many major league campaigns and Leo Mangum, one of the leading pitchers in the International League this season, will be the opposing moundsmen when Toledo and Buffalo meet in the first game of the junior world series here tomorrow afternoon.

BEAR SWORDSMEN TO MEET ITALIAN CLUB

BERKELEY, Sept. 27. (Exclusive)—Already the conquerors of the San Francisco Olympic Club's team of veteran swordsmen, Coach Boris Von Arnold has arranged a match for the evening of October 11 between his University of California varsity squad and the Union's Sportiva Italaine Virtus Athletic Club of San Francisco. The various duels will take place in the latter's own quarters. Von Arnold has a squad comprised almost exclusively of veterans of several seasons' sword play.

ANGELENOS BACK MANY DEER

The deer season in Southern California and the high Sierras has been open a little more than a week, but many deer have been brought back to Los Angeles, practically proving that this season will be one of the best in the last ten years. Some very large deer have been killed and larger ones are anticipated.

Last week Victor Hugo II brought a 181-pound buck into R. H. Dyas Company for registration. The buck's horns had a spread of 32 inches, the largest seen in this end of the State in years. Hugo conducts the Three Links Inn on Walnut Pass, Kern county, and got the buck near his property. He claims there were many deer in his section, many of them larger than the one he bagged. Hugo's deer now lends for the Brotherhood pot up by Dyas' for the heaviest deer killed this year anywhere in California or Arizona.

Hugo is a great grandson of Victor Hugo, famous novelist and dramatist of the last century.

R. F. Pushkin of Los Angeles is high on Dyas' Remington rifle pot up for the hunters in District 4 and 4A. He brought in a buck last week weighing 207 pounds. Ignacio Machado is second with a 146-pounder, bagged at Hitchcock Lake.

This year has been one of the best for all around hunting and fishing California has enjoyed in years. Deer hunting is now open and fishing good. Trout fishing continues good. A wonderful trout season at Twin Lakes is reported by John Mota, Sr., and wife, who have closed their cabin for that country. They had many guests during the summer including John Mota, Jr., and wife, Bill Mota, Ralph "Big Bear" Murray, Milton Rosen and wife, R. A. Miller and wife, Gordon McMullan and wife, John Beck and wife, Dave McDonald and wife, Sam Heigman, Dr. Chessler and wife, Garfield Mansmore and wife, A. C. "One Card" LaFarra and wife, Dr. A. J. Carr and wife, John Mota, Jr., was a visitor for the largest rainbow caught. "Big Bear" Murray scored for bringing home a 10-inch fish shortest time, "Pop" Harper, who also has a cabin not Twin Lakes, near Mota's, has closed his cabin and equaled his previous mark for consistent fishing. Pressler won the derby for the best fish story. Mrs. Carr caught the largest trout.

The duck season in California will open Saturday. A season that has advertising by the thousands and a season that is expected this year to outshine previous seasons for the last ten years.

A survey was made last week of Imperial Valley and San Joaquin Valley by Pete Peterson, hunting authority at the R. H. Dyas Company. He was accompanied by Outdoor Frank-lin, Buick road scout for the Howard Automobile Company.

The first part of their trip to Buena Vista Lake in Kern county, a lake which dried up a few years ago, but has again filled. Many acres of lake bottom under cultivation was submerged, making splendid feeding grounds for the ducks.

They found three public duck clubs on the shore of the lake, all under one management. A fleet of motorboats is being maintained on the lake to facilitate the transportation of hunters to the different parts of the lake. Accommodations are ideal and the fees graduated to please most anyone. Peterson and Franklin saw wigeon, spoty and teal at Buena Vista and further north in the vicinity of Wasco found that the vanguard of geese had already come in. Reservations for opening day shooting at Buena Vista can be made at the Dyas Log Cabin. Shooting is to be held every day.

At Mecca in Imperial Valley they found thousands of ducks in that section also. They visited the Mecca Gun Club and found the management ready to take care of the shooters at that end of the Salton Sea. The ducks are thousands of ducks, mostly spoty in the vicinity of Mecca. Shooting will be held every day at the Mecca Club. Further shooting preserves in the same vicinity was visited where turkeys were roosting on the ponds. Further will be able to accommodate eight shooters at one session and shooting sessions will be on Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday.

On the west side of the Salton Sea, the Dyas-Buick scouts looked over Lawrence's club and learned that shooting there will be unsurpassed from submerged fields. At the mouth of the Alamo River, the hunting experts found the Alamo duck preserve and were loud in their praise of the organization. Shooting will be held every day and accommodations are to be had for thirty-five shooters at one time. Blinds are in the water and above water with wood covers. The clubhouse and sleeping quarters are new and up-to-date with water piped to the rooms for showers, clear, fresh water, ice and other luxuries unheard of before around a duck hunting club.

Over at Mallard sloughs in about the same vicinity, splendid conditions were found, also at the Calipatria Club. At the Alamo Duck Club, known better as Fred Raymer's place, Ramar was found on the job preparing for a busy season. At Raymer's the blinds are located along the water with live decoys. The last word in accommodations are to be established. Fitzsey's Club, also on the Alamo was looked over and conditions found ideal and preparations for a big season. Fitzsey has dry blinds and live decoys. All of the clubs Peterson and Franklin visited are public clubs where a fee is charged each shooter for each shooting day and any other accommodations.

JOHNSON APPOINTS UMPIRES

Ormsby and Nallin Will Work World Series; Ban May Not Attend

CHICAGO, Sept. 27. (AP)—President B. B. Johnson of the American League today appointed R. F. Nallin and E. T. Ormsby to officiate in the coming world series.

The assignment of the umpires may be President Johnson's last official act in connection with the affairs of the league before he retires from office on or before November 1, next.

Ormsby is one of the aces of the American League staff. Earlier in the season he had trouble with Ty Cobb and Al Simmons of the Athletics, causing Johnson to suspend them. Ormsby is a veteran of the World War, having engaged in the battle of Chateau Thierry.

Nallin is a veteran of the staff and has officiated in world series before.

President Johnson gave no indication that he would attend the series, which opens in the home of the club which wins the National League pennant, October 5.

TEACHERS' PAY FOUND LOW

Berkeley Survey Shows Bricklayers and Plasterers Draw Larger Salaries Than Professors

BERKELEY, Sept. 27. (Exclusive)—Any able-bodied bricklayer or plasterer in the bay region can earn more money per year for his services than the average college professor at the University of California, according to a salary report by Prof. Jessica B. Peixotto, social economist.

The average salary for ninety-six married faculty members at the University of California, the investigator found, is $3000 per year. The full range of their pay she discovered to be between $1400 and $8000. In the teaching profession, she said, men may serve from twelve to twenty-five years and be close to 50 years of age before they may be sure of getting $3000 or $4000.

One of the most startling facts disclosed by the survey is this:

After serving for years, after slowly reaching the top of his profession in rank at least, the medium salary of the full professor is $4250.

"This is the pecuniary situation that turns ambitious young men to other professions and at the same time disheartens and embitters many of those actually engaged in the work."

Due to the low salaries, most of the professors must spend a great deal of their time in working on the side, so that their families can keep up to the standard of living of the typical American professional class. He must do other things that he himself may meet the demands of him by the busy world, which requires research, social work, expert council and the ability to explain current issues when called upon.

The average income therefore was found to be $3900 for full professors. This was not paid by the university altogether, however, but was augmented by money received for additional teaching, paid administrative work or consulting work relating to business. One or two of the teachers investigated, were found sharing in some business venture. One faculty member earned $8400 and has since left the university where he was receiving $3000 per year. He accepted a salary of $20,000 per year as a consulting expert in a national business enterprise.

TRIAL OF TEXAS STUDENT BEGUN

State's Witnesses Identify Co-ed as Suspect

House Fired to Aid Robbery of Bank, is Theory

Strong Alibi for Mrs. Rogers Offered by Mother

GEORGETOWN (Tex.) Sept. 27. (AP) Mrs. Rebecca Bradley Rogers, a former popular student at the University of Texas, accused as a bank robber, was identified in court here today in her trial on a charge of arson as the young woman who appeared in a chain of circumstances surrounding the burning of a house in Round Rock, Tex., last December.

The State is seeking to show by circumstantial evidence that Mrs. Rogers burned the house, hoping that employees of the bank at Round Rock would desert their posts and leave her free to rob the bank. No attempt at robbery was made, however.

Mrs. Rogers is asserted to have held up a bank at Buda, Tex., and obtained $1000 the day following the fire in Round Rock and she faces trial later on this charge.

IDENTIFICATION OFFERED

Three State witnesses today testified that Mrs. Rogers was the woman who introduced herself in Round Rock before the fire as Grace Lofton and represented herself as a reporter for the Waco Times-Herald.

Two other witnesses identified Mrs. Rogers as a woman who bought kerosene and matches in Austin on the day of the fire and another witness testified that she saw Mrs. Rogers enter the building, which burned on December 10, shortly before the fire was discovered.

The testimony of the State witnesses was contradicted at several material points, however, by Mrs. Grace Bradley, the defendant's mother, who testified her daughter was in Austin on the afternoon in question.

G. R. Lundelius, Round Rock banker, said that Mrs. Rogers, under the name of Lofton, interviewed him about crop and business conditions on the Wednesday and Thursday before the fire. Friday, the day of the fire, he said, she came to the bank about 3:30 and asserted that she had seen smoke coming from a house down the street.

The fire alarm rang about 5 o'clock, he testified. According to the witness, Mrs. Rogers stayed in the bank until after the money had been locked away for the night, Lundelius said that Mrs. Rogers wore a "lumberjack sweater" on her visits to the bank, but was vague as to the remainder of her clothing.

J. E. Ross, an Austin grocer, testified that Mrs. Rogers had purchased a half-gallon of kerosene and some matches about 8 o'clock the morning of the fire.

WOMAN ENTERS HOUSE

Mrs. Willie Walsh of Round Rock testified that she had seen Mrs. Rogers stop in front of a vacant house next to the Walsh residence. Mrs. Rogers, she said, hesitated and then came to the Walsh door, where she made inquiries concerning the house, saying that she might rent it. The witness testified that Mrs. Rogers then went to the house, entered it, and stayed about five minutes before leaving. Shortly after that, she said, the house burst into flames.

The State closed its case in the middle of the afternoon.

Dr. K. P. Barton of Austin, a presiding elder of the Methodist church and a former pastor at the University Church, testified that Mrs. Rogers had been a faithful member of his church and bore a good reputation.

Mrs. Bradley declared her daughter had worn a dark velvet blouse and brown skirt on the day of the fire. Furthermore, she testified, Mrs. Rogers had come to the State Land Office Building, where the witness is employed, at twenty minutes to five on the day in question, in order to take her mother home from work. Mrs. Bradley said that Rebecca had taken her to work at 8 o'clock that morning, and denied that her daughter owned or ever wore a "lumberjack sweater."

WITNESS NAMED AS SLAYER'S AID

Admitted Writing to Victim's Wife, Police Say

Surprise Angle Develops in New Jersey Murder

HAMMONTON (N. J.) Sept. 27. (AP) Willis Beach, South Vineland poultry raiser, tonight was sought as a fugitive from justice on a warrant charging him with aiding and abetting in the murder of Dr. A. William Lilliendahl near here on the 15th inst. The warrant was sworn out by Frank J. Harrold, chief of Atlantic county detectives, when authorities were unable to find Beach, who is free under $5000 bail as a material witness.

Three men who saw a blue coupe answering the description of Beach's automobile pull out of a road near where the physician's body was found and speed toward Hammonton the day of the slaying came to State police headquarters today. The investigators intended to have them attempt to determine if the car was Beach's and if Beach was the man who was driving.

BEACH NOT NOTIFIED

Beach had not been notified that he would be brought to the barracks and he had left his home in the blue coupe early today before State troopers arrived at the house.

Beach's automobile was found by deputies in the garage of his brother at Mays Landing late today and brought to the police barracks here.

Beach, according to detectives, has admitted writing letters to "Peggy Anderson," who is believed by the investigators to be Mrs. Margaret Lilliendahl, widow of the slain man. Mrs. Lilliendahl, who told authorities that her husband was slain by two negroes who robbed her, is free on $25,000 bail as a material witness. Police asserted that her story did not appear to be complete and abandoned the hunt for the negroes a few days after the killing.

ATTORNEY APPEARS

Edison Hedges of Atlantic City, counsel for Beach, appeared at State police headquarters today when he learned his client was wanted. After talking with Chief Harrold he said he would not permit Beach to be examined again unless he was present when the authorities questioned Beach.

The three men who told the detectives about the blue coupe are James A. Grant of Hamilton Square, a suburb of Trenton; William Driver of Slackwood, and Paul Eldridge of Morrisville, Pa.

Grant and Driver, contractors, said Eldridge, their chauffeur, was driving them to Cape May.

Mrs. Lilliendahl expressed surprise and resentment when informed of the warrant for Beach's arrest.

ESTATE TAXES REPEAL FOUGHT

California Will Oppose Move of Washington League

Gov. Young Announces List of State Delegates

Federal Levy Removal Held to be Perilous Aim

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 27. (AP)—Revealing an effort by the American Taxpayers' League of Washington to enlist California legislators in a move to seek repeal of Federal inheritance taxes, Gov. Young today announced California's delegation to the National Tax Association convention in Toronto where this State will oppose any attempt to seek the support of the tax experts.

California's legislators during the past few weeks have receive circular letters from the Washington league telling of the movement to repeal the Federal tax, and asking their indorsement. Several gave this indorsement, while another first communicated with Gov. Young and on learning of the import of the situation to California, withheld his answer.

MOVE OPPOSED

Since then the Board of Control has notified all the legislators of the movement, the ultimate result of repeal of the Federal tax, and as a result many of the Senators and Assemblymen have withdrawn their support.

Although it is not expected to crop up at the Toronto meeting, October 10-14, next, having been pretty thoroughly thrashed out last year, State Controller Riley, a member of the association, Irving Martin, chairman of the California Tax Commission, and G. H. Cattell, a member of the Board of Equalization, will attend as accredited representatives of California and will be prepared to oppose any move to obtain assistance from the national association looking toward repeal of the Federal tax.

Dr. Milbank Johnson, Los Angeles, head of the California Tax Association, also will attend.

Prof. Harley Lutz, professor of economics at Stanford, and a recognized tax expert, heads the National Tax Association, and at present is being mentioned as a likely candidate for the post as tax expert for the State Tax Commission.

FIRST STEP

The move to wipe out the Federal inheritance charges is viewed by both Gov. Young and Controller Riley as the first step in an attempt to have all the State inheritance taxes wiped out. In seeking indorsement of the legislators, the Washington delegation said this source of revenue should be preserved to the States.

California at present is as well situated from an inheritance tax standpoint as any State in the Union, regardless of whether they have a State inheritance tax law.

Several years ago Controller Riley and others influential in tax matters, obtained passage through Congress of legislation allowing inheritance tax payers to claim credit up to 80 per cent of the Federal tax for any taxes paid States where such levies are made. Thus, while two branches of government collect taxes, the combined taxes do not exceed the Federal tax if there were no State charge.

DIVIDEND RATE ON BANK RAISED

Merchants' National Places Stock on $18 Basis

Increase of $2 from Previous Annual Payment

Nolan Reports Satisfactory Earnings in Quarter

Directors of the Merchants' National Trust and Savings Bang of Los Angeles yesterday placed the stock on an $18 annual basis by the declaration of a quarterly dividend of $4.50 a share, payable the 30th inst. The stock has been on a $16 annual basis since last year, following the consolidation with the Merchants' xNational of the Hellman Commercial Trust and Savings Bank.

Earnings of the bank, according to the report submitted to the directors by E. J. Nolan, president, have been satisfactory in the last quarter, and fully justify the higher dividend rate.

In 1924 the Merchants was paying an annual dividend of $10 a share, which was continued throughout 1916. In 1917 the regular dividend was changed to $8, but at the end of the year an extra of $2 was declared. This policy was followed until 1924, when the regular dividend was increased to $12 a share.

After the consolidation with the Hellman bank the Merchants' National declared an extra of $10 a share to equalize dividend payments, and placed the stock on a $16 annual basis.

Originally starting in 1886 with a capital of $100,000 under the name of the Southern California National Bank, the Merchants' National has now grown to an institution with a capitalization of $4,000,000. The capital was increased to $200,000 in 1888, and to $1,000,000 in 1914. The next increase was to $1,500,000 at the time of the consolidation with the National Bank of California, which resulted in the Merchants' National Bank of Los Angeles.

Deposits in late years have increased from a total of $6,000,000 in 1914 to approximately $122,000,000 at the present time.

HAY MARKET QUIET

Demand Generally Light and Trend Prices Points Downward

Hay markets were generally weak with the supply of medium to lower grades exceeding demand, according to the weekly hay market review of the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Western alfalfa markets were easier. The Yakima Valley situation was weaker with farmers receiving $10.50 per ton for No. 1 alfalfa. Demand was very light and growers were lowering prices to move crops from fields. The Sacramento market showed a downward tendency with exceptionally liberal offerings of third and fourth cutting alfalfa. Trading at Los Angeles was light although prices remained quotably unchanged.

SURVEY OF DISTRICT'S TRADE OUT

Conditions in Twelfth Federal Reserve Field for August Sketched

Industrial output of the Twelfth Federal Reserve District during August was approximately the same as a year ago, while the volume of distribution was greater than in August, 1926, Isaac B. Newton, chairman of the board and Federal reserve agent of the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco, stated yesterday in his monthly review of conditions.

Demand for credit at member banks did not reveal the usual seasonal increase during August and early September, and discounts at the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco declined to the lowest point since February, 1923. On the 10th inst., the rediscount rate was reduced to 3 1-2 per cent for all classes and maturities of paper. The former rate of 4 per cent has been in effect since November 23, 1925.

A late agricultural season, the report declared, has contributed to the hesitation in business during the past few months, but conditions during August were favorable for agricultural operators, and harvesting of the district's crops has progressed rapidly. Yields are generally larger than a year ago. Although quality of some crops is reported below that of last year, price returns to growers are reported generally satisfactory and marketing is proceeding in large volume.

Volume of employment and total wages paid in the district's chief industries were smaller during August than a year ago. Value of building permits issued and daily average output of lumber were approximately the same as in August, 1926, but flour mills was less active. Daily average railway freight carloadings and retail sales were larger than last year, but sales at wholesale, although larger than in July, last, were smaller than in August, 1926.

Wheat, 7,184,000 bushels against 5,899,000; rye, 1,792,000 against 1,084,000; oats, 120,000 against 139,000; corn, 128,000 against 218,000; and barley, 1,650,000 against 1,033,000.

MISSOURI PACIFIC EARNINGS INCREASE

NEW YORK, Sept. 27. (AP)—August net operating income of the Missouri Pacific rose to $2,149,166 from $2,002,339 in August, 1926. The total for eight months this year was $9,566,008 in contrast to $12,333,909 in the corresponding 1926 period. August gross revenues were $11,020,930 against $11,676,065 a year ago.

RETAIL TRADE IMPROVED

Department Stores Report Material Sales Gain for August; Fall and Holiday Outlook Bright

BY EARLE E. CROWE

Beginning in August the Los Angeles department stores stepped up sales substantially over the same month of last year, the increases running as high as 15 per cent in some instances. The merchants are generally in a cheerful mood, and uniformly expect fall and Christmas trade to surpass previous seasons.

Earlier in the season, and especially in midsummer, sentiment was of a different character. The department stores noted a slight buying resistance and a dragging tendency in collections. Sales failed to show the usual seasonal increases in the early months, and the six months' results were not calculated to offer much encouragement. August and early September sales, however, have thoroughly dissipated these doubts for a successful year.

INCREASE RECORDED

One leading department store executive estimates that the sales of the Los Angeles stores on the average will run around a 7 per cent increase for the first eight months of the year. It is too soon to forecast the results for the year, but his opinion is that the promise for the fall and winter assures a satisfactory performance, at least, for the full twelve months.

Christmas shopping has already started in the department stores. Shoppers are advancing the date for holiday buying each year, it is found, and a measurable portion of the August activity was attributed to this demand. While it will be difficult to better the record-breaking Christmas business done here last year, the large stores believe it is possible if the existing rate of activity continues.

Buying interest at present is chiefly in ready to wear lines, garments, specialty goods and all types of holiday lines. Some of the stores find that demand is showing indications of swinging from silks to cotton goods in the dress materials. For the last several years the silks have dominated the dress goods trade, but the buyers lately have manifested a renewed interest in the cheaper material, probably in reflection of an awakening program of economy.

INVENTORIES NORMAL

While the Los Angeles department stores are planning for a heavy volume of business in the next few months, inventories are reported well in hand. Since the railroads instituted rapid and efficient service a few years ago the large stores have been able to avoid abnormal seasonal increases in inventories, and depend on rapid transportation to maintain stocks of goods at a safe margin above demand. Turnover has become increasingly important with the department stores, and figures largely in the making of profits.

Nationally, the comment on retail trade conditions does not strike so optimistic a tone as in Los Angeles. The outlook, according to most reviews, is generally favorable, without any great likelihood of marked expansion. Autumn trade as a whole, however, is expected to run on a profitable basis.

FOSHAY ADDS UTILITY

Miami (Ariz.) Light, Power and Water Plants Taken Over

MIAMI (Ariz.) Sept. 27. (Exclusive) The People's Light and Power Company of New York, identified with the Foshay interests of Minneapolis, has taken over the lighting, power and water utilities of Miami, on surrender of a lease and purchase agreement made two years ago by the municipality with Cleve W. VanDyke and associates. The city had agreed to pay about $625,000, but the amount of the later purchase has not been stated.

The Foshays already control a number of similar plants in other southwestern cities. VanDyke, who was founder of Miami and who still owns a large part of the business section, is living in Long Beach. The VanDykes also own and operate the local telephone system. This, it is reported, is to be turned over to the Mountain State Telephone and Telegraph Company.

BOND SALESMAN PRAISED

Investment Bankers' Retiring Head Says American Method Sped Post-War Reconstruction

SEATTLE, Sept. 27. (AP)—Tribute to the persistence of the modern bond salesman as having played an important part in post-war economic reconstruction was paid today by Pliny Jewell of Boston, retiring president of the Investment Bankers' Association of America, in an address before the organization's sixteenth annual convention here.

"The humorist recently has been in the habit of using the words 'bond salesman' as a synonym for ubiquity," he said. "It would not be funny if it were not true. It would not be true if the investment bankers of the country had not shown an organizing power short of marvelous. Without this ubiquity—without the almost continuous ringing of door bells and telephones—I submit that the progress of reconstruction after the war would have been noticeably slower, not only in this country but throughout the world.

"The United States has been furnishing by far the major portion of the world's capital requirements year after year, and it could not be done on the present scale of from $35,000,000 to $40,000,000 without the highly organized sales force of this organization."

Opposition to Federal regulation of the sale of securities was expressed by Mr. Jewell, who is vice-president of Coffin & Burr, Boston.

"The association is on record that there is no need of Federal legislation of this sort," he said, "but if Congress decides that our many laws and authorities are not sufficiently protective, again, this association is on record that it strongly prefers the fraud type of law, under which any security can be sold at any time but when in the minds of the authorities it appears that the sale of certain securities is not in the public interest they are empowered to order that offerings cease."

COMMITTEE INDORSES IRRIGATION FINANCING

SEATTLE, Sept. 27. (AP)—The irrigation securities committee of the investment Bankers' Association of America today recommended financing of irrigation projects as a "proper and legitimate" function for the members of the association, and particularly indorsed in principle the Columbia River project of this State. The report was adopted.

By States the committee took up the irrigation question on the Pacific Coast and frankly discussed conditions as it had found them. Their report stated:

California as a whole has recognized that irrigation is fundamental to the prosperity of the State and also recognizes that, while the farmer has been benefited by increased market prices for the product he produces, he can also be benefited by any legislation or other support which will stabilize his borrowing power at the lowest possible rate.

LONGYEAR'S HAT IN A. B. A. RING

Security Trust Vice-President Candidate for Treasurer

Announcement is Made on Solicitation of Friends

Vote to be Taken at Annual Convention in Houston

October issues of the leading financial journals of the country will carry an announcement of the candidacy of Willis D. Longyear, vice-president of the Security Trust and Savings Bank, for the position of treasurer of the American Bankers' Association. The election will occur during the course of the fifty-third annual convention of the A.B.A. to be held at Houston, Tex., the week of October 24.

Mr. Longyear has been urged for some time by his friends to enter the race for this high honor and the California Bankers' Association at its last convention, which was held while Mr. Longyear was on a trip around the world, pledged its unanimous support to him in case he decided to be a candidate. He did not come to a decision about the matter until this week, however.

In order to further Mr. Longyear's candidacy, William R. Morehouse, vice-president of the Security Bank, who has been spoken of as a candidate for the position of second vice-president of the national association, has withdrawn his name from consideration and has sent telegrams to his friends and associates in the East urging their support of Mr. Longyear for treasurer.

Mr. Longyear is one of the best-known and liked of those who have been attending the A.B.A. conventions, and has served on many of the important committees and councils of the association. During his term as president of the California Bankers' Association, he served on the A.B.A. executive council and later was appointed to the State legislative council and the committee on State legislation.

Mr. Longyear served two terms as chairman of these legislative groups. He also served three years on the executive committee of the savings-bank division.

London Daily Radio

BY ARTHUR W. KIDDY

(Copyright, 1927, by New York Evening Post, Inc.)

LONDON, Sept. 27. (By wireless)—The Jewish holiday emphasized the quietness of the markets today. Nevertheless, they displayed a goodish tone, especially nitrates and artificial silks, which were strong.

Rubber was weak pending some government notification concerning restrictions plans. Oils sagged as a result of the leading brokers' circular prophesying that unless big oil organizations agree to restrict production in West Texas the American crude oil output will rise before long.

The closing was quiet, but goodish except in oils and rubber. Investments improved, but the chief feature continued to be the activity in industrials, especially artificial silks. Courtaulds was good and reported its new processes so successful that the Coventry factory will likely be duplicated. Statements were made also that Viscose, one of Courtaulds' subsidiaries, is producing approximately fourteen times as much as the biggest American competitor.

Coal, steel and iron continued dullish.

Branch Bank to Shift Quarters

Los Angeles-First National Trust and Savings Bank will shortly move its Sixth and Bonnie Brae branch to the northwest corner of Sixth and Alvarado streets, the branch of which A. J. Smith is the manager, then becoming known as the Sixth and Alvarado branch. The site, of which the Hotel Leighton property, owned by A. R. Jaquith, was recently purchased by the bank.

Remodeling of the corner location is under way, with the Bankers' Equipment Company, a subsidiary of the bank, as contractors. The modern banking quarters and fixtures will include a safe deposit department. The vault and door for the latter will be ready for installation about the middle of October.

NEW FINANCING COSTS HIGH

Bond Dealer Expected to Discuss Topic at Conclave in Seattle; British System Not Workable

BY PAUL WILLARD GARRETT

[Copyright, 1927, by New York Evening Post, Inc.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Wall street follows with interest the discussion at the Investment Bankers' Association convention, of plans to avoid waste of time and money in the raising of new capital.

It is an interesting topic at this time and to many leaders of thought in the street, it seems inevitable that something will have to be done to cut down expenses.

This desire for a change of method has brought out the suggestion that New York bankers adopt the English system of underwriting and distributing securities. It requires little knowledge of the subject, however, to show that it would be next to impossible for our bankers to adopt an alien plan.

Certain fundamental differences between the two races furnish reasons for the divergence of the English and American systems.

English bankers are dealing with "educated investors" who have been investors for generations, mostly dealing with the same firm of bankers from father to son. Bond salesmen are never used by reputable English bankers who regard with scorn the American "share pushers."

In England there is a privileged class of investors, large institutions and wealthy individuals, permitted to join in syndicates at the underwriting price. Advertisements in London of new capital issues contain full details and set forth the price paid by the bankers, commissions, etc. When the issue is ready for the public books are opened at the offices of the bankers and investors wait in line to buy bonds. These investors bring with them not only checks but, if unknown, some means of identification.

The Englishman regards with suspicion any commodity, including securities, carried around to him. The American investor must be "sold." Hence the absolute necessity for the expensive American bond selling campaigns. The New York investment firm that advertised its issue in the newspapers and expected investors to come in probably would be sadly disappointed.

There is little doubt that the English system, while more complicated is much more economical, but it seems that American bankers can expect to find few hints in London to aid them in cutting down costs.

The system in England which permits the borrowing corporation to go to the public direct, may, perhaps, suggest something to our bankers, but it is a system that works successfully only with enlightened investors.

It is likely that any reforms instituted by the bankers in Seattle will have to be American throughout, based on lessons learned from past mistakes. Bankers will approve heartily changes that will cut down unnecessary costs, duplication and expensive competition in the placing of loans. They declare that some of the money saved could be used to make bond circulars more attractive. The stock swindler who has a larger margin of profit to work on can give to the legitimate banker several points on how to make bond selling literature attractive.

ANGELENO TO VALUE UTILITIES AT YUMA

YUMA (Ariz.) Sept. 27. (Exclusive)—J. E. Sellers of Los Angeles has been commissioned to make a valuation survey of the Yuma water, gas and electric utilities, preliminary to application by the city of Yuma to the State Corporation Commission for permission to either purchase the local plant of the Arizona Edison Company or for installation of a municipal system. Municipal ownership is a question that would need submission to the electorate.

Merger Rumors Stimulate Buying of Utilities

NEW YORK, Sept. 27. (AP)—The stock market alternately blew hot and cold today with final quotations irregularly higher. An irregular opening was followed by a wave of selling which carried many leaders down 1 to 2 points, but around noon prices headed upward again under leadership of General Motors and United States Steel. Another setback took place in the early afternoon but a sharp rally set in during the last hour, when spirited buying for Mack Trucks common carried that stock up more than 4 points.

Paul B. Franklin, vice-president of the Ralph G. Wolff Company, yesterday lectured before an upperclass group in "Investments" at the University of Southern California, at the request of Emery Olson, head of the department of co-ordination. Mr. Franklin traced the history of the first mortgage from 2000 B.C. through to current times, his remarks all being directed to show the growth of safety and flexibility in mortgage investment. At the conclusion of the lecture, Mr. Franklin answered questions and explained individual points to the university men.

Addresses Bankers

William A. Polk, assistant cashier of the Merhcants' National Trust and Savings Bank, was the principal speaker last night at the annual dinner of the Phoenix (Ariz.) chapter of the American Institute of Banking. Mr. Polk is vice-president of the local chapter and represents the western division on the membership committee of the national organization.

Steinhauser Returns

K. E. Steinhauser, vice-president of the Syndicate Company, which represents the Standard Mortgage Corporation in San Francisco and other cities, has just returned from a visit of several days' duration in San Francisco, where he made an investigation into conditions in the Bay City, particularly with reference to the progress of the business of the Standard Mortgage Corporation in the northern part of the State. While building activity in the bay district is not as active as it is here, Mr. Steinhauser said, business conditions are on a sound and conservative basis, and the company is making satisfactory progress, having recently made a number of large loans in San Francisco, Oakland, Stockton and other cities in that section of the State.

Notable Shift in Midway Gas Balance Sheet

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 27. (Exclusive)—Important changes in Midway Gas Company's position are reflected in the current report, available today. For the first eight months of the year, the report shows a net after depreciation, taxes and interest, of $524,825, against $463,800 in the same period last year. This was accomplished on a gross of $2,479,343 as against $3,065,314.

The disparity evidenced by the decline in gross is ascribable to essential changes in operations. The company paid only $501,776 for purchased gas in the first eight months of the current year as against $1,163,936 in the same period last year, due to new pipe line arrangements, with the result that operating expenses were $1,090,423, compared to $1,584,809 last year.

August operations, alone, were at a retarded rate, but the twelve months ended with August show a comfortable margin.

The balance sheet also reflects noteworthy alterations. Cash has been reduced from $162,535 at this time last year to $27,385, but the company has eliminated its funded debt entirely. It has $1,470,642 in notes payable as against $770,642 a year ago, and owes Southern California Gas Company $96,345.

Spread Narrow Between Bid and Asked Quotations on Municipal Securities

BY WILLIAM RUSSELL WHITE

[Copyright, 1927, by New York Evening Post, Inc.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—The question of marketability of municipal bonds is one not thoroughly understood by the inexperienced investor.

Doubtless many security purchasers, attracted to municipals by their undoubted security and tax-exemption features, have hesitated to include them among their holdings for fear, if they should ever be compelled to sell quickly they could not find a satisfactory market because of the absence of an exchange, such as the New York Stock Exchange, or some other regularly quoted market.

On the highest grade and most active municipal bonds, such as obligations of New York City and other large cities or States, the difference between the bid and asked quotations runs from $2.50 to $5 on a $1000 bond, while on second-grade bonds the range is rarely more than $5 to $10 on a $1000 bond. This is equivalent, of course, to a range of 1-4 to ½ a point in the first instance and of ⅛ to 1 point in the second.

Dealers accustomed to trading in municipal securities are unable to understand the impression that a wide spread exists between bid and asked quotations, for they feel competition is too keen and the profit margain too narrow. They point out that the market on high-grade municipals is as close as the average bid-and-asked quotation on listed stocks and bonds of the same grade.

There are hundreds of reputable dealers all over the country specializing in municipal securities who would be glad at any time to make a market on high-grade issues of this type. On bonds of small cities and towns, of course, bid-and-asked quotations might be farther apart, for a special market exists for these and the number of firms trading in them is smaller. Because of certain characteristics or tax-exemption features they often are less active than better-known bonds.

A feature often overlooked by the investor is that municipal bonds are always eligible for bank loans. Banks usually are eager to take them as collateral for loans up to 95 per cent of their market value and frequently up to their full market value.

One of the reasons why it is almost impossible to have a quoted market on municipal obligations is the fact that bonds are almost invariably sold "on basis." That is, they are sold at a price to yield a certain rate to the buyer from the date of purchase to the date of maturity.

For instance, if a 4½ per cent bond running twenty years is sold on a 4.20 per cent basis, the price is $1040.32. The same basis price on the same bond a year later is reduced to $1039. This is caused by the amortization of the premium.

In the case of optional bonds those selling at a premium are always figured to their optional date on the theory that the bonds might be called on the optional date. In the case of bonds selling at a discount the price is figured to the maturity date on the theory the bonds might not be called and would likely run to maturity.

Choice of Steel Leader Deferred

NEW YORK, Sept. 27. (AP)—Selection of a successor to Elbert H. Gary as chairman of the United States Steel Corporation was again relegated to the future today when directors took no action at their regular monthly meeting. This occasioned little surprise in steel and financial circles, as the consensus was that no election of a new chairman was likely until after J. P. Morgan, member of the finance committee, returns from Scotland, next month.

President James A. Farrell of the corporation, who presided at today's meeting, reported that the steel business was showing increased volume at firmer prices. The directors transacted only routine business.

WALL STREET PARAGRAPHS

(Copyright, 1927, by New York Evening Post, Inc.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—As usual, further impressive buying of Mack Trucks was accompanied by the time-worn rumors of an early deal between that company and Yellow Truck under the guidance of General Motors. But those well informed contended there was no more basis for such talk now than there has been on other occasions when the rumors had been circulated. Mack's prospects are viewed as brighter now than they were a few months ago. The company is expected to earn close to $9 a share for the year, or well over the $6 dividend needs. Its position is strong, there being no bank debts with around $8,700,000 in cash and upward of $52,000,000 in net quick assets.

Patience Exhausted

Allied Chemical directors met for dividend action today, ordering the usual quarterly payment on the common stock. But, in contrast with previous occasions for several years past, few of the shareholders realized the meeting was today. Heretofore the approach of the quarterly meetings has been the signal for revival of gossip about possible extra dividends, distributions from surplus, etc. But for the moment it seemed failure of such developments to materialize had exhausted the patience of speculators heretofore loudest in their acclaim of such gatherings.

Sterling and Gold

Men of long experience were of the opinion that Wall street was going far afield in seeking to put forward the possibility of an outward flow of gold as a reason for the selling of stocks. The rise in sterling to parity naturally has stirred up widespread conjecture on that prospect, but it was pointed out that British exchange would have to mount to a round $4.88 before the export of the yellow metal would be profitable business. At that level the costs of transportation, insurance, etc., would be provided for, but from present indications no expansive flow of gold toward Europe is in sight for the balance of 1927.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 27. (Exclusive) The cotton market was strong and higher from the opening today on the bad weather over the Southwestern States in the belt. It was too wet there after the heavy rains yesterday and during the night for any freezing temperatures, but it got as low as 36 deg. in Northwest Texas and 34 to 36 in the extreme western part of Oklahoma. The whole State of Oklahoma was flooded with torrential rains.

Tahlequah had 4 3-4 inches, Bristow 3 1-2, Marlow and Purcell each 3 3-8, Chandler, Shawnee, Okmulgee and Tulsa 2 1-4 inches, and twenty other stations in the State 1 to 2 inches. This was on the State Weather Bureau's report. The Texas State report showed 2 1-4 inches at four stations in the northerly part of that State and eight with 1 to 2 inches and seven more with 1-2 to 3-4 of an inch.

These cold heavy rains at this particular stage of the late crop, make the bolls that are unopened soggy and cause a good deal of weather-beaten staple to the cotton that is open. It will be rainy and cold all over the central and western part of the belt tonight and tomorrow and this will retard both picking and ginning in that section. The Eastern States had fine weather yesterday and again today and the forecasts for that section are for only cooler temperatures tonight and tomorrow.

The market started about 10 to 15 points higher and after losing that gain on the usual profit-taking before the end of the first half-hour turned up strong and active as the late weather reports came in. They caused a large amount of covering of shorts and new trade buying, despite the heavy turnover of about 170,000 bales of cotton in the "notices," issued this morning for the tender of that amount of cotton on October contract. Most of these notices were, however, either taken back, or stopped by other spot houses before the end of the noon hour.

Prices worked up to a maximum rise of between 35 and 40 points for the most active months by 2 o'clock on these conditions. October went above 21.40, while December and January reached about 21 3-4 cents; March 22 cents and May, 22.20 cents, with most of that gain held in the last hour despite some further local liquidation.

At Liverpool futures made a maximum rise in the early trading of 27 English points against 10 to 12 that had been due to have met our rise of late yesterday. That market, however, closed easier at a net advance of but 17 to 19 points on the day from profit-taking before the afternoon rise here developed. Spot cotton there was 39 points above yesterday's prices, however, to 11.84 pence for middling.

PERMISSION TO SELL MINE STOCK DENIED

Failure of Princeton Gold Mines Company, Inc., to comply with requirements yesterday resulted in an order by J. M. Friedlander, State Corporation Commissioner, denying the company's application for a permit to issue and sell stock in California.

The company is a Nevada corporation which took over property of the Princeton Gold Mines Company, an unincorporated company, located in Mariposa county, California. The new company asked permission to sell 500,000 shares of stock at 50 cents a share. Accompanying the order of denial signed by Chief Deputy E. J. Walther was a statement that the company failed to bring the books of the old company to California for examination and auditing.

EXEMPT FROM PERSONAL PROPERTY TAX IN CALIFORNIA

Application has been made to the Superintendent of Banks of the State of California to have these bonds certified as legal investments for Savings Banks and Trust Funds in California

The following outstanding features of this bond issue have been summarized from a letter received by us from the Honorable Lewis R. Works, President of the Club:

ORGANIZATION AND PROPERTY: The Brentwood Country Club was organized in 1915 as a Non-Profit California Corporation, and now has over 750 members.

The Club owns approximately 123 acres of land, divided into two parts, located on San Vicente Boulevard, Los Angeles, about three miles from the ocean front near Santa Monica. One piece consists of about 119 acres extending southerly and easterly from the southeast corner of Burlingame Avenue and San Vicente Boulevard, and has approximate frontage as follows: 3,193 feet on San Vicente Boulevard; 3,719 feet on Burlingame; 4,079 feet on Montana; and 879 feet on Amherst Street. This property is improved with one of the finest Club Houses and 18-hole golf courses in Southern California.

The remainder of the Club property is located at the northeast corner of Bristol Avenue and San Vicente Boulevard, across the boulevard from the Golf Course, and has a frontage of approximately 446 feet on San Vicente Boulevard with an average depth of 295 feet. Present improvements thereon consist of a large two-story building formerly used as the Club House, and construction of a modern fireproof school building will soon begin. This property has been leased for 10 years to Major H. A. Blackwell for the use of the Hollywood Military Academy, an exclusive military school he has successfully conducted for many years.

SECURITY: These bonds will be direct general obligations of the Brentwood Country Club, and will be secured by a Trust Indenture constituting a Closed First Mortgage on the fee title to the before mentioned real estate, buildings and improvements, and upon the furniture, fixtures and equipment in connection therewith.

This property, except the furniture and equipment, was appraised, as of September 15th, 1927, by Mr. John P. Kennedy, Appraisals Engineer, as follows: Land, $1,653,036.86; Buildings, $145,311.13, which, including the book value of furniture and equipment, and estimated cost of the new school building, total over $1,850,000.00, against which these bonds will be the only funded debt and less than a 20% loan.

SINKING FUND: The Trust Indenture securing these bonds will contain the provision that the Club must deposit a minimum of $2,500.00 with the Trustee monthly in advance, commencing as of September 1st, 1927, to be used by the Trustee as received, first to pay the interest, when due, on outstanding bonds of this issue; second, to retire bonds by purchase on the open market at or below the call price, or to call bonds by lot on March 1st and September 1st in each year. The action of this Sinking Fund will retire over half of these bonds prior to maturity.

INCOME: Based upon the enlarged activities of the Club, resulting from the recent completion of the new Club House and the leasing of the old, it has been estimated by the management that the total gross annual income of the Club, from all sources, should be $235,020.00. Operating Expenses, including taxes and insurance, have been estimated at $197,940.00, leaving $37,080.00 annually available for the interest and principal requirements of these bonds.

LEGALITY AND TITLE: A Bondholders' Policy of Title Insurance for the full amount of this bond issue, written by the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, will be deposited with the Trustee.

All legal procedure in connection with this issue is being conducted and approved by Gibson, Dunn & Crutcher, Attorneys, Los Angeles.

THIS 34% FIRST MORTGAGE

960 acres of highly desirable residential property, located two miles west of Santa Barbara, constitute the exceptional first mortgage security for La Cumbre Estates Corporation First (closed) Mortgage 6½% Sinking Fund Gold Bonds, due 1938.

The physical value of land and improvements has been conservatively appraised at $1,500 an acre, although recent sales have been made at $3,000 an acre and a large portion of the tract is held at the latter price. Based on this low valuation, the security amounts to $1,440,000, making this issue practically a 34% first lien.

A strong sinking fund is calculated to retire the entire issue by maturity. Ownership is in the hands of a strong group of Santa Barbara capitalists.

NEW YORK BOND PRICES

NEW YORK, Sept. 27. (AP)—Buying in the bond market showed further signs of broadening today and offerings became slightly more numerous in the high grade division, as prices of many issues advanced into new high ground. More than thirty new peaks for the year or longer were established, practically all of them by bonds which are selling well above par. Simultaneously more than a score of securities duplicated their previous maximums.

Continued easy money conditions supplied most of the foundation for firmness of prices while the relatively small volume of new offerings undoubtedly was a contributing factor. While a number of new issues in formidable aggregate are due on the market within the next few days, those offered thus far in the present week have been negligible.

Railroad and public utility bonds were again the most favored by buyers. Baltimore and Ohio, Chesapeake and Ohio, and St. Paul bonds were freely absorbed at top prices along with Chicago and Northwestern 4½'s, Texas and Pacific B 5's, Western Maryland 4's and numerous others. Erie D 4's, which are convertible into common, two shares for each $100 par value of bonds, were briskly accumulated, a point higher than yesterday's close. The conversion privilege on this issue expires next Friday night.

International Telephone 4½'s led the utility group, strength of which was based on current prosperity of the industry. Utah Light and Traction 5's, North American Edison 5's and Southwestern Bell Telephone 5's also were active at new peaks.

French bonds were favorites in the foreign group, but there was some selling of United Kingdom 5½'s and one or two of the German issues.

Second Liberty 4 1-4's sold at 100½ again, after having sagged below that figure yesterday. Other Federal government securities were dull and irregular.

The quotations represent sales of bonds (in thousands of dollars) and the high, low and closing prices in the day's session. To expedite transmission, the close is omitted when the same as the low, and both low and close when same as the high.

FIFTY YEARS AGO

FIFTY years ago, the great railroad systems of America were only beginning the greatest stage in their development. Yet today many of the country's greatest fortunes have had their basis in railroad securities, which rank as the most conservative of investments.

The field of motor transportation offers similar opportunities today. Consider the remarkable increase in travel on Pickwick Stages and the growth in net earnings of the PICKWICK CORPORATION—then investigate the sound investment offered by PICKWICK Preferred and Common shares which pay dividends quarterly. ERUPCION MINING

This lead mine is now paying dividends at the rate of 30c per share yearly on its $1.00 par stock. The present price of lead is about 6½c per pound, about the lowest price for several years. The fact that the Company is able to pay 30c per share yearly, in spite of this low price of Lead, suggests a much higher dividend rate when Lead prices advance.

In 1925 when Lead was selling between 8c and 9c per pound

ERUPCION paid 65c per share

Many lead mines are forced to close down when the price of Lead in the crude metals market goes below 5c.

Complete statistical information regarding Erupcion will be furnished free on request.

Corn Futures Drop Sharply; Wheat Firmer

CHICAGO, Sept. 27. (Exclusive)—Liquidation was on in corn as the result of the failure of the predicted frost and freeze to materialize in the Central West, with a recovery of 4¼@4⅝c from Monday's finish, and the close was within a fraction of the bottom, with losses of 3⅝@3¾c. September closed at 94¾ and December 96⅛@96⅝. Wheat held within a range of ⅝@1¼c and closed 1c higher to ⅛c lower, with September showing the most strength. The latter finished at 1.38¼ and December 1.39½@1.39⅝. Oats were ⅛c higher to ⅛c lower and rye ⅝@1¼c lower.

While the weather map showed considerable rain over the main corn belt, temperatures were not low and the only frost reported was in North Dakota. Commission-house pressure was in evidence in futures from the start, while support came almost entirely from holders of bids and from shorts and toward the last there was heavy selling by several leading commission houses which was regarded as liquidation of a large line, and the market broke badly, with numerous stop-loss orders uncovered.

There was a noticeable lack of aggressive buying in corn and local sentiment has become decidedly bearish. Forecast was for unsettled weather with rising temperatures, except in Illinois and Indiana, where it will be colder. A Washington weather prophet predicts killing frost October 2 in the corn belt. Country offerings remain light and the easiest shipping demand since. An official Nebraska report suggested that 87 per cent of the crop in that State was safe from frost damage.

Houses with northwestern connections were on the selling side of wheat early, but on all the dips there was aggressive local buying, partly to cover shorts by pit professionals. Toward the last September acted tight and advanced rather sharply on moderate buying, which disclosed a lack of pressure, and the finish was at the top. Forecast was for fair and warmer weather in the Canadian Northwest. Winnipeg was ⅛@¼ lower on ⅝@ higher and Minneapolis ⅛@ higher to ⅛@ lower.

There has been much more export business in wheat put through of late than reported, Monday's sales being estimated at 750,000 to 1,000,000 bushels, largely domestic springs, and there were numerous give-ups of futures here for the account of northwestern cash interests. No business of consequence was reported at the seaboard during the day. Further rains were shown in Argentina, but drought continues in Australia and the tendency is to reduce estimates on the yield in that country. Broomhall is expected to raise his estimate on import countries requirements and also raise the amount available in exporting countries. There was 3,153,000 bushels marketed per Canadian interior points Monday, against 2,761,000 bushels last year. Liverpool closed ¼@⅝d lower.

Elevator interests were fair buyers of oats futures and offset to a large extent local selling in sympathy with the break in corn. There was exchanging between September and December at 3½c difference. Shorts were the best buyers of both futures, while hedging sales from the Northwest had a depressing effect. No export demand was reported at the seaboard.

Longs were good sellers of October and November lard and these options declined 20c, taking their support on the breaks. January and May were bought by sellers of the near-by deliveries and they lost only 10@15½c, with January the strongest.

A little more interest was taken in short ribs, which lost 17½c on September and gained 30c on October, while bellies were 20@37½c lower.

METAL MARKETS

CLEVELAND, Sept. 27. (Exclusive)—Daily Metal Trade today says: Slightly accelerated buying and specifying on the part of western farm implement makers is stimulating production of bars and other heavy steel products in the Chicago district. Jobbers' stockings still are light. However, Chicago district producers are quoting a firmer effort to stabilize quotations on plates, shapes and bars at the end of the present spread of 1.85@1.90 Pgh., Chicago.

General sheet demand, except from the automotive and car building industries, is fairly normal for this season of the year, although sheet mills in the Mahoning Valley are operating at only about 50 per cent of capacity, while those in the Chicago territory are ranging 65 to 70 per cent. Eastern sheet conditions are weaker due largely to jobbers' caution. Buffalo blast furnaces are endeavoring to maintain basic pig-iron quotations to the level of foundry and malleable, some sellers asking as high as $17.50.

Copper is dull at (8.12½@13.25, delivered, Connecticut. Zinc is slightly lower at 6.12½@ 6.15 cents, St. Louis. Lead is easy at 6 cents, St. Louis. Spot tin quotations dropped today to 58.73 cents, New York.

METAL PRICES

NEW YORK, Sept. 27. (P)—Copper quiet; electrolytic spot and future 13.12½@13.25.

Tin easy; spot and near-by and November, 58.75.

Iron steady and unchanged.

Lead steady; spot, New York, 6.35; East St. Louis, 6.05.

Zinc, easy, East St. Louis, spot and future, 6.12½.

WOOL MARKET

BOSTON, Sept. 27. (P)—Demand is still strongest on medium grade domestic wools. Fair inquiry is being received both for ⅜ and ½-blood but most sales reported are ⅜ blood. Sales are difficult on the basis of current asking prices for quarter blood. Territory medium wools are selling a little more freely than medium fleeces which continue to show a strengthening tendency.

LONDON, Sept. 27. (P)—At the wool sales today 11,367 bales were offered of which 10,000 were sold. There was brisk demand on the part of home and continental operators for all good conditioned clips at steady prices.

Practical Ways of Investing in Home Ownership, Savings Accounts, Life Insurance and Dependable Investment Securities

102—INVESTMENT TRUSTS

For the last year or so a somewhat unfamiliar institution, the investment trust, has been appearing more frequently in news and advertising columns. There are public utility investment trusts, chain-store investment trusts, foreign investment trusts and general investment trusts. Every few weeks a new one appears. What are they and what have they of interest for the average individual?

The investment trust is primarily a very simple organization. It buys securities and deposits them with a trust company. These securities are a pledge of payment for its own bonds, or debentures, which it issues and sells to the public. In addition, these securities produce the earnings of the trust. The principle is that the well-managed investment trust knows how to buy securities so soundly and with such broad diversification that rarely will it have a loss and often the price of these securities, as a whole, may advance and thus make a profit for the trust.

The bonds, or debentures, that an investment trust issues and sells bear a specified rate of interest, usually about 5 or 6 per cent; sometimes less. These bonds have first call on the earnings of the investment trust, and on the trust's holdings of securities in case the trust is liquidated; that is, sold out and closed up. After the bond holders have received their interest from earnings, anything left may be divided among the common stock holders, usually the founders of the trust. Or the investment trust may have three classes of its own securities, its bonds, its preferred stocks, paying about 7 per cent, and its common stock or founders' shares. In such case the bond holders have first claim on earnings and assets; the preferred stock holders, second claim; the common stock last.

There are many variations of the investment trust idea. The main point is that it be founded and managed by men of the highest type of integrity and experience in making investments. With that kind of management it can and does make better selections of securities than can the average investor. The whole question for the investor is to discriminate between investment trusts with and without the right kind of management.

NEW YORK CURB STOCKS

NEW YORK, Sept. 27. (P)—Most of the recent favorites in the specialty group weakened in the curb market today and operators for the advance centered their efforts on a few public utilities and several new leaders among mining and transportation shares. The price trend was decidedly unsettled, rallies intermingling with sharp declines and the average drifting gradually lower. Losses of 1 to 2 points or more were numerous at the close.

Northern States Power was the outstanding individual feature, advancing nearly 4 points on heavy buying and reaching its best price of the year around 130 7-8. Electric Bond and Share, Electric Investors and Pennsylvania Water and Power (when issued) also were given good support. Buying was in further reflection of various merger rumors and reports of excellent earnings.

Bunker Hill and Sullivan was again in the forefront of strong issues, selling as high as 135 for the first time. It was followed into new high ground by Hecla Mining, up more than a point, while Standard Silver, a low priced issue, rose 4. United States Freight, old and new stocks, also touched new peaks, but later dropped more than a point below yesterday's final quotations. Richman Brothers advanced 15 points to a new maximum of 285.

Conspicuous soft spots included American Rayon, Borden Company, Celanese Corporation new, Goebel, Lackawanna Securities and Melville Shoe. Royal Baking Powder broke 13 points to 246, but later recovered most of the loss.

Northern States Power convertible 6's reflected strength of the A stock, selling up more than 2 points to 125, duplicating their previous 1927 high.

The closing price is omitted when same as the low, and both low and close when same as the high.

OIL NEWS

BY HOWARD C. KEGLEY

The possibility of litigation over the zoning and rezoning of the district north of Culver City, which the Culver Oil Company has under lease, developed yesterday, when it became known that the Marblehead Land Company, owners of the land leased by the Standard, is preparing to take the case into court, and fight to have set of the City Council affecting the district against oil-well drilling.

The Marblehead property at Culver City, where the Standard has had a derrick standing for several years, originally was in a zone restricted against drilling, but several years ago the restriction was removed.

The Standard Oil Company immediately leased the land to test the theory that oil might be obtained in that area, but had hardly built its derrick before neighboring property owners secured an injunction against operation.

This was subsequently dismissed, and the Standard did not resume work on the well because of the action of the City Planning Commission, which immediately took steps to have the district again rezoned against drilling.

The rezoning ordinance was enacted several weeks ago but has not yet become effective. It is understood that the Marblehead Land Company intends to fight the matter through the courts and if possible have the present legal status of the Standard's lease.

Big Well

It is one of the old days in Signal Hill when wells were wells was heard yesterday when the Marine Corporation completed its No. 11 well on a new lease in the old field with an initial output of 1800 barrels a day. The well was completed at a depth of 3220 feet, and is producing 30 deg. gravity oil testing about 20 deg. gravity.

Marine No. 11 was originally completed several years ago at 3900 feet, but its highest production was about 300 barrels a day. This declined to a non-paying point, and the job of deepening the well turned out to be expensive one because of the difficulty of getting the old casing out of the hole. But this problem was solved by sidetracking, and the new hole of output makes the well one of the best in the entire Signal Hill field.

Gray Shale

The Elbe Oil and Development Company had reached a depth of 2,000 feet in its Elbe No. 6 well at Huntington Mesa yesterday, without striking the deeper zone which is now the avowed objective. The formation is the same sandy gray shale which the drill has been penetrating ever since it went through the last thin layer of oil sand at about 2300 feet. The Elbe expects to spud its No. 2 well within the next few days, but these wells are destined for the shallow zone discovered by the original Elbe No. 1.

Deep Project

There is nothing official is being given out by the company, it has been learned that the Bolsa Chica Oil Company, which has several good wells at Signal Hill, is planning to put a deep test on one of its leases in the near future. Such good results have been obtained by several companies in going down to 4000 feet or deeper that the Bolsa Chica organization is understood to be contemplating such a project. It will not be a deepening job—it will be an entirely new hole.

Gusman Well Progresses

The Elliott No. 1 wildcat of the Gusman Exploration Company, in the Gusman Hills district, twenty-five miles south of Coalinga, is drilling at about 4200 feet and coring hard rock. This well had slight showings of oil formation higher up, but is expected to have excellent geology which to proceed.

Completion Soon

The Union Drilling and Petroleum Company is drilling its Hulbert No. 1 well in the Alamitos Heights in the Seal Beach field. The hole is now somewhat deeper than that of the company's Stevenson No. 1, which was completed Saturday for an output of 1,000 barrels a day. Depth of the Hulbert No. 1 is 3420 feet. It is located at the northwest corner of Second and Colorado streets, in Alamitos Heights.

Shell Finishes Two

The Shell Oil Company has completed two small producers at Huntington Beach and the one in the Kern River field. The Shell Electric No. 11 at Huntington Beach was finished at 4368 feet and is producing 160 barrels a day, gravity being 22.8 degrees. The No. 1 Kern River was completed at 3420 feet. It is only putting out 50 barrels per day.

Shallow Showings

The North Counties Oil Company, which leases on several hundred acres along the Matole River in Humboldt County, is drilling at 1100 feet, and already has had some good showings according to drillers. At 700 feet the drill is said to have picked up some oil sand showing a fair degree of saturation. If better showings are not found at a greater depth it is probable that the shallow well will be given a test.

Old Well

J. E. Witt, who drilled the discovery well in the Petaluma district about Sonoma county, is trying to put the old hole back on production, according to field reports. The well is the No. 2, which originally was completed at about 1400 feet, and came in with about 100 barrels a day. During the past few months the well has had a considerable decline, dropping to between five and ten barrels a day. It was killed, and is now drilled in at about 1700 feet in quest of deeper sand.

The discovery well was the original reason for the entry of the Shell Company into the Petaluma district, where it is drilling its two Murphy wells. Most of the land held by the company was leased to it by Mr. Witt and his associates.

RUBBER MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 27. (Exclusive)—The outside crude rubber market turned very dull with prices maintaining a firm tone today. New York spot changed hands at 24¾ cents, unchanged from the previous close. London cables were quiet with spot being unchanged at 12½ pence, same as Monday's close.

Dr. Frederic Dolius, rubber specialist, announced that his method in extraction of rubber from fig trees has proved successful, and that the rubber is commercial quantities may be obtained from the California variety. He said that the common California varieties, the Kadota and Calimyrna, are being subjected to research processes now. He said he has produced a fine grade of rubber from panache milk.

BRITISH IRE AROUSED IN SEA EPISODE

Report Asked on Hearing of Captain Charged With Cruelty to Seaman

LONDON, Sept. 27. (AP)—Great surprise was expressed in high British governmental quarters today over dispatches from New York stating that the Federal grand jury had refused to indict Capt. J. K. Crowley, skipper of the American tanker Manatawny on charges of cruelty to Frederick Thomas, a British seaman who served as steward under Crowley.

The British Foreign Office has enabled the British Embassy in Washington for full reports on the Crowley case in order that it may consider what steps can be taken as it is believed here that the grand jury's action does not tally with evidence in the hands of the British government.

Capt. Crowley, testifying before the Federal grand jury in New York, said that Thomas, who is a former officer of the Royal Welsh Fusiliers, had been observed acting strangely on the first night out from Southampton and was placed under guard in the ship's hospital. Subsequently Thomas escaped, the captain said, and obtained possession of an ax but finally was caught again and shackled to the skipper during a heavy storm.

Members of the crew testified that when Thomas became violent a fire hose was turned on him as he stood handcuffed to Capt. Crowley and both were drenched. Subsequently Thomas was trans-shipped to a steamer bound for New York to be sent back to England. After hearing testimony, the grand jury yesterday exonerated Capt. Crowley. The cruelty charges had been brought against the captain as the result of a communication from Sir Esme Howard, the British Ambassador, to Secretary of State Kellogg.

Mobs Plunder City of China

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27. (AP)—Chaotic conditions at Swatow, China, are reported in a message to the State Department today telling of the plundering of Chinese shops, banks and residences by a mob on the nights of the 23rd and 24th inst.

The local government officials and police have disappeared, it was added, and a "prominent Communist" has been appointed Commissioner of Foreign Affairs. The agitation is said to have been due to the circulation of Communist propaganda.

The American gunboat Asheville is at Swatow.

Tax on Freight Trucks Opposed

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 27. (AP)—Serving as notice that a movement is under way to free freight trucks of the 5 per cent gross receipts tax voted by the people last November, the California Interurban Motor Freight Association, headed by Chester A. Nelson, today sent Secretary of State Jordan a copy of an initiative petition that is to be circulated to accomplish this. The petition was sent to Jordan for reference to Atty.-Gen. Webb, who will prepare a summary and then return it for circulation.

Haitians Freed in Plot Faking

PORT AU PRINCE (Haiti) Sept. 27. (AP)—Three Haitian journalists, arrested the 19th inst. for publication of an article charging that the United States was negotiating secretly with the Haitian government for establishment of a powerful naval and military base, were released today.

The order for their release came after the charges had been met by complete denials in the United States and Haiti and after the journalists it is stated, had admitted that the charges were false.

OLDEST AMERICAN MISSIONARY DEAD

MOTHER EDWARDS, WHO WENT TO AFRICA IN 1869, ENDS LABORS WITH ZULUS

BOSTON, Sept. 27. (AP)—A cablegram to the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions announces the death of Mrs. Mary E. (Mother) Edwards, the oldest missionary of the board. Death came on Saturday, last, at her home in Natal, South Africa.

"Mother" Edwards was 98 years of age and a native of Ohio. She served as an active missionary for fifty-two years. In 1920 she was placed on the honor roll but continued to be a vital part of the Zulu Mission, although she had been failing bodily and had been blind for the last ten years her mental vigor was unimpaired.

She sailed for Africa in 1869 as the first missionary sent out by the Woman's Board of Missions, now a part of the American board. In the same year she founded Indiana Seminary, now the oldest boarding school for Zulu girls in Natal. She established there a domestic science course, bought land and planted a large garden and raised poultry.

At the age of 80 years she took a course in nursing in order to pass on to Zulu women some knowledge of this profession.

AIRPLANE FROM HERE REACHES VANCOUVER

VANCOUVER (B. C.) Sept. 27. (AP) The monoplane The Queen of the Yukon, sister ship to Col. Lindbergh's plane, arrived here today from Los Angeles. A. D. Cruikshank, former Royal Air Force aviator, piloted the plane, which carried four passengers, including an infant. The machine is to be shipped to White Horse, Y. T., where it will be equipped with skis and used for mail and passenger service between Yukon points during the winter. The plane will cut the twelve-day mail route between White Horse and Dawson to five hours.

Veteran Engineer Dies on Last Run

CAMBRIDGE (O.) Sept. 27. (AP)—Joseph Robe, veteran engineer of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, was killed while making his last trip at the throttle when his locomotive and three cars of a Cincinnati-Pittsburgh passenger train were derailed near Cassel, O. He had expected to retire from the service at the end of the run. The locomotive and one of the cars rolled over a ten-foot bank. The fireman, T. A. Albun of Newark, O., was badly scalded and may die. No passengers were injured.

Robe was 63 years of age and lived at Newark.

GOEBEL FOGBOUND AT AMARILLO, TEX.

AMARILLO (Tex.) Sept. 27. (AP)—Art Goebel, winner of the Dole race to Hawaii, reached Amarillo late today after fighting fog and icy mists since early in the morning, when he left El Paso en route to Bartlesville, Okla. He will stay in Amarillo overnight. Goebel, flying the Woolaroco, was forced down at noon near Fort Sumner, N. M., after losing his way in heavy fogs which he ran into shortly after leaving El Paso. He will leave for Bartlesville early tomorrow.

LEVINE HOPS FOR ROME

VENICE (Italy) Sept. 27. (AP)—Charles A. Levine, who came here from Vienna to see the Schneider Cup race which was held yesterday, left aboard his monoplane the Columbia this morning for Rome. Levine and his pilot, Capt. Walter Hinchcliffe, decided to make the trip to Venice after their Far East nonstop record attempt had failed last week because of adverse weather conditions.)

NEW SHIP LINE RUMOR AFLOAT

Addition of Another Service Intercoastal Brews

Independent Steel Concerns Said to be Sponsors

Development Interpreted as Protective Measure

Another intercoastal cargo line is reported in process of formation at New York to be backed, according to the stories, by the independent steel companies on the Atlantic Coast.

The development is interpreted as a protective move on the part of independents to meet increased competition from the two big steel companies, the second of which, Bethlehem, has put on its own steamship service, the Calmar Line, within the last two weeks.

The other rival, the United States Steel Company, long has operated its own ships here under the house flags of the Pinkerton Line, Isthmian Line, Argonaut Line and the Robin Line.

C. L. Dimon, owner and operator of a number of ships out of New York, is named most frequently as the leading figure in a new intercoastal service by the independents, and his purchase of three vessels from the Shipping Board early this month lends color to the rumor. The three, however, could be no more than a nucleus for an intercoastal fleet and no information is available on other possible bottoms.

Independents have been shipping something like 150,000 tons of steel products yearly to this coast, but many doubt if this all could be guaranteed to any one steamship line now operating or induced to start in the service. Bethlehem in turn ships approximately twice that amount west, and United States Steel a pretentious amount.

Incidentally, the entry of Bethlehem's Calmar Line already has had its effect on one or two intercoastal services heretofore hauling much of Bethlehem's products. Certain ships already have put in here materially lighter from the other coast, and their decks are not covered several days when ships as pertained before the Calmar Line took Bethlehem's offerings away from them.

PROBLEM OF SURGE IN CHANNEL UNSOLVED

Imminent widening of the channel to 1000 feet by removal of Deadman's Island, in addition to aiding navigation by a broader thoroughfare, is expected to save channelside stations many thousands of dollars yearly by lessening the surge and the wakes of passing ships. The latter snap countless lines of ships tied at stations fronting the channel and disconcert those loading such ships.

Pan American Petroleum Company is expected to benefit directly by such widening, as its loading station, regarded by E. L. Doheny as of the most complete in the world, is opposite the island, which pushes halfway across the channel, forcing passing ships close to the oil dock. As a result, tankers at the docks get the full brunt of the wakes.

Incidentally, land reclaimed southeast, by the removal of the island, is expected to lessen the violence of the surge up the channel. Little, however, can be done to lessen the surge in the outer harbor, according to Port Engineer Nicholson. He is nearing completion of studies seeking such solution, with a big model reproducing all the elements and water movements actually encountered outside.

As the real breakwater is 40 per cent porous, the model breakwater was made water tight, but the surge, which had poured through the breakwater, then passed around and entered as strong as ever. A vent was tried on the model, to permit surge waters in the outer-harbor slip to pass into the main channel, but a disastrous current was set up in the latter. The only material curtailing of the surge, from a study of the model, Nicholson said, appears possible when the breakwater is extended east, and the gap of the open sea shortened. Even that is not a complete remedy.

David P. Fleming, secretary of the Wilmington Transportation Company, has heard so much about Rich Hill, Mo., that he is accompanying that thriving city's favorite son, Harry Mason, back there today, just to look the place over. Harry, incidentally, has a rich hill right at the Wilmington terminal, where he dispenses provender to the shipping fraternity and Catalina-bound thousands. They are accompanied by their wives, and will continue on to Chicago to call on William Wrigley, Jr., before proceeding to New York for part of the world series.

The Nebraskan sailed for the east coast last night with 9800 weight tons of Pacific products after taking on 2000 tons here and leaving some behind on the dock for lack of space to carry more. Borax and beans, copper and cotton, canned goods and rices were chief items out of here. The Nebraskan is the former United American Lines steamer Kermit, bought by American Hawaiian three months ago. She retains her old commander, Capt. W. M. Strong, who was with the present line before sailing for U.A.L.

R. R. Soberance, accountant with the State Department of Finance at Sacramento, arrived at Terminal Island fish laboratories yesterday to make a periodic inspection. Due to the excellent condition of the books, he said his visit is little more than a formality.

The British Admiralty tanker Olsander, in today from United Kingdom after dropping half its 73,000 barrels of creosote at San Francisco, will discharge the rest here for the Southern Pacific Lines, and go back into the Chile Steamship Company's run to Tocopilla. J. A. Wilson, marine superintendent of the latter, is out from New York to re-enter her in the service. The Admiralty tanker British Beacon will drop 9000 tons of creosote for the Santa Fe at San Diego October 4, and the Scottish Minstrel, also of the British Admiralty, is due here October 2 from England to go under time charter to G. W. McNear of New York. W. H. Wickersham represents the owners here.

Panama Mail Steamship Company's intercoastal liner Venezuela is due with 100 passengers from New York via Central America at daylight this morning. Their liner City of Panama had been set back from Monday to Friday, southbound to Panama from San Francisco, according to new sailing schedules.

Fish totaling only 2,582,434 pounds passed over the wharves of canners and wholesalers at Los Angeles Harbor during July, according to Fish and Game Commission figures just released. It is almost 50 per cent under the corresponding month last year. Bluefin led with 1,109,777 pounds, followed by albacore with 594,929 pounds.

CONFERENCE IN STUDENT STRIKE HELD

Indiana Mayor Intervenes as 800 Quit Schoolroom on Admitting of Negroes

GARY (Ind.) Sept. 27. (AP)—Pupils of Emerson High School, more than 800 of whom were on strike because of the enrollment of negroes in their classes, put it up to the city and school officials today to remedy the situation.

When less than 600 of the 1400 attending the school reported today, Mayor Williams called a conference of the Board of Education and teachers to discuss a possible way out.

The presence of more than twenty negroes and reports that more were to be entered caused a revolt yesterday among the white pupils.

Boy Confesses Shooting Child

NEW YORK, Sept. 27. (AP)—Investigation of the murder of Angelina Constanzo, 7 years of age, took a new turn today when suspicion centered upon her 10-year-old cousin, William Saltarelli, who is said to have confessed to the shooting.

Saltarelli talked freely after long questioning by police and told how he had accidentially discharged the shotgun with which Angelina was killed yesterday while she slept, and then ran away to hide while detectives tried to reconstruct the happenings leading up to the crime.

Diaggio Arsenio, 62, was arrested after Angelina's mother had discovered her child's body, but he denied charges by the police that he had killed the girl as the outcome of a family feud.

El Licor Sigue Entrando Abundantemente en los Estados Unidos

FILADELFIA, Septiembre 27.—En el curso del año pasado enviaron los contrabandistas canadienses a los Estados Unidos diecinueve buques cargados de licor, según asegura M. J. Long, que fue radiotelefonista del vapor "Clackamas", y es hoy agente prohibicionista federal.

Dice Long que, de esos diecinueve barcos, sólo dos, el Clackamas y el Bulko, dejaron de desembarcar su cargamento. Lo desembarcado por los demás se estima en millones de dólares. Los dos citados fueron apresados aquí, después de haber descargado parte de su licor en Newark (Nueva Jersey). Al Clackamas lo cogieron en Febrero último, y al Bulko hace dos semanas.

UNION LEADERS ARRIVE TODAY

Mayor Will Greet Green and Other Officials

Federation Convention Will Be Started Monday

Label Department to Have Open Meeting Tonight

Mayor Cryer and local union officials will welcome to Los Angeles today President William Green of the American Federation of Labor and executives of the organization which is to hold its forty-seventh annual convention here during the next two weeks. The union officials will arrive in two special coaches on the Southern Pacific's Los Angeles Limited at 10 a.m. They come from the federation's national headquarters in Washington, D. C.

A special Union Pacific train at 11 a.m. will bring the majority of the delegates to the convention. Edward Dalton of the California State Federation of Labor, President Paul Scharrenberg of the Los Angeles Central Labor Council and a number of other officials will meet the train with a band and automobile parade.

On President Green's party and the special train party will be escorted from the Arcade Depot to the headquarters which is headquarters for the federation's activities while here. Mr. Bidwell and a committee of local labor men called on Mayor Cryer yesterday and he promised officially welcome the union leaders.

Hundreds of delegates from the South, South and Southwest will arrive in smaller groups at various times during the remainder of the week and Sunday. Sunday. President William L. Hutcheson of the International Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners and his staff from their headquarters in Indianapolis arrived in a special train on the Southern Pacific's Golden State Limited yesterday. President Frank Buddell of the International Union of Steam and Operating Engineers and his staff from their headquarters in Chicago also arrived the day before. A considerable number of lesser 'units' of labor and a number of delegates already are here.

MEETING TONIGHT

The first preliminary meeting of importance will be held tonight when a mass meeting of those active in the federation's union label department will be conducted in Labor Temple beginning at 8 o'clock. Plans have for their particular field of promotion of the campaign to induce purchasers of all kinds of articles to buy only those bearing the union label.

Tomorrow at 10 a.m. in the Alexandria will begin the three annual conventions of the Building Trades Department, Metal Trades Department and Union Label Department. These have individual organizations which assemble apart from the federation and their conventions will run simultaneously through tomorrow, Friday and Saturday.

On Saturday the International Allied Printing Association will hold its annual meeting. It will be in the Alexandria Hotel. Yesterday the executive council of the Stationary Engineers' Union held a joint meeting with California officers of the organization in Labor Temple. Also on Saturday union plumbers from all over the Southland and visiting unions will have a picnic and outing in Rose Hill Park all day.

CHIEF ISSUES

Sunday evening will take place the closing social events of the convention. In Labor Temple the California group will give a smoker for the unionists and in Musicians' Hall California women active in union affairs will give a banquet for the women.

The American Federation of Labor convention itself will begin Monday morning in Cinderella Roof Dance Hall. Secretary Buzzell said one of the chief issues at the meeting this week will be promotion of a short working week for union workers throughout the United States.

Another issue, it is believed, will be preparation for a campaign against the so-called company unions or organizations of employees of a company who will not affiliate with the federation. Federation leaders have been bitter against such unions and also against all other forms of workers in an industry who own shares in it. This question of the fewer work days in a week and proposals are expected to receive particular attention.

President Green, it is predicted by many, will be re-elected without opposition, or at least without opposition that will amount to anything. He has been president in 1924.

The convention is expected to attract some 600 union officials and delegates together with about that number in addition from allied international unions including wives, other relatives and friends of the delegates.

PROSPECT FOR OPERA PLEASING

Record Season Expected in Los Angeles With New Standard of Quality

"The future of opera never looked so bright in Los Angeles as it does today," said George Leslie Smith and Merle Armitage, managers of the Los Angeles Grand Opera Association, now in its fourth successful season. "It seems that all Southern California is interested in the opera this year, and is waking up to the fact that opera as splendid as may be seen in either New York or Chicago may be heard here in Los Angeles.

GEORGE LESLIE SMITH

"The advance-seat sales which now are approaching the $75,000 mark are conclusive proof of the fact that Los Angeles is ready to support attractions of the highest merit. The motion-picture people are supporting the opera as never before, as they have a realization of the fact that our performances have reached a high state of excellence. Opening October 3, the association will present thirteen performances, eleven of which are in the subscription series, while 'Aida' and a repeat performance of 'Turandot' will be given outside the series. season-ticket holders will have eleven performances, as in the past."

According to the management, out-of-town orders are receiving special attention.

Rudolf Laubenthal, Wagnerian tenor of the Metropolitan Opera-house, will be heard for the first time here in opera, and will sing Tristan in "Tristan and Isolde" on Tuesday evening, October 4.

SMOOT HOPES FOR TAX SLASH

Senator Believes Coolidge Really Out of Race

Sees Hoover and Hughes as Strongest Candidates

Much Will be Done at Next Session, He Thinks

President Coolidge, when he uttered his now politically famous statement to the effect that he does not choose to be a candidate for the Presidency in 1928, meant that he does not want, wish or desire to run for re-election, that he is out of the race entirely. This is the view of Senator Reed Smoot of Utah, who is visiting his daughter at Long Beach during the present Congressional recess.

While Senator Smoot is convinced that this is the President's intention, nevertheless he sees a remote possibility that Mr. Coolidge might be drafted to run again for election. But it is only in the event that the next Republican convention should meet an impasse and be totally unable to agree upon a candidate that the Utah Senator believes this possibility would exist. And he is not of the opinion that the convention will become deadlocked.

The outstanding candidates for the highest office in the nation, as seen by Senator Smoot, are Charles Evans Hughes and Herbert Hoover. But he declines to make any positive prediction this far in advance of the convention.

FORESEES MUCH POLITICS

The senior Senator from Utah and custodian of the nation's moneybags of the upper house of Congress, stated that in his opinion an extra session would have been most useful to the law-makers and to the country at large. But he believes a great deal will be accomplished when Congress does convene in December, although he fears that every legislative action will be tinged with politics by those in opposition to such action. This he deplores, but his almost a quarter of a century in the Senate has convinced him that it is to be expected.

While Senator Smoot declines to become loquacious relative to the Presidential situation, he will talk freely of national finances. He stated last night that he had hoped it would be possible to reduce expenditures—and consequently revenues—to the extent of $350,000,000 at the next session of Congress. Despite the fact that several extraordinarily heavy special expenditures are contemplated, including Muscle Shoals, a larger navy and various irrigation projects, he still is optimistic that this reduction figure can be reached.

FAVORS REDUCING EXCISE TAX

The first place that a reduction should be made, says Senator Smoot, is on corporation taxation. Corporations are still paying the war-time levy of 13 1-2 per cent. This, he believes, will be reduced by 1 1-2 per cent—making the total of approximately $150,000,000. The next desirable reduction and one which Senator Smooth is pledged to work for is that of excise taxes, covering amusements, automobiles and other so-called luxuries. This would show another $100,000,000, according to the Senator Smoot is pledged to work for reduction, he says, in the income tax in which terms intermediates. This would include manufacturing and business houses with incomes of from $20,000 to $40,000 and would account for at least another $100,000,000.

At the present time, he asserts, there are barely 4,000,000 income taxpayers in the entire country, this including individuals, partnerships and corporations. In connection with the proposed reduction for the intermediates, it is the intention of Senator Smoot to advocate a simplified form of income-tax blank. In order that the average individual, called upon to make returns, may do so without the aid of experts.

DISCUSSES CITY BEAUTIFUL

Another matter on which Senator Smoot waxes eloquent is the mammoth beautification plan for the city of Washington. Congress, he stated, has mapped out a ten-year program

RECEIVERS IN CHAPLIN CASE PAID

Comedian's ex-Wife Gets $35,000 Legal Bill Cut to $15,000 for Quick Cash

Lita Grey Chaplin, divorced wife of the screen comedian, Charles Chaplin, paid her last legal debt yesterday. Settlement of receivership fees amounting to $7500 each to Attorneys W. I. Gilbert and Herman Spitzel was made by her counsel, Attorney Roland Rich Woolley.

LITA GREY CHAPLIN

Attorneys Gilbert and Spitzel were named by the court when the sensational suit of the screen comedian's wife was filed. They were in charge of the pair's affairs until a few weeks ago, when Chaplin settled with his wife for approximately $625,000. Chaplin also is scheduled to pay the same receivers $5000 each.

Questioned in connection with the rumor of the payment of the receivers' fees, Attorney Woolley admitted the settlement and said that today he will file the necessary documents showing satisfaction of the debt.

Originally the court set the receivers' fees at $45,000, ordering Chaplin to pay $10,000 of that amount and Mrs. Chaplin to pay the remainder. By common consent of the attorneys, however, it was learned that Mrs. Chaplin's bill is settled for the $15,000 paid yesterday. The comedian also is facing the cost and expenses of the suit.

Mrs. Chaplin at present is in New York.

Hawaii Governor Due Here Friday

Wallace R. Farrington, Governor of the Hawaiian Islands, will arrive in Los Angeles Friday on the Lasseo liner, City of Los Angeles, according to radio advices received at the harbor last night.

The purpose of the unexpected trip of the island executive to the mainland at this time is unknown. At the harbor it is thought possible that Gov. Farrington may be en route to Washington.

Joseph Farrington, son of the Governor, recently visited Los Angeles as part of an extended tour of the mainland. Mrs. Frances Whittemore, a daughter, also came here soon after her brother's return to Hawaii.

All former residents of Steuben county, Indiana, are invited to a basket picnic Sunday, October 3, at City Park at Whittier. Burl Martin, president of the Lions' Club, will be host to all former Hoosiers.

Protests against the paving of Broad avenue from 5 street to Anaheim Road in the Harbor District will be heard by the City Council on November 2.

SHAKING UP AT MUSEUM URGED

Grand Jury Sharply Scores County Institution

Ousting of Two Taxidermists Recommended

Director Bryan Flayed for Allowing Dissension

Radical changes in the management of the Los Angeles County Museum, including the discharge of two taxidermists, were recommended yesterday by the county grand jury in a report severely criticising the conduct of affairs at the institution. The report was filed yesterday with Presiding Judge Stephens of the Superior Court.

The report says the grand jury found a "most deplorable condition of mismanagement and waste of the taxpayers' money." It states the director, Dr. William A. Bryan, "does not function and has allowed dissension and insubordination to run rampant, thereby reducing the efficiency of his organization to a minimum." Dr. Bryan is now in New York on his way to Europe.

TAXIDERMIST WRITES BOOKS

Two taxidermists, John Rowley, who receives a salary of $400 a month, and J. P. Herring, who receives $275, are "personal enemies" and should be dismissed, the report states. It goes on to say that Rowley, since his appointment in 1921, has not prepared an animal for the museum but has spent "a great amount of the county's time writing two books, which have been published." He sold one of these to the county for $7.

JOHN ROWLEY

The report, which is voluminous and includes a report of the grand jury auditor, says the cost of mounting the groups of animals was a total of $64,318.03 in excess of what the cost should have been. It is pointed out that the cost of mounting the African group was $102,578.36, whereas the cost should have been but $36,156.51; and that the cost of mounting the North American group was $53,103.95, whereas the cost should not been more than $25,208.77.

EXHIBIT COSTLY

The grand jury says the county finds itself in a peculiar situation with regard to the Gen. Munthe Chinese collection, brought here for exhibition purposes, agreeing to pay only $5000. The expenses so far have reached $10,000 and the county finds itself in the position of paying an additional sum to ship the exhibit back to China or to find a buyer for the use of the exhibit, which is valued at $500,000. The exhibit has been here four months, it is stated, and has been on exhibition only one month.

It is stated in the report that the enmity between the taxidermists was probably caused by the fact that Rowley was appointed by the Board of Supervisors, to work without civil service, where Herring is under civil service. Rowley, it is stated, did not feel he was under the direction of Dr. Bryan.

It also is said Rowley retained in his possession field notes of the South African expedition, refusing to turn them over to the museum files. When a grand jury committee asked for the notes, Rowley said they belonged to Leslie Simson of Berkeley, who conducted the expedition at the county's expense. Rowley was subpoenaed before the grand jury and told to bring the notes, but when he appeared he said he had mailed them to Simson. It was then learned, the report states, that Rowley had made a copy of the notes for himself "so he could hold a check over the Board of Supervisors."

FIELD NOTES KEPT

The jurors said Dr. Bryan did not prefer charges against Rowley for two reasons: First, because of Rowley's friendship for Supervisor Bean; two, because Rowley had retained the field notes of the South African expedition and no one would be able to mount the animals if he should leave.

The report of the inquisitorial body brings out that the organization of the institution includes a board of governors, one of whom is Supervisor McClellan, who also represents the Board of Supervisors, and under the board is Dr. Bryan, director, who is over the heads of various departments.

Rowley placed the blame for the shake-up in museum affairs on office politics, intrigue and developments over which he had no control. "I have nothing to say about other members of the staff," he said. "I have seen for some time what was

Civil Service Commission Torn by Strife as it Votes to Accept Resignation

The smoldering fire of discontent in the Civil Service Commission flared up again yesterday when the matter of the resignation of Col. D. W. Thickstun, chief examiner, was brought up for consideration. The resignation, which was accepted after a prolonged discussion, revived discussion of the fitness of Clifford Amsden as general manager of the commission and disclosed that the commission remains hopelessly divided on the question.

COL. D. W. THICKSTUN.

It was revealed at yesterday's meeting that charges against Amsden's fitness have been filed by two commissioners, Miss Mary J. Workman, the president, and William A. Schreider. The charges are to be read at next week's meetings.

Following their failure to have the board reconsider the resignation of Col. Thickstun, whose work was highly praised by both Miss Workman and Schreider, Miss Workman admitted that she is "considering seriously" the resignation from the board.

MISS MARY WORKMAN

Schreider has intimated that he will resign, saying that the board is divided into two factions and that Amsden has proved himself unfit for the job as general manager of the commission. A verbal clash between Schreider and C. E. Kenyon, another member of the board, featured the session of the commission yesterday. Kenyon asserting that the general manager should have entire charge of the civil service and Shreider maintaining that the general manager should not go over the heads of the departments in the matter of employing personnel.

BULLOCK HEADS NEW COMPANY

Letts Estate Interests to be Taken Over

Ten-Story Building Will Rise on Hill Street

Old Personnel and Policies to be Unchanged

Organization of a new corporation under the presidency of John G. Bullock to take over the interests of the estate of the late Arthur Letts in Bullock's Inc., has been effected, it was announced yesterday. Mr. Bullock and associates who with him have directed the old Bullock organization will continue as heads of the new corporation and Bullock's policy will continue unchanged, it was declared.

Early next year the corporation will begin construction of a ten-story Class A structure on property now under lease at Hill and Seventh streets and when completed Bullock's will have more than twenty acres of floor space. In addition to this a lease is held on adjacent Hill-street property to the north that will admit of an additional seventy-foot extension as occasion requires. A block-long service building on Stanford avenue, between Tenth and Eleventh streets, eventually to be six stories high, already has a basement and two stories.

POLICY TO CONTINUE

"Bullock's is appreciative of the wonderful friendship and support that has been given this business since its earliest days," Mr. Bullock said. "It has been and will continue to be the earnest endeavor of Bullock's to keep the faith—to measure up to those standards that we have come to know are the expectations of our customers. I do not believe I could say anything that would be more significant or more sincere or that would mean more than this."

The announcement said that Mr. Bullock, who organized Bullock's in 1906-07 and since has directed its rise, will be president of the new corporation; P. G. Winnett, vice-president and general manager since Bullock's foundation, will be general manager in the new organization; H. M. Bigelow, for many years superintendent and with the organization since its inception, will continue active in the new corporation; W. O. Sampson and W. A. Holt, with Bullock's, respectively, seventeen and twenty years, will continue, respectively, as secretary-treasurer and director of publicity.

PERSONNEL TO BE SAME

"These men form the executive board of Bullock's and will continue in the same functions," the announcement said. "There is to be no change in the management of Bullock's. The personnel and policies that have been responsible for the notable success of the business will be continued."

Bullock's began March 4, 1907, in a one-story building at Broadway and Seventh street with a 164,051-square-foot floor area when the main retail district lay north of Fifth street. Today Broadway and Seventh is one of the busiest street intersections in the world. The store now includes 739,186 square feet of floor. In the immediate vicinity are some of the city's highest real-estate values. In the first year Bullock's did a $1,489,063 business. In its latest year it did more than $23,000,000, the announcement said.

The 1-o'clock-Saturday closing was inaugurated by the store in 1919. It is a member of the Associated Merchandising Corporation, comprised of eighteen of the leading stores in the United States.

CLASS FOR ADVERTISERS

The Advertising Club of Los Angeles yesterday announced a class in business forecasting, starting tonight at 7 o'clock at room 1207 Transportation Building. It will be conducted every Wednesday evening for eleven weeks under direction of Prof. George J. Eberle of the University of Southern California, who is head of the department of public utilities and president of the Eberle Economic Service. The class is open only to Advertising Club members.

The Lancer

by Harry Corr

THE Attorney-General, using the brains the Lord gave him, refuses to ask the Court of Appeals to uphold the convictions in the Kerrick murder trial.

This was the case of the movie cowboy who was killed at a bootleg booze party.

A Los Angeles judge gave the truly astounding ruling that they were all guilty of murder because they should not have been drinking bootleg liquor. By the same token, every passenger in a public bus that happened to overstay the legal parking limit would be guilty of murder if a killing took place in the bus.

PROPHET, B'GOSH!

You may think this and that of The Lancer, but you gotta admit that as a prophet I am the seventh son of a seventh son. More than a week before the Dempsey-Tunney fight I said there would not be a knock-out, and that it would end in some unsatisfactory way that would leave everybody disputing as to which one won.

ON ICE

And now I'll tell you another: All this stuff about Dempsey's retirement is a lot of bunk. Tex Rickard has simply put another $3,000,000 fight between Dempsey and Tunney on ice for another session.

FRENCH COOKING

When the A.E.F. comes back from Paris, with them will come recipes for many weird dishes. The French have branched out recently in the matter of cooking.

One of these dishes is called "interspiced chicken." The sauces always served with chicken in France are not poured over the dish in the usual way; but are injected into the veins of the dead bird immediately after withdrawing the blood. Among other novelties is the meat of a kind of lizard grown in Algeria. Chinese and Japanese food also is popular.

CLEO'S NOSE

Recent historical research is a little tough on the grand romance.

Pascal wrote that if Cleopatra's nose had been a little shorter it would have changed the history of the world. Other writers have said if it was a little longer, it would have changed the history of the world.

Recent coins have been found inscribed with the lady's portrait. And, alas, it was not her nose that charmed them. She had a big beak.

From which Perrero, the Italian historian, concludes that she wasn't such a vamp after all; that it was a cold, political deal; a union brought about to save her succession to the throne.

THE UNFINISHED SYMPHONY

A prize of $10,000 has been offered to the composer who can must successfully finish "The Unfinished Symphony" of Schubert. Which is probably more money than poor Frans Schubert got for all his music put together.

GENE'S BOOK

Prize fighting is becoming distinctly highbrow. Monte Munn is a Nebraska legislator; Wiry Wade, a short-story writer; Martin O'Grady, a Detroit lawyer; Tiger Flowers, a preacher; Dave Shade and Sully Montgomery, college men; Fidel La Barba, a Stanford student. To which a wise-cracking newspaper man adds that Gene Tunney owns a book and has been photographed reading it.

RIVERSIDE FAIR OPENED

March Field and Indian School Among Exhibitors at Gorgeous Southland Show

BY BURTON L. SMITH

RIVERSIDE, Sept. 27.—Donning its annual holiday attire the Riverside fair ground presents a gorgeous appearance today as a setting for the fifteenth yearly Southern California Exposition here. Exposition is exactly what it is. Long since the show had outgrown the ordinary fair class by combining the exhibits and attractions which make these agricultural events popular, with the more varied showings of the commercial, manufacturing and marketing organizations which have made the prosperity and progressiveness of this community possible. Alongside the government's most modern exhibit of aircraft, is the old-time hot-dog stand and near by a display of the best in art, a merry-go-round and Ferris wheel hold the interest of all who have not forgotten the thrills of yesterday and the old-time county fair of long ago.

The show is built around a California garden which occupies the entrance space and facing it are three main tents in which are housed the agricultural, industrial and Indian school display. Each is a storehouse of beauty and interesting showings and in each the visitors find much to hold their attention. In the agricultural tent nine counties and fourteen different communities have erected booths most artistically decorated, in which are attractive displays of products of field and garden, farm and ranch, shop and store.

DATE SHOW FEATURE

Adding to the interest of these displays, a date show, possible in but few communities of the country, occupies the entire end of the tent. Here in a series of booths built around an oriental motif is displayed a numberless variety of the fruit of the Garden of Eden. Oriental rugs and hangings are used to best advantage as a background and the general arrangement of the display speaks much for the communities of the Coachella Valley, that have made the showing possible.

An entire side of the canvas is given to a rack display of ripened fruit which for color, variety and perfection, is seldom seen in one exhibition. The Glenwood nurseries with a formal garden are exhibiting a variety of plants and shrubs, cut flowers and trailing vines, which add materially to the ensemble. An elaborate example of the decorator's art is shown in the draperies which form the ceiling of the entire tent. As is the usual custom at the Riverside show, a feature is made of the exhibit of the Sherman Indian Institute. Here the work and handicraft of more than 800 tribesmen ranging in ages from 6 to 21 years, presents a wide variety and shows much careful workmanship and painstaking effort. Today the band from the school was the main musical attraction and a competitive military drill

GIRL'S ALL DAY TAXI JAUNT LEADS HER TO COUNTY JAIL

This is the story of a girl who chartered a taxicab just for the ride. Stella Mae Pritchard wanted to go shopping. But shopping is fatiguing sometimes. When one's tastes are varied, it is sometimes easier to do it by motor. So Miss Pritchard stepped to the curb, hailed a cab driven by J. M. McPhenen and set out on her tour.

STELLA PRITCHARD

While the hours passed by and the meter clicked merrily away, they went places and bought things. Then for a time they drove about the city observing parks, monuments and places of educational and historic interest. Then Miss Prichard had an impulse to go to Ventura, explaining that she wanted to collect a trunk at a hotel there. She obeyed that impulse. Suddenly, after they had gone some miles out Ventura Boulevard, a bright though tcame to McPhenen. He turned and asked his fare a very personal question. He inquired if she had any money.

A look of pain flickered in Miss Pritchard's eyes, as though to say, "Why bring that up?" and she admitted that she had none. Then McPhenen suggested that since they had spent the day going places where she wanted to go, it would only be fair to go one place where he wanted to go. He took her to Central Station. The total fare, including haulage to the last stop, came to $31.20. Miss Pritchard, who gave her age as 20 and her address as 3837 Ludo street, Lynwood, is in the County Jail, charged with defrauding a cab driver.

AUSTRALIAN TRADE HAILED

Telephone Official Returns From Antipodes Urging This City to Seize Opportunity

Los Angeles should expect highly important trade relations with Australia in the not far distant future, in the opinion of N. R. Powley, vice-president and general manager of the Southern California Telephone Company, who returned yesterday from a ten-week trip to the Antipodes.

Enthusiastic over the future possibilities of the continent of the South sea, Mr. Powley said more Southern Californians should visit Australia; Australians are great devotees of outdoor sports as evidenced by the newspapers, which carry some six pages of sporting news daily; Los Angeles in the not far-distant future will have trade relations of primary importance with Australian ports; from the standpoint of climate and industrial possibilities Sydney might well be called the "Los Angeles of the Southern Half of the World."

N. R. POWLEY

COPIES AMERICA

"Australia is adopting many things which are American," Mr. Powley said. "Outstanding among these is the city of Canberra where the new national capitol is now in the building. I visited Canberra and found the entire plan modeled closely after Washington, D. C.

"I should not be surprised to see the 6,000,000 population of Australia increase three-fold in twenty years. When thinking of that country, Americans must think of a continent as large as the United States in area and with tremendous natural resources rather than a big, bare island. Sydney has a population of 1,100,000 and Melbourne 800,000. The back country is rich in coal, gold, fine agricultural and grazing lands. The wool output today is the major project. With the evolution of more complete and rapid transportation and communication facilities to link Australia with the rest of the world, Australia will come into her own. Australia's people are exceedingly gracious and friendly and have the most cordial feeling for our country.

FUTURE TRADE

"The future holds much for both countries and a continued mutual trade relationship between us will be of pronounced benefit not only to her but to ourselves. We will make a profound mistake if we fail to keep our eyes on her development and the wonderful possibilities of her people and her future. It was a delight to visit this great continent and I am sure every one who has such an experience will come away desiring to express his friendship and reciprocate the cordiality and kindness."

Mr. Powley was accompanied on the trip by Mrs. Powley, their daughter June and son, Ned, Jr. The chief object of the long voyage was to visit the parents of Mrs. Powley, Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Bone of Sydney.

New Clews Sought in Hunt for Robbers of Power Bureau When First Leads Prove False

With criminal activities in the city apparently at a lull for the time being, police executives yesterday pressed forward vigorously in their campaign to rid the city of gangsters and gunmen. Chief of Police Davis, roused to fighting pitch by the recent crime orgy which had its climax in plundering of the Water and Power Bureau for a total of $73,600 by a gang of desperadoes, issued additional orders during the day which added materially to the mobile police force blanketing the city.

Under the new orders cars viewed with suspicion on the streets and highways will be halted and searched, and individuals who cannot explain their movements readily and satisfactorily when accosted by the officers likewise will be subjected to search for concealed weapons. Chief Davis's orders place all police call cars in the new scouting service. These cars will carry three patrolmen and one police sergeant, and they will supplement the activities of the twenty-speed cars previously placed in the new scouting service.

CRIME FALLS OFF

Increased activity of the police was attended by a decided falling off in the depredations of criminals yesterday. But two minor robberies were reported during the day. One involved the theft of an undetermined amount from the offices of the Prudential Adjusting Company in the Story Building.

The other was the hold-up of a feminine real estate operator in the Byrne Building at Third street and Broadway, where the bandit obtained a necklace and a diamond ring from the victim.

In the meantime, a special squad of detectives under the direction of Captain of Detectives Cato continued its investigation into the pandit raid on the offices of the Water and Power Bureau. Though their activities were marked by a close silence, it was reported that they were making rapid progress toward a solution of the daring crime.

Chief Davis, in his orders yesterday, also directed all officers to search every suspicious individual for concealed weapons.

SEARCH SYSTEM

Uniformed policemen on patrol duty will work in pairs, under the order, and will search all doubtful pedestrians. They will search parked cars and in every way aid in the patrol system inaugurated by Chief Davis.

While the auto details were being increased and uniformed men reassigned to cope with the situation, it was learned that as yet no men have been taken from traffic duty or from the vice squad.

"On the contrary," Deputy Chief Spellman said, "the vice squad has been ordered to make the town dryer and tighter than ever. These squads will work without changes in personnel or numbers and will make such hangouts of crooks and gunmen unpleasant places to be."

The order from Chief Davis followed a lengthy conference between police officials at Central Station, Commissioner Webster and all divisional commanders.

While this conference was in session, Capt. Cato and his men continued their investigation into the $73,600 Water Bureau hold-up.

HAT CLEW FAILS

At a meeting with Water Bureau officials and the employees who were victims in the hold-up, Capt. Cato met with no success in his efforts to obtain identification of the bandits from the identification bureau photographs of known criminals.

Yesterday's investigation into the robbery also blew up the clew offered in the light felt hat dropped by one of the robbers in his flight from the building. The hat was traced to a second-hand store on Spring street but the proprietor of the store convinced the police that he had sold the hat and had nothing to do with the robbery, according to Capt. Cato.

No arrests have been made in connection with the Water Bureau robbery, or in the series of other depredations recorded during the carnival of crime Monday.

A lone bandit attacked Miss Emily C. R. Peterson, a real estate broker, with offices at 240 Byrne Building, and robbed her of a necklace and a diamond ring, according to her report to police yesterday. The woman said she was thrown to the floor and her jewelry taken from her when she surprised a man in her office when she arrived there at 9 a.m.

BANDIT DESCRIBED

Miss Peterson, who lives at 837 Cole street, gave a description of the bandit as being a large man with reddish hair and wearing a light gray suit. Nothing was taken from the office, according to police.

According to police reports an elevator boy left registered mail for the Prudential Adjusting Company before the door of the concern before opening early yesterday morning. Some one passing through the hall is thought to have taken the mail, which may, or may not, have contained a large amount of money.

While police were bending their efforts toward solving the robbery and to police the town against further outbreaks from the underworld, no change could be ascertained in the Water Bureau situation. The bureau is covered by robbery insurance protecting it from inside theft, but whether the amount of the loss will be paid could not be learned.

The Water Bureau was robbed of its pay roll when two armed men held up three officials of the city department and forced them to open the safe. Others of the gang preceding by half had kidnaped Fred Kimpel, one-armed guard who guarded the office on paydays, and threw him from a car in Alhambra.

CONFIDENCE FELT

Mayor Cryer and President Webster of the Police Commission, after a conference yesterday on the epidemic of banditry, agreed that the commission and the police department should center their efforts on the suppression of major crimes.

Full confidence in Chief Davis was expressed by Mayor Cryer, who said he feels confident the Police Chief and the commission can curb the present crime wave. Mayor Cryer declared that Los Angeles invariably meets such a crime increase at the start of the winter season because of the influx of criminals from the East.

Following the conference, President Webster said that the commission has asked for 100 additional motorcycles and twenty additional automobiles to aid in the work of crime detection. Mayor Cryer declared that every aid possible, within the city's financial ability, will be given the police department.

EX-OFFICER PASADENA BANK ROBBERY SUSPECT

"Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, Sept. 27.—Pasadena experienced a one-man crime wave of but short duration today when six employees and two patrons of the Pasadena Savings Bank were forced at the point of a gun to lie on the floor while the lone bandit made away with nearly $2000 in cash.

But within two hours of the robbery, police had arrested and obtained a confession from a man giving his name as Thomas Randall, 29 years of age, 1777 Pacific street. Police say that Randall was formerly City Marshall at Seal Beach but was discharged because of a liquor scandal and that he was later discharged from the Long Beach police force. The money was found in Randall's possession.

Randall told police that after he made his escape he drove into the hills and waited until he thought everything had blown over. As he was driving on Sinaloa street en route to Long Beach he was seen by Detective Sergeants Cropsey and Collins and taken into custody without a struggle.

Failure to obtain work since leaving the Long Beach force was given as his reason for holding up the bank. Police are questioning him to learn if he has been involved in any other robberies.

AUTOIST ROBBED WHILE CHANGING TIRE

While changing a tire on his car on Mariposa street between Third and Fourth streets, Clarence Steidle, 1405 Lincoln avenue, was held up by two bandits and robbed of $60. The men parked their car several feet away and turned up the sidewalk. When they came opposite Steidle, who was in his shirt sleeves, one of the men covered him with a gun while the other went through his coat, which was in the car. They then ran back to their own machine and fled.

Little Miss Prefers Learning to Fly to Learning Lessons

Guides Plane Herself

Ray J. Solomon and Betty Lou Coupe and (inset) Betty Lou Coupe

WITH the passing of the old swimming hole, the expansion of cities and the resultant elimination of watermelon patches and the like, young America virtually is without an incentive to play hookey from school but to Betty Lou Coupe, 9-year-old daughter of Mrs. H. P. Coupe, 626 South Alvarado street, a quest for thrills furnished a motive for dodging her daily reading, writing and arithmetic.

When Betty Lou failed to return from school Monday afternoon, her mother telephoned the school to inquire about her. The query brought the information that Betty had been absent.

Surprised, her mother pondered why Betty should be absent but later the child herself answered the question when she returned home, flushed with excitement and admitted to her mother she had been for an air ride.

"It was so exciting," she said. "I couldn't go to school when I knew I could fly."

Betty Lou is learning to fly under the tutelage of Ray Solomon of Cailles Field, near Monterey Park. She had made numerous flights, insisting since her first one that Solomon stunt with her. Without a promise of loops and spirals, Betty will not fly.

Solomon has taught her to work the controls, however, keeping a careful watch himself, but the child according to the pilot, is rapidly learning how to operate the plane and after a few months of flying will be able to qualify as a pilot, he says.

going on, but tried to play no part in it and have no intention of entering the controversy now."

GROUP MAY BE LOST

Loss of the African group of mammals on exhibition at the museum loomed as a possible development in the proposed shake-up, according to the terms of the agreement by which the specimens were obtained, Rowley said.

He declared the specimens were collected in Africa for the Los Angeles Museum by Leslie Simpson of Berkeley, internationally known mining engineer and big game hunter, only after he had obtained the promise of officials of the museum that Mr. Rowley would be employed as taxidermist to prepare the exhibits.

With this understanding, Rowley said, he left a museum in Oakland, of which he was director, and was employed by the Los Angeles County museum. Mr. Simpson went to Africa and spent four years in collecting some 300 specimens which he gave to the county free of charge, the only stipulation being that the freight charges to this city be paid.

Approximately 200 of the specimens taken by Mr. Simpson have been prepared and placed on exhibit, according to Rowley. One hundred remain to be prepared for exhibition. The taxidermist laughed at charges made by the grand jury that the specimens have been permitted to disintegrate and no longer are fit to be prepared for exhibits.

"The specimens have been preserved carefully and can be prepared for exhibition without difficulty," he said.

ADMITS WRITING BOOK

"As to the charges that I wrote a book while employed at the museum—it is true, in part. And what crime does that constitute? The book is the result of more than twenty years' work on my part. I never will reap any financial gain from this, for I have donated the royalties to a foundation for the advancement of taxidermy. In view of these facts, is it right that I should be prevented from jotting down the experiences of a lifetime during my spare moments?"

Rowley stated further that he has prepared virtually all of the African group for exhibition, denying the grand jury charge that he had done none of this work himself.

The grand jury made the following recommendations:

(1.) That the organization be changed so that the County Board of Governors comes immediately under the Board of Supervisors, the governors being given authority over the policies of the county museum, whose director should be responsible to and carry out the policies of the board.

NEW OFFICE RECOMMENDED

(2.) The office of business manager of the museum should be created to employ help for the institution and discharge any of the employees who are needless or who are not giving their best efforts to the county. This office immediately to examine all contracts now in effect and take steps to protect the county thereunder.

(3.) That Mr. Rowley and Mr. Herring be discharged, the positions of taxidermist and assistants being abolished, all future taxidermists' work be done on a per diem of contract basis by competent experts whose employment shall cease on completion of the work in hand.

(4.) That the board in the future make lawful contracts with competent and experienced parties to procure, properly prepare and ship any and all specimens desired for the museum, together with field notes and accessories necessary for properly mounting them.

"We find the Board of Supervisors has passed resolutions to pay certain expenses which seemed agreeable to the parties who were to do the work and then later passing other resolutions to pay additional amounts and that certain employees withheld field notes and data from the files to place the management at a disadvantage and embarrass them," the report says.

DEFINITE CONTRACTS URGED

(5.) That the board make lawful contracts for definite amounts with all parties owning exhibits desired for exhibition. "We find the board has agreed to pay certain sums for the freight charges and then later agreeing by resolution to pay additional charges," the report continues. "This tends to show the board is lax in handling such matters, when money could be saved by proper contracts in the first instance."

(6.) A proper accounting system is recommended for the museum, finding that this matter has been shamefully neglected and that the County Auditor has failed to perform his duty with regard to this department.

"Finally," says the report, we recommend that the Board of Supervisors put into effect the recommendations herein contained and maintain a proper supervision of the county museum and prevent further waste of the taxpayers' money."

CIVIL SERVICE ROW REVIVED

tion, addressed to the general manager of the board, follows:

"I tender my resignation as Chief Examiner, Civil Service Department, effective any date from today (September 22,) at the option of yourself or the board.

"Yourself and the board must have realized that your actions would force upon me this step as no sane individual could expect a subordinate to maintain discipline and esprit de corps in those under him when his sound recommendations were ignored and he himself humiliated repeatedly."

The letter was signed with "Yours for a meritorious merit system."

PARK GIVEN JOB

Although the entire board expressed themselves as sorry that Col. Thickstun should deem it necessary to take such action, Commissioner Stoneman expressed the opinion that there was nothing to do but accept the resignation as the general manager was the superior of the chief examiner. The vote accepting the resignation was unanimous, although Miss Workman and Schreiber had it recorded in the minutes that it was with the "greatest regret" that they accepted it.

Robert B. Park, who ranked first on the eligible list, was appointed chief examiner, effective October 1.

CASHIER FREE AFTER ARREST

M. J. Wolfe of Brea Bank Remains at Liberty

Clerk Found With Slashed Wrists Recovering

Latter's Accounts Declared to be in Order

M. J. Wolfe, vice-president and cashier of the First National Bank of Brea, against whom United States Commissioner Head issued a complaint Monday charging misappropriation of bank funds, remained at liberty yesterday, while Donald Fraser, youthful clerk in the institution, was recovering at the Glendale Research Hospital from what was reported to be self-inflicted wounds.

Simultaneously with the issuing of the complaint against Wolfe, which was signed by Federal Bank Examiner Lamb, police found young Fraser unconscious beside his automobile on Buckingham Road suffering from slashed wrists. A safety razor blade lay near by, and a note in his pocket bade farewell to his father in Altadena.

Officials at the Brea bank say Fraser is a trusted employee of the institution, and that there are no discrepancies in his accounts, but the Federal authorities assert there is a $1000 misappropriation charge against Wolfe.

Pending the arrest of Wolfe, it was rumored at the Federal Building yesterday that Federal examiners will begin a further check of several other outlying banks said to be affiliated with the Brea institution. Asst. U. S. Dist.-Atty. Layng said Fraser had been questioned at his office prior to the time he was found unconscious on Buckingham Road.

ANNUAL FAIR AT RIVERSIDE OPENS

by the boy students was one of the best attractions of the fair.

The industrial tent presents displays of local merchants in profusion and literally is full of the exhibits which excite interest and admiration. The latest in modern appliances, most toothsome of culinary products and the most beautiful in decorative materials, makes this department more than popular with home makers and housewives. Manufacturers of farm machinery, trucks and pumps have on display a great array of their wares which are proving of educational advantage to the progressive rancher.

MARCH FIELD DISPLAY

A display which by reason of its novelty and high educational value is the most talked-of exhibit in the show is a tent devoted to a display from March Field showing all that is new in aviation. United States Army officers and enlisted men are in charge and take pleasure in showing the visitors what has been done in aerial navigation in recent years. An assembled airplane is on exhibition together with a large number of motors, aerial guns, cameras, propellers, parachutes and all that goes to complete the equipment of the flying field.

The women's department, housed in two buildings, covers the entire field of feminine endeavor and adds a touch of charm found only in exhibits where "mere man" has been excluded. The women of Riverside county have more than done themselves proud and are most gracious hostesses to the visiting throng.

The poultry tent, stock pens and rabbit hutches are filled with prize-winning specimens in each class which promises close competition and much friendly rivalry. Judging in all departments will begin tomorrow and continue throughout the week. The afternoons are devoted to harness races, vaudeville, and thrillers which entertain the crowd that fill the great grand-stand. Roman chariot races, aeroplane stunts and daredevil high dives provide the hair-raising thrills of the program.

The evening events include a water circus, trained animal acts, pantomime and tribal dances by students of Sherman Institute and special music by orchestras and bands. This feature is outstanding and is being liberally patronized.

The fair will continue through Sunday with special attractions provided for each day and more than special attention paid to the Sunday show.

to cost $225,000,000 and to make of the capital the most beautiful city in the world—it is does not fill those specifications today. He said the mental picture has been painted and a large part of it reduced to blueprint form and one of the initial moves will be the completion of the most beautiful concourse in the world. Starting at the west of the White House this concourse will follow the Mall to the Washington Monument, turn and proceed to the Lincoln Memorial, turn west again and proceed to Arlington, crossing the Potomac over a bridge, at present under construction, that will cost in the neighborhood of $13,000,000 when completed.

Senator Smoot is not of the opinion that the tariff question will be broached at the coming session of Congress. He believes there is too large a program ahead that it will be necessary to carry through in a short space of time to allow any matters calling for lengthy debate.

The Senator will leave Southern California on October 13 and will proceed directly to Washington, where he will be busily engaged in preparation for the next session.

Alondra Park Bonds Ordered

An issue of bonds to the amount of $1,014,961.20 for the purpose of acquiring land and developing Alondra Park, and the Redondo-Riverside Boulevard, was authorized yesterday by the Board of Supervisors. County Counsel Mattoon also was directed to start proceedings for the condemnation of 300 acres of land for park purposes.

The park will border the boulevard and the entire right of way will be 225 feet wide. It will be landscaped along that section reaching from the Palos Verdes estates to the city limits.

Coed Culprits Face Amazon Court Friday

Co-ed violators of the traditions set down by the Trojan Amazons at the University of Southern California will be tried Friday when the Amazon Court meets in the recreation hall of the women's dormitory, 666 West Thirty-sixth street, with Chief Justice Betty Von KleinSmid, president of the Aamzons, officiating, assisted by two next highest in authority Trojanettes, Mildred Marta and Martha Wiggett.

The jury will consist of the entire body of Amazons, made up of sophomore and junior college women.

The fresh girls guilty of not wearing their green arm bands, of not going to chapel and sitting in the balcony, of using front walks on the Trojan campus, of sitting on the senior bench, of wearing prep school and high school jewelry, monograms or sweaters, of wearing hats, of parking cars on University avenue, of not continually carrying freshman bibles, will be dealt with.

FIVE OTHERS MODERNIZED

Five other old American battle ships, the New York, Utah, Florida, Wyoming and Arkansas, also have been modernized and work will start immediately on similar work on the U.S.S. Oklahoma and U.S.S. Nevada, America's first oil-burning dreadnaughts. The New York, sister of the Texas, also will join the fleet here in late October, becoming, like the Texas, a unit of Battleship Division Three.

Admiral Hughes, as the Texas dropped anchor, was accorded a salute of seventeen guns fired by the U.S.S. Procyon, flagship of Rear-Admiral Phelps, commanding the base force. When the present commander-in-chief is relieved on November 8 by Admiral Wiley he will go to Washington, where he becomes Chief of Naval Operations, succeeding Admiral Eberle.

The Texas is scheduled to base here with the battle fleet until April 8, next, when she will lead the entire fleet to Hawaii for maneuvers, later going to the Atlantic Coast with the scouting fleet.

San Fernando Valley Folk Ask Council to Raise Limit on Speed

There is one community in Los Angeles that is in favor of faster-moving fire engines, and that is in Wicks avenue in the San Fernando Valley, according to a copy of a resolution received by the City Council yesterday.

Modification of regulations limiting the speed of fire apparatus to twenty-five miles an hour was asked so as to permit fire engines to move there at the same rate of speed as is allowed traffic in other outlying territory.

Von Sternberg's Wife Divorced From Director

Joseph von Sternberg, cinema director, was divorced yesterday by Riza Marks von Sternberg, after brief proceedings before Judge Sproul in Superior Court. Mrs. von Sternberg is known on the screen as Riza Royce. Von Sternberg was pictrued by his wife as an unamiable husband.

"Always looking for a fight and cross as a bear," she declared in response to questions from her attorney, Alexander Sokolow, as to her husband's attitude about the home.

A property settlement whereby Von Sternberg agreed to pay his wife a substantial income for the next four years was approved by the court.

MAY STORE LAYS PLANS FOR THRONG

Police to Guard Traffic and Street Car Lines to Give Extra Service

Special policemen have been detailed to handle traffic around the May Company Department Store, Eighth street and Broadway, during the institution's seventh annual May Day sale tomorrow and extra cars are to be put in service by the Pacific Electric and Los Angeles Railway companies to handle the enormous crowds which are expected.

The aim of May Day, as described by David May, founder of the company, when this one-day event was inaugurated some years ago, is to "offer enormous quantities of the finest, most seasonable and desirable merchandise of certified quality obtainable at guaranteed lowest prices of the year." In order to follow out this aim the May Company agrees to sell merchandise at even lower than the advertised prices, provided this same merchandise is advertised by other stores at less than the company's advertised prices, as the idea in making this offer is to assure the buying public of the lowest prices of the year in appreciation of their patronage.

More than 6000 selling employees, augmented by extra salespeople, are to assist in making tomorrow's sale one of the biggest ever known in the company's history. Tom May, vice-president, said yesterday. Special luncheons have been arranged on the mezzanine floor as well as at several near-by restaurants and cafes for the convenience of May Day shoppers.

HUNTINGTON PARK TRIAL NEAR END

Tomorrow Expected to Bring Decision for Mayor and Two Policemen

Predictions that the trial of Mayor Blanchard and Policemen C. A. Imus and James M. Taft of Huntington Park, charged with resisting, obstructing and delaying an officer in the performance of his duty, will be completed by tomorrow in Municipal Judge McConnell's court, were made yesterday by Dep. Dist.-Atty. Kearney.

The complaining witness, W. P. Mahood, acting City Clerk of the municipality, accuses the trio of preventing him from checking over a recall petition directed against John W. Wood, City Trustee.

On orders of the Mayor, according to Mahood, the officers locked him up in the Town Jail when he reported for work and attempted to check the petition.

The charge against the trio is punishable by a fine of $5000 or five years' imprisonment or both.

Mack Molina, 22-year-old grocery clerk, who pleaded guilty of manslaughter in connection with the death June 19, last, of Miss Vera Schlegel, beauty shop operator, yesterday was sentenced by Judge Hardy to serve from one to ten years in San Quentin.

Molina was held responsible for Miss Schlegel's death in an automobile accident at Fourteenth street and Broadway. According to the probation officer's report, Miss Schlegel was a passenger in Molina's car. Molina was said to have been racing another automobile when his vehicle struck a depression and overturned, practically decapitating Miss Schlegel.

Prior to imposing sentence, Judge Hardy denied Molina's application for probation.

Mrs. Goldberg, Mother of Stage Star, Succumbs

Mrs. Rachel Goldberg, 72 years of age, mother of Nora Bayes, musical comedy star, and active philanthropic and charitable worker in Los Angeles for twenty-seven years died yesterday at her home, 132 South Kenmore avenue.

Born in Germany, Mrs. Goldberg came to this country fifty-six years ago. During her residence in California she furthered many relief projects. She was a member of the Pacific Chapter of the Order of Eastern Star, the Ladies' Auxiliary of B'nai B'rith and the Maccabees.

Besides Miss Bayes she leaves a son, Hugo Goldberg, Los Angeles, with whom she made her home, and another daughter, Mrs. Cern Mayers, Chicago.

Funeral services will be conducted tomorrow at 1 p.m. at Garrett Brothers' chapel, 921 Venice Boulevard, with Rabbi Magnin officiating.

Bankruptcy No Bar to Alimony, Judge Explains

A favorite theory of optimistic alimony evaders went glimmering yesterday after S. E. Matthews had tried it out.

Pearl A. Matthews was before Judge Shauer to get a divorce. She got her decree on cruelty charges and then her attorney, John J. Craig, brought up the question of a property settlement that had been made.

"The settlement provides Mrs. Matthews shall receive $15 a week," he related. "But since it was executed Matthews has gone through bankruptcy and now he says he doesn't have to make the payments."

"Lots of men seem to think that," Judge Shauer observed. "Therein they are badly mistaken. An alimony order or contract is not nullified by bankruptcy."

Old Battle on Undertaking Zone Reopens

The two-year old battle of Ruppe and Reynolds to conduct an undertaking business at 4500 Western avenue was reopened yesterday when the University Masonic Temple Association filed an application with the City Council to place the association's building in an undertaking zone.

The association built the building and Ruppe and Reynolds were ready to move in and to operate an undertaking business there when a district controversy developed and the former City Council refused to grant the necessary zone change. The new application, which was filed yesterday and will reopen the entire controversy, was sent to the Council's City Planning committee.

THE GREAT DISCOVERY

The man who can find himself is a Columbus well worth while.

TEAM WORK

Persistence is not a substitute for genius but it makes a good running mate.

THE LAST TRUMP

A road sign on a dangerous curve near Palm Springs says, "Blow your horn or Gabriel will."

RIDICULE

The old-time mud-slinger now throws custard pies. Ridicule is a more dangerous weapon than vituperation.

NOT SO GOOD

"Conditions Normal in Nicaragua" says a headline. Too bad. We'd hoped they were better than that.

WEAKENED

Every boss who keeps a keen eye on his employees knows that a week-end is followed by a week beginning.

WORK

A man works for money and his wife gets all worked up, working herself into the belief that some other woman is working her out of it.

STANDARDS OF MEASUREMENT

Notorious crooks think they're pretty clever fellows, but their measures are always taken in the end, either by the Bertillion system or Scotland Yard.

COURAGE APPRECIATED

Levine's wife is said to be happy because he is coming home. We always thought there must be somebody in the world who really wanted that nervy man around.

JUST LOOKS THAT OLD

Anthropologists say the Nebraska man is 4,000,000 years old. They shouldn't be deceived by appearances. Since they got to fretting so about farm relief lots of those midwesterners have aged amazingly.

THE BIG MONEY

The government and the farmers are spending millions in the fight against the weevil and the borer. It must make Tex Rickard crazy to hear of millions being spent on a fight and he not even on the gate.

HOPEFUL REMINDER

From this distance, France and Germany seem mighty silly to keep hurling World-War accusations at each other. But look how politicians waved the bloody shirt in this country, after the Civil War, and we got over it, all right.

MANY STUDENTS

The big colleges have been turning prospective students away by the thousands. One institution which found room for 800 new faces had more than 3000 applications to choose from. If the universities taught plastering and plumbing it would be easier, but they seem to be specializing on lawyers and dentists—of whom we already have a splendiferous plenitude.

ALL WET

Looks as if that conference of Democrats of nine Western States was a set-up for Gov. Alfred E. Smith. Beyond conferring an accolade upon the New Yorker nothing of importance was undertaken. Those who were present at the gathering may have difficulty in proving that the Democrats of these nine western States are already have a splendiferous plenitude.

RESTING EASY

Now that financial matters have been arranged Tunney and Dempsey may return to their golf games and call it a season. They will not have to fight again for a year—or at least until the fans are able to save up enough dough to make another raid worth while. Right after the Chicago scrap Tunney was reported as saying that he would never fight Dempsey again. Now he is quoted as being perfectly willing, but leaving the decision to Tex Rickard. This promoter has become the Warwick of the ring game. The gate prospects must decide.

NO MORE WAR

The League of Nations with complete unanimity adopts the proposal of Poland which formally abolishes war. This is making over the moods and menaces of Europe by resolution, but let the world hope and pray that it can be done. The nation that ever resorts to arms in any purpose of aggression is to be considered an outcast. It may not hope for any aid or comfort from any other peoples within the membership of the League. Now if the governments will disarm down to their home guards the citizens of the world will begin to save money.

THIS IS WAR

The annual descent of desperate criminals upon Los Angeles seems to have begun earlier than usual this year, and a situation has been precipitated which calls for united action by the community in cooperating with and backing up the police solidly in the campaign they are directing against the thugs, yeggs, bandits, gunmen and burglars now operating in this city.

With 400 square miles of area and a police force comparatively small in numbers, Los Angeles is the most thinly policed large city in the world, and it is obvious that police methods used in the more congested cities of the East are inapplicable here. The police are able to make up in mobility, to some extent, for what they lack in numbers, but at best they need aid and in these annual crises they need it very badly.

It is not necessary or desirable for the average citizen to buy and carry a weapon. Indeed, to do so would complicate the situation, as a police announcement points out, since the police propose to arrest every gun-toter they can discover and this program might easily fill the jails with men of no criminal intent, making the process of sorting the sheep from the goats doubly difficult.

A part of the campaign will be a round-up of suspicious characters. In this round-up some mistakes undoubtedly will be made, and these should be submitted to as a necessary evil. Some good citizens will be disturbed and questioned and subjected to annoyance. They can prove their good citizenship by bearing the annoyance with good grace, recognizing the reason for it.

Information upon which to act is a vital necessity to officers engaged in the crime war. Any citizen who sees a crime committed is in duty bound to hasten to the nearest telephone and notify the police in the shortest possible space of time. Descriptions of automobiles and of bandits is of great assistance provided it is accurate. Automobile license numbers should be put on paper as quickly as may be, for the best memories are sometimes treacherous. Suspicious characters and actions should be reported promptly.

All property, and especially automobiles, should be given the best protection the owner can give. Automobiles which can be stolen quickly and easily are necessities to the professional criminal. While there are probably no locking devices on the market which can furnish a positive guarantee that the car will not be driven by an unauthorized person, there are a number which answer the purpose well and are a decided hindrance to thieves. They should be used, even if they take a couple of minutes extra time of a busy man. It should be remembered that cars are usually stolen within a minute or two after they are parked, and sometimes while the owner is still in sight. Bank vaults are the best place for articles of small bulk and high value. Considerable sums of money should not be kept in the house.

Incidentally, Mayor Cryer should act in the appointment of a man to the Police Commission, to take the place of Commissioner Foss, who was turned down by the City Council. The city charter makes the Police Commission the responsible head of the department, and the commission obviously must remain in a state of some uncertainty as long as its membership is in doubt and cannot act with that sureness which an emergency calls for. The Mayor should not allow his injured feelings and petty civic politics to stand in the way of replacing Foss at once.

The unusually early influx of crooks undoubtedly is due in part to the severity of the new criminal laws in some of the eastern States, and the rigor of their enforcement. The crooks know that California has a new crime code also, but they are not yet convinced that the State means to enforce it. Proof that the law has teeth and the will to use them can be given by the prosecutors, courts and juries, and if given promptly will be of great service.

This is war, and the police cannot wage it single handed. The whole community must help fight.

KILLING THE KILLERS

No life-saving exploits in the history of the world compare with the success science has had in destroying pestilence in the last decade or two. The furies have been chained and the grim reaper's scythe has been dulled.

Typhoid was found to be bacterial in 1880. This killer ranked eighth in the list of terrors in 1900. But it had had its fangs drawn and had sunk to the nineteenth by 1924. Its complete extermination is predicted. It had 200 times as many victims in the Spanish-American War as in the late expeditionary force to Europe.

Diphtheria carried off 43.3 for every 100,000 in 1900. Now there are but 7.8 cases today and the dread childhood scourge is about to end.

Tuberculosis was our arch-killer in 1900. It has sunk to the sixth place and is rapidly declining, says Edward Alsworth Ross in the Century Magazine. Mortality has been cut 58 per cent in 25 years.

There are just a fourth as many cases of malaria as there were twenty-five years ago. When this disorder was found to come from the bite of a mosquito, its fate was sealed. Aches and shakes are doomed.

Asiatic cholera claimed 4486 by death in New York City in the decade beginning with 1840. Although doubling its population many times since, that metropolis has had no cases the past ten years. Fly screens turned out to be the preventive.

Yellow fever terrorized the world within the memory of many living. A tenth of the population of Philadelphia was swept away by it in 1793. In New Orleans 8000 died in 1853. When a certain type of mosquito was discovered to be the carrier of the germ, the plague vanished from the borders of the Caribbean and Gulf of Mexico. It is one of the romances of history.

One hundred and nine epidemics of the bubonic plague ravaged the world in the fifteen centuries after the Christian era began. A fourth of Europe succumbed in the fourteenth century. Half of the people of England died in fourteen months. Rat poison has turned the tide against this curse.

WHO GETS THE APPLE?

Perhaps Paris himself did not have a more difficult job in deciding among rival beauties than a local judge, who has been called upon to determine the rightful claim between two contending prize beauty winners. Anyway, it will be interesting to see whether judges, as well as mere gentlemen, prefer blonds.

UNION TACTICS

While the American Federation of Labor gives lip service to the undoubted truth that increase of production is generally beneficial, it seems to balk at the application. Thus when a local motion-picture actor-producer went East recently to film a few scenes, he had three union cameramen forced upon his pay roll who did not turn a crank. He had brought his own cameramen, who had been specially trained in the technic he required, but the eastern studios had been unionized and union rules forbade him to work without union cameramen. The unions cared not who did the work so long as some of their members were paid for it.

That three men did no work for several days is, perhaps, not an important item in the cost of that particular picture. But the work they might have done elsewhere is lost forever to the world, so that the loss doubles up, and all such losses come in the long run, and in one form or another, from the wages of labor. Because of that idle trio, other cameramen will stand idle and wageless for an equal period of time, or union men in a score of cities will pay more than they should have paid to see that particular film. These things work out according to an inflexible law, which the unions can no more change than they can the law of gravity.

When John Steven McGroarty took the "Mission Play" to San Francisco he learned, for the first time, that he could not show without ten union musicians in the orchestra pit, though he had his own orchestra of seven, specially trained to play the accompanying music. So seventeen men rubbed elbows before the drop curtain, but only seven did more than be present. Because of that and other ridiculous restrictions the show cut short its engagement, and union stage hands drew less wages than they would otherwise have earned.

Though motion pictures so far have escaped the exactions of the Actors' Equity Association, which are slowly squeezing the life out of the spoken drama, the mechanical departments of the eastern studios have been pretty thoroughly organized.

Two other producers besides the one mentioned have run into the same snag, in making pictures in the East. Some progress in unionization is even being made, it is reported, in the Los Angeles studios. Producers cannot be awake to the seriousness of this situation, or they would realize that the entering wedge of unionism means, if it is not controlled, that the organization of the whole industry will in time be forced upon them, including the Actors' Equity closed shop.

A prompt and unequivocal declaration for the open shop is needed to save the motion-picture industry. It and the automobile industry have been the most conspicuous business successes of the past decade, principally because they have always had open-shop conditions, which have created employment and enhanced wages to a degree never known in any unionized industry, with its restrictions which increase costs and hold down production.

The workers are not alive to the menace which threatens their livelihood either, or they would not listen to the smooth-tongued organizers. In the long run their prosperity depends upon the prosperity of the industry as a whole, and temporary advantages gained through unionization must be paid for from their own pockets in the course of time—together with the salaries and commissions of the nonproductive organizers.

MONEY IN IT

The Western Air Express, which is our pioneer line of aerial transportation, will pay a dividend to its stockholders this quarter. This is said to be the first of the aviation systems of the country to come in out of the red and Los Angeles may therefore take some honest pride in the showing. We may lack a proper municipal airport but our wings are well fledged. There will be a lot of money plucked out of the air before this thing is over.

THE PRICE OF FORGETTING

Like most German propaganda, that country's post-war drive to create a doubt as to German responsibility for the world's greatest conflagration is a mistaken policy. Von Hindenburg and his fellow-diplomats and statesmen, now engaged in establishing a commendable and worthy democracy, greatly underestimate the capacity of France and her allies to forget and forgive. The process of forgetting and forgiving would work faster and more effectively in Germany's favor if the business of post-war propaganda were discarded. Some of the propagandist diatribes only tear off the scars and prevent old wounds from healing.

Germany would do well to forget and let France do the same, if she will. The Hohenzollern regime is unpopular enough still to draw all the blame and the Germans as a people are already so well back into the world's favored councils that they need not argue longer whether they should have had their whipping and humiliation or not. "France wants peace as the sacrifices it already has consented to indicate," said Louis Barthou, French Minister of Justice, replying to Von Hindenburg, "but we could not, without a humiliating abdication of our national conscience, sacrifice the truth. The truth is our strength, because it is our glory. It will neither be falsified nor travestied. Silence, in which we are willing to reciprocate, is the necessary condition for the rapprochements which world peace demands. It is the only price for our forgetting and it is so difficult, so hard to forget."

In the common vernacular, M. Barthou has said to Hindenburg, "The only way you can get along with us is to shut up about your innocence in the war. Silence on your part will be accepted by us as the price of forgetting. Drop your propaganda if you want us to be friends." M. Barthou's position is well taken.

MUSIC MAKERS

They had a mouth organ tournament in England recently and each one of the 154 rival musicians had to play "Annie Laurie." At that the judges had a better time of it than they would have found in this country. Over here the tourney would have been for saxophones blaring "Hot Lips."

INCURABLE INGRATITUDE

By James J. Montague

Dentists are considering ways and means to make themselves more popular.

I make no criticism,
Upon the dentist's art,
I never say he does not play
A highly useful part.
Without his ministrations
Quite frequently renewed
I'd wear no wreath of gleaming teeth
With which to chew my food
And, lacking food, 'ere very long
I should not be so well and strong.

But when he craves affection
Which seems to be the case—
And hopes I'll smile with joy the while
I look upon his face
Whose lineaments remind me
Of hours of racking pain—
Unhesitatingly I'll state
His hopes are wholly vain.
For though I venerate his skill
To gaze upon him makes me ill.

The bridges he has builded
On sunken ivory piers,
I make no doubt have lengthened out
My span of earthly years;
Without the shining weapons
He well knows how to sway
On gum and bone, I freely own
I'd not be here today.
But hold for him a tender spot
In my affections I cannot!

LETTERS TO The Times

Without a Hyphen

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 24.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Harry Carr's query—Where is America?—can be answered very readily. It could be right here in the United States if the people of foreign parentage would acknowledge the land of their birth and give the "hand that is feeding them" the credit due it. You cannot imagine the number of Americans who, when Lindbergh was here, for instance, referred to him as a "Swede." I had the hardest time in my life convincing these people that he was a dyed-in-the-wool American. These same people claim Roosevelt as a Dutchman, when you knew and I know that a more loyal American never lived.

And when I say American, I mean it. Another thing I want to explode is this: It has been argued that Canadians are Americans and Mexicans are Americans, but, when speaking of their nationality do they call themselves Americans? They do not! A woman evangelist, who, while she is an American citizen, repeatedly calls herself a Canadian.

America to most foreign-borns is something to be worshiped, but the half-baked American born, whose parents happen to be born in another country, seem to be more proud of that than they are of the fact that they were born in a land as glorious as ours, where opportunity has reaped them a rich reward, and whose hard-working loyal parents left them a heritage whereby they live in peace and comfort.

ALICE BRADBURY.

Then and Now

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 11.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I have just received a copy of the rotogravure section of The Times containing a night view of Los Angeles and vicinity. It is a wonderful picture, but on looking at it, it occurred to me that Los Angeles cannot be as interesting a place to live as it was when I was there, forty years ago, because there were many things there at that time that were peculiar to that city. I presume there are no sanjas making their way lazily through the town with the thought that, like Tennyson's brook, they would run on forever. But, alas, they were forced to realize that they were only sympathetic brooks. And there were picturesque Chinamen, with their shirts outside and their pigtails behind. Of course you still have them, but if they are like Milwaukee Chinamen they are no longer picturesque in regard to their dress. And what romance is there in the ice-cream factories compared to the Mexican who carried the tub on his head and did his advertising vocally, in fact, very vocally? And the intriguing old watercress man, "Otro Porto," with his snuffy old clothes and his whiskers, leading his snuffy-looking burro along the street. They resembled each other very much. And there was Prof. Savary, and the corrals, and the house with thirteen sides.

There is one thing that I think I may be quite sure of, and that is that "old Baldy" is still doing business at the old stand. I see a picture of him occasionally on an orange box and he doesn't appear to age any. I always thought that was his real name until a few months ago, when I learned that his real name is "Mt. San Antonio." I haven't so much respect for him now. I never did like foreigners much.

KIRKE G. SHEPARD.

Just as Sheep Do

INGLEWOOD, Sept. 24.—[To the Editor of The Times:] As a comparative newcomer, here long enough to appreciate at least some of Southern California's possibilities, I wish to enter an earnest protest against the "unwritten law" which establishes the middle of September as the deadline for straw hats. So long as sunshine and temperature remain about the same as in June, why abolish the light headgear on the date adopted by cities of the East and Middle West, where frost and snow are not unusual in September? It looks like poor advertising for Southern California's summer climate in the winter time.

Instead of this arbitrary ruling, why not advocate the wearing of straw hats every bright day when thermometers register 75 or higher? A motion picture of the crowds on Broadway the day before Christmas, for instance, with every man topped by a summer hay lid, would have a fetching appeal to easterners. Especially if shown on the same program with scenes from the winter sports carnivals at Steamboat Springs or Estes Park, Colorado.

Advocates of "personal liberty" are advised to be in readiness with bail for a martyred brother unless this obnoxious law is repealed, as my Panama is being cleaned and will be on parade every summer day this winter. It is no more right to force a coonskin cap on me when the sun is hot than to decree that all men must don woolen underwear—a la "Jake"—which I refuse to do, law or no law.

TERS TO

NOISE, MUSIC, LOVE

BY ALMA WHITAKER

There is a provocative book called "Orpheus" or "The Music of the Future," just published. It is by W. J. Turner, who discusses music, discusses its progress and predicts its future.

So it belongs in the open season.

Quite early in the first chapter he remarks "so the ancients have come to mean a man who performs music. He plays great music over again Beethoven's symphonies and Chopin's studies . . . His performance of his is a tribute to our weakness and a sign of our imperfection . . ." and so on.

"But I cannot state too strongly and decisively that music is not the playing or hearing of symphonies and sonatas but the imagination of love."

Deriding the definition that music is "an ordered arrangement of sounds" he corrects it to read, "Music is the imagination of love in sound," explaining that "there are as many kinds of love as there are many kinds of life, and it is possible that they may all be imaginable in sound . . . Can you express the life of the whole world in music?"

"I do not believe there is any sensation or feeling of which music is capable which may not be expressed in music."

But, well, after that he approaches the musicians for making infantile sounds mean ing the cruder emotions, the commonplace sentiments, with an extra whack for the saxophone.

"My chemistry teacher," he says, "would have been amused to think that at the bottom of inorganic and organic chemistry there was nothing but music. my music teachers would be saddened to think that at the bottom of the major and the minor there is nothing but love . . . great creative scientists ago have disintegrated old ideas, and it now appears the universe is a miracle of music and that 'matter,' just to be kept going, is maintained in coordinated whole by some cal urge, or some such pulse. The conception of 'the will to live' has a profounder for us now, and we realize 'the will to live' dies in a man himself dies."

Mr. Turner proceeds to the musician with a knowledge merely knows how to nations of words from the of the alphabet—whereas man who cannot perform read music or understand may well feel and live conception of music through wider and deeper life. "But it is only the musical genius is capable great human personality to get what we may call artist as distinct from a great musician."

"Each of us," he says within him a fundamental which picks out all the struck upon us by nature kind and ranges them and he believes there mental note of making universe with which relationship. So presently, read, we begin to imagic of the future as rhythmically silent—prayer—unmarred by sion, the "interference" the confusing irritation artificially arranged souls will pick it out as the radio picks up noises today.

One pictures the world millions sitting at with souls attuned to imagination of love, are so often exquisitely under precious emotion, silent music will put with the universe in fic way. A complete justment of souls . . . be the absolute perfection."

DR. MICHELSON HERE FOR TESTS

Scientist Plans Check on Velocity of Light

Experiments of "Ether Drift" Also Contemplated

New Apparatus Installed on Mt. San Jacinto

By a "Times" Staff Correspondent

PASADENA, Sept. 27.—Dr. Albert A. Michelson, world-famed scientist of the University of Chicago, expects to complete within the next two months his experiments in measuring the velocity of light and also in testing the "ether-drift" phase of the Einstein relativity theory, he said on arrival in Pasadena today.

If he can complete these two experiments of scientific work, to which he has devoted a large share of his life, this will be his last trip to the Pacific Coast and the Mt. Wilson Observatory, Dr. Michelson said.

During the last six or seven years, the eminent physicist has calculated the speed of light with a greater degree of accuracy than any other scientist ever achieved before. He has made measurements with beams of light thrown back and forth from the summits of Mt. Wilson and Mt. Baldy, twenty-two miles apart. The last figure announced by him for the speed of light is 186,284 miles a second.

INSTALL NEW APPARATUS

In preparation for this trip new apparatus has been installed on Mt. San Jacinto, eighty-two miles from Mt. Wilson. Dr. Michelson intends to throw the light between these two peaks and to obtain a still more accurate check on his previous figures. This will be the final series of twelve experiments which will definitely determine the figures used by the entire scientific world in calculating light's speed.

Despite his 77 years, Dr. Michelson is in vigorous health and anxious to resume his schedule of a full day's work every day.

The second phase of his work here will be a repetition of the famous Michelson-Morley experiment, which he performed thirty years ago. The results of this original experiment started Dr. Albert Einstein on the track which culminated in the relativity theory, which is now generally adopted by scientists as the best working hypothesis for explaining the structure of the universe.

EARTH NOT DRIFTING

Dr. Michelson's experiment, in brief, demonstrated that the earth is not drifting through the ether which is supposed to fill all interstellar space, but that it is drifting with the ether, if there is any motion whatsoever.

In 1925, Dr. Dayton C. Miller of Cleveland announced that experiments he had conducted at the Mt. Wilson Observatory over a six-year period showed that the "ether drift" or motion of the earth through the ether, does exist. Other experimenters have since upheld Dr. Michelson.

They prevailed on the Chicago scientist, finally, to repeat his original experiment. If the result should differ from those obtained originally, it may upset a large portion of the Einstein theory.

Dr. Michelson is at the Constance Hotel. He received the Nobel prize in physics more than twenty years ago, and is the first American to receive this award. He conducted his first light experiment in 1878.

Cinema Policies to Be Revealed

What position independent film producers will assume with regard to picture production during the coming winter will be told here Friday with the arrival of Sam Sax, president of Gotham Productions, Inc., one of the leaders of the independent movement.

Sax, who makes his productions at the Fine Arts studios, has been in New York in conference with independent distributors and attended numerous exhibitors' conventions to study the needs of the theater owner whose playhouse is not producer-owned.

JUDGE CANCELS TRIP OF RIVER-GIN CRAFT

Velma Ermine Cox

The trouble was that the nuptials took place about three months too soon. For Velma Ermine Cox and Robert John Cox were married last May before the new "anti-gin wedding" law went into effect.

"We started drinking at 2 p.m.," she related yesterday in Judge Sproul's court. "Well, at 4:30 o'clock we still were able to stand up and get a marriage license, which we did. At 5:30 we were married in Sherman.

"The next day, when I realized what I had done, I left him."

The marriage was annulled.

All County Held Jurisdiction of Municipal Court

The Los Angeles Municipal Court has concurrent jurisdiction with the justice courts in all parts of the county in civil matters involving less than $300, according to a ruling handed down yesterday by the Appellate Court.

The decision was the last of a series identical in application, but involving different classifications of cases. In the previous cases the Appellate Court decided that the Los Angeles Municipal Court has jurisdiction in all parts of the county in criminal matters and civil cases involving amounts of more than $300.

The basis for the decision announced yesterday was a suit brought against the Peerless Dye Works by N. B. Yale. The defendant held that jurisdiction to adjudicate the matter lay with the Justice Court in Santa Monica and not in the Los Angeles Municipal Court.

Pacific Coast Has Total of 173 Airports

The West has now contributed 173 landing fields to the safety of aviation, according to the newest edition of the landing field directory of the Pacific Coast today being issued to aviators by the Standard Oil Company of California.

An encouraging note for air passenger, mail and express services dependent on the landing-field movement is revealed in an increase of thirty-nine new fields since the first directory was published last June.

For the benefit of the flyers of the air mail, army, navy and commercial services, the directory gives a full description of every field listed for Washington, Oregon, Nevada, California and Arizona.

USURY DISMISSALS DUE

Three Motions Up Today or Tomorrow for Freedom from Julian-Case Indictments

Motions to dismiss three additional indictments returned by the county grand jury several weeks ago charging those named in them with conspiracy to commit usury in connection with the Julian Petroleum Corporation scandal will be made before Superior Court Judge Stephens either today or tomorrow, Chief Deputy District Attorney Davis announced yesterday. The names of those exonerated will not be made public until the motion is made in court, Davis said.

The possibility that one other indictment may be included in the motion by the time it is made, was voiced by Davis yesterday, but he added that investigation concerning the one case had not been completed at a late hour yesterday.

MONEY RETURNED

It was also learned from a reliable source that one indictment, which it was rumored was to be dismissed, and which was voted against a prominent local capitalist, will not be among those to be taken before Judge Stephens today or tomorrow and that plans for prosecution of the capitalist are being carried on. A suit filed against the same man by City Prosecutor Lickley was dropped several days ago.

According to the District Attorney's office, the additional indictments are being dropped for the same reason that four others were dismissed last week. In each of these cases those involved had returned money they received in usurious interest and proved that there was no criminal intent in loans they had made to Julian stock pools.

RESTITUTIONS LACKING

It was learned yesterday from receivers of the Julian corporation, Joseph Scott and H. L. Carnahan, that many of those named in usury indictments have made no effort to make restitution to the company. In cases where restitution has been made, and evidence offered tending to prove that no criminal intent motivated the loans, the receivers have made recommendations to the District Attorney to exonerate those accused.

I. O. Levy, Louis B. Mayer, Robert E. Moody and David Gordon were exonerated by Judge Stephens last week after a motion had been made by the District Attorney that the cases be dismissed.

KIMMERLE FOUND GUILTY OF ATTACK ON LOEB

H. J. Kimmerle, guard of De Kalb Spurlin, chairman of the executive committee for Julian Petroleum stockholders, was found guilty by a jury yesterday in Superior Judge Stephens's court of a charge of assault to do great bodily harm to Arthur Loeb, a member of the committee.

The verdict was reached after several hours of deliberation. The jury found Kimmerle not guilty of mayhem.

It is charged that Kimmerle attacked Loeb in the office of the Julian Petroleum stockholders and beat him so as to cause Loeb to lose the sight of one eye. The trouble arose over the arrival of Loeb, who had sought to have Spurlin removed as chairman of the committee.

PEAT FIRE VIEWED BY COUNCILMEN

City Officials Shown Size of Task Faced in Abating Baldwin Estate Nuisance

Health Officer Parrish, Assistant Chief Engineer Van Norman of the city water department, members of the City Council and representatives of the Baldwin estate yesterday afternoon personally inspected the burning peat beds which have been afire for two years at Jefferson street and Hauser Boulevard. The burning area now covers twelve acres, and as the fire is at an average depth of thirty feet, it will be necessary to dig dikes around the area and then excavate with steam shovels in order to quench the fire, at an estimated expense of $30,000.

Dr. Parrish said legal notice will be served at once on the Baldwin estate to abate the fire nuisance and if this is not done within ten days, the city will start condemnation proceedings, put out the fire and seize the land for use as a public park and playground, unless the Baldwin estate compensates the city for the expense.

The purpose of Dr. Parrish in taking the city officials to the scene of the fire was to show them the magnitude of the job.

GERMANS TO CELEBRATE FUND DRIVE

Meeting Tonight Marks Finish of Campaign for Hindenburg Memorial

Germans of Los Angeles will gather at the T. V. G. Auditorium tonight at 8 o'clock for a program outlined by the committee of the Hindenburg Memorial Fund drive, which officially closes the campaign.

Several weeks ago President Von Hindenburg authorized a world-wide campaign for a fund to be known as the Hindenburg Memorial to offer relief to the German World War veterans, the destitute widows and orphans. Amiel Fernholtz acted as chairman of the local committee with Siegfried Goetze as secretary.

The program tonight will consist of speeches and musical numbers. Mayor Cryer, Lieut.-Gov. Pitts, Count Felix Von Luckner and his Vaterland officers, William Schreider, Count S. L. De Besa and the acting German Consul, Capt. R. De Lyre will attend. Hans Demuth, editor of California Staats Zeitung, will deliver the official address.

The musical numbers will be handled by German choral societies and Countess De Zaruba, former member of the Royal German Opera.

Battery Charge Ended in Court

For lack of prosecution, Municipal Judge Blake yesterday dismissed a battery complaint brought against Mrs. Jean Ferguson, known on the Stage as Mme. De Desley, when B. M. Fugitt, plaintiff, failed to appear to press the charge.

Mrs. Ferguson was accused of striking Fugitt in the face at Fifth and Spring streets on August 26, last, because he spoke to her. She asserts he has harassed her continually for the last four years.

City Public Defender Orfila made a motion for dismissal of the charge. He said Fugitt was taken into custody Monday afternoon in the Hall of Justice by San Diego police to face a criminal charge in San Diego.

Mrs. Ferguson was accompanied by her 15-year-old daughter, Melba, who had planned to take the stand in her mother's behalf.

FILIPINOS TO MEET

The actual convention is to take place December 28 to 29. Between 6000 and 10,000 Filipinos are expected to attend.

Convention headquarters have been established in the Stack Building, but the convention sessions will be held in one of the auditoriums.

All of the boxes for the events already have been sold and seats in the west grand stand and east bleachers rapidly are being taken. COLDS FOLLOW FIRST DAYS OF SCHOOL CONFINEMENT

One isn't being a pessimist when he looks forward to the first school days being punctuated with much coughing and sneezing and nose blowing, for this inevitably happens when a child who has spent months in the open air is cooped up in school.

Some families seem subject to constant colds. One or the other of the children forever has a "runny" nose, or a "running" ear from the beginning of cold weather. Such a family lacks resistance to overcome cold germs which are always seeking a home. More sunshine, better food or the proper food, is needed to build up their resistance. What such a family needs is a better understanding of what foods are necessary to keep children in good health and able to fight off germs. Milk, fresh vegetables and fruits, and whole-grain cereals should make up the diet of any school child. Cod-liver oil is a better tonic than any other that can be bought in a bottle and if the child is underweight and subject to frequent illnesses it's a foregone conclusion that he will be benefited by it, no matter what his age.

Keep the sick child in bed and his body at an even temperature. Give him plenty of water to drink. Give him simple, wholesome food. If he has even a low temperature keep him in bed a day after this is gone. Make him comfortable by putting warm albolene in his swollen nose. If other remedies are needed a doctor should advise him. These are just measures that any mother can follow safely.

Head colds can very easily result in ear infections, for the nose channels run directly to the ear. The first indication will be a high fever and earache and later this may result in the pressure of pus behind the ear bursting the drum.

If there is pressure which must be relieved, this had better be done by the doctor who will make a neat puncture in the ear drum that will drain the pus, and heal quickly.

Earaches should be treated with heat. Put a hot-water bag over the ear and wash out the ear itself with quite hot boric-acid water, using a bulb syringe. But it is far better when the child has a severe earache and fever to consult a doctor and by the proper treatment prevent more serious troubles.

Blue Flannel Dress Matches Chinchilla Coat

By Florence La Ganke

Even though Nancy's niece was going to attend school in California her mother was familiar enough with the climate to realize she would need some warm clothes.

She chose a dress of dark blue flannel made two-piece style. The tie at neck and at low hip line was of blue crepe de chine. A collar of white was gay with large dots of red. There was one pocket, and of course, long sleeves.

With this dress she had a blue chinchilla coat. It had collar and pockets of beaver. The raglan sleeves of the coat helped to give a good appearance to the girl, even at the age when clothes and girls are hard to put together successfully.

Her mother told her that on some of the foggy winter nights she would welcome the tight-fitting cap of beaver. This seemed impossible to any Easterner, but Louise wrote back to Aunt Nancy telling her that her mother was right, as usual. She wore plain gloves, wool stockings and dark brown oxfords with this outfit.

HEALTH and DIET ADVICE

By Dr Frank McCoy

author of "The First Way to Health"

Dr. McCoy will answer personal questions on health and diet, addressed to him, care of the Los Angeles Times. Enclose stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

THE NEED OF UN-FIRED FOOD

Man doubtless lived for many centuries without the use of fire for heat or for the preparation of foods. He was forced to use what food he could secure in a raw state, living on fish, berries, roots and fruits. However, as early as 50,000 years ago he had discovered how to kindle fire and cook foods. It is probable that through the centuries since this important discovery man has cooked food in order to make different tasting dishes or to preserve food which spoiled easily, and that only in the last century has an attempt been made to study the effect of heat upon food from the standpoint of nutrition.

I once read an interesting book written in the fourteenth century by a dietitian who condemned cooked foods as unfit because it was deprived of certain vital elements destroyed by cooking. The naturopaths of Germany have long held that cooking devitalized foods and many advocated an entire raw-food diet as being the most healthful. A few years ago these views were at least partially upheld by researches conducted by modern nutritional laboratories and a new name of "vitamine" was given to certain mysterious substances or principles known to exist in fresh food, but absent or nearly so in cooked food. None of these principles have ever been seen under the microscope, but are known, by their effects, to exist in a similar way as electricity is recognized but never seen. All foods unchanged by fire contain these vitamins in a greater or lesser degree. We are now learning to measure these effects upon the human organism principally through experiments with various dietetic regimes.

The simple and indisputable fact has been proved that animal life could not long exist if these valuable properties were not present in sufficient quantities in the daily diet. Our researches will soon allow us to know how to prescribe exact quantities of these elements to supply the deficiencies now known to be responsible for many diseases, such as rickets, scurvy and anemia. We do know, however, that if a plentiful supply of uncooked vegetables are used each day, sufficient of these vitamins are taken into the system to be ample for all of our ordinary needs.

You can get your vitamins from such foods as uncooked spinach, celery, lettuce, asparagus, cucumbers, parsley, carrots, beets, parsnips, turnips, salsify, endive, etc. I know you have not been used to eating some of these vegetables raw, but I assure you they are delicious if used in this way, and you will have a treat in store for yourself if you will only try them uncooked as well as the way you have been using them. These foods constitute the very best blood-builders it is possible for you to obtain, and a few days of an exclusive raw-food diet of such foods will be an agreeable change; and after you have learned to enjoy their delicate flavors you will be eager to make a large part of each meal consist of these clean, crisp, and wholesome vital foods.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Question: Mr. G. G. writes: "I enjoy the advice given by you on health and am trying to follow it. I have suffered from valvular disease of the heart since I was 7 years old, and am 20 now. The doctors I have had tell me there is no cure. I am in bed at the present time and have been for the past two months, and am now troubled with gas around my heart. As I eat only very light food, can you tell me the cause of the trouble?"

Answer: You have named the cause of your trouble when you write that you are troubled with gas around your heart. The foods you eat may be "light" in weight or "light" in nourishment but they certainly are not the right foods or else you are not using them in proper combination with each other. Most valvular heart troubles are functional and can be cured by proper diet and exercise. Send for a special series of articles I have prepared on the cause and cure of heart derangements.

Q.: Mary T. asks: "When milk does not seem to agree with one, will the addition of a little lemon juice make it digestible? If so, is it necessary to put it in the milk if one eats along with the milk, the lemon jelly made of gelatin and lemon juice?"

A.: The lemon or gelatin should be put into the milk in order to get the best results. The addition of gelatin no doubt prepares the milk so that it is more easily assimilated, and the lemon juice breaks the milk into small curds which the digestive juices can penetrate more readily.

Q.: M. B. writes: "I have recently undergone an operation for the removal of a stone in the bladder. Would be grateful if you would advise me as to a diet to guard against a recurrence of this trouble."

A.: No special diet is needed except to cut down the quantity of food, use good combinations, and then exercise enough so the body will use up the food elements.

SMART TUNIC BLOUSES RICHLY EMBROIDERED

PARIS, (AP)—For wear with velvet suits Parisians prefer the brightly colored, all-over embroidery tunics which many dressmakers use this fall and which have long been a specialty of Nicole Groult.

At the house of their origin the embroidered blouses are short, reaching only to the hip. At most of the other designer's they are finger tip or three-quarter length. Flat silk, heavy crepe de chine and satin are the materials used for these blouses.

The embroidery, which almost covers the blouse, is usually Chinese in effect. Bands at neck, sleeves and hem concentrate the vivid colors of the design in contrast with the background, which are nearly always black, dark blue or very dark red.

MANY BELL SLEEVES ON PARIS MODELS

PARIS, (AP)—Afternoon dresses show an increasing tendency toward wide flaring bell sleeves. Some of them approximate kimono width and indulge in ribbon trimmings of elaborate pattern.

Few important dressmakers use the extreme bell sleeve, but many of them show mildly flared effects, sometimes lined with contrasting colors.

More flared sleeves are shown in coats than dresses at the large dressmaking houses. They insert fullness into sleeves below the elbow as a rule, using the bell line, or a pouch sleeve which is snug at the wrist and enlarges midway between elbow and hand.

The 1st Rule

in skin care if "That Schoolgirl Complexion" is your aim

By NORMA SHEARER

THE following rule is credited with more beautiful complexions than any other method known. Yet it's the simplest and most economical in skin care of all.

Wash your face gently with Palmolive Soap. Massage its balmy olive and palm oil lather into the skin. Then rinse with warm water, and follow with a dash of cold.

Do this regularly, and especially at night, for one week. Note how much better your skin. Use powder and make-up all you wish. But never leave them on over night.

That marks the modern idea in beauty culture — the proved formula for keeping "that schoolgirl complexion."

But be sure you get the real Palmolive. A soap made solely for the purpose; to guard your skin. 60 years of soap study stand behind it. Its results are proved by countless schoolgirl complexions everywhere.

Get Palmolive now. Use no other on your face. Experimenting with unproved soaps is a folly. Good complexions are too priceless for that. The Palmolive-Peet Co., Chicago, U. S. A.

OPERA CLUB HAS SEASON OPENING

Euterpe Readers Hear Noted Artists at Luncheon

Calman, Janis and Mrs. Bond Among Speakers

Ambassador Session Proves Brilliant Affair

BY MYRA NYE

With several hundred turned away at the opening morning session yesterday, the Euterpe Opera Reading Club began its season brilliantly at the Ambassador. "Falstaff" was the opera read by Roland Paul, and afterward at the luncheon Charles Wakefield Cadman said he never had heard a better presentation of any opera at any reading club in the city. Many pleas were made for operas to be presented in English.

This is the purpose for which the club was founded by Mrs. Elmer Blanchfield, who, lately returning from visits to operas in many eastern cities. She was one of the luncheon speakers. Others of note were Elsie Janis, Lucille La Verne and Carrie Jacobs Bond.

Mrs. Daisy Bannerman Coates, the new president, presided at both sessions and introduced many celebrities.

MISS JANIS SPEAKS

Peals of laughter came from behind huge bouquets of flowers at the speakers' table, where Mr. Paul and Elsie Janis were having a special exclusive entertainment all their own between the courses of the elaborate luncheon. When Mrs. Bond began to speak she said she was going to tell what Elsie Janis had been saying to Mr. Paul on her right and Mr. Cadman on her left.

"Oh, you needn't be afraid," said Mrs. Bond, and she took a baby violet from the bouquet and said Miss Janis had just described it as "a neat and tidy flower very like some clubwomen, without any smell or animation."

Miss Janis said in her talk prefacing some of her clever stories—this time Scotch stories—that the group certainly needed her "low-down touch" after all the high-brow talk about opera.

Miss La Verne gave one of her appeals for the southern mountaineers many of whom, she said, have royal blood in their veins and are from the oldest Anglo-Saxon families. She added to the gayety of the occasion with three stories in darky dialect which were the equal to the patter of the Two Black Crows.

OTHERS ON PROGRAM

Mrs. G. E. Mullen of Redlands told of the Redlands Bowl, similar in its scope of work and endeavor to the Hollywood Bowl. Merle Armitage spoke in behalf of the Los Angeles opera season beginning next week and introduced Desire Defrere, Gracomo Spodoni and Serge Oukrainsky, the latter the ballet master of the opera to be given next week. Later Miss Janis imitated each one of these of different nationalities to the delight of the imitated and to the joy of the 500 gathered around the luncheon table.

Other guests introduced by Mrs. Coates included Mrs. Joe Crail, Mrs. Charles F. Turner, Margaret Bourne, Mrs. James Henry Ballagh, Mrs. Kate McCollough, founder and head of Orange County School of Fine Arts of Anaheim, Mrs. W. W. Woodward, president of the Whittier Woman's Club, Miss Vera Best and Mrs. Elsberry Reynolds of Pomona.

Artists who appeared in the morning in addition to Mr. Paul were Florence Joy, pianist; Myrtle Aber, soprano; Veryl Lucille, soprano; Emma Lucas, mezzo-soprano; Archel Buggles, tenor; Clemence Gifford, contralto; Ralph Reily, tenor; James Murray, bass, and Melville Avery baritone.

The LAST WORD

By ALMA WHITAKER

PLEATED SKIRTS

There were two mothers in the crowded street car, each with a very small child occupying a seat beside her. Both mothers were young and smartly dressed.

A great many tired, but standing women were looking longingly toward the seats occupied by the small children, but neither mother appeared aware of these yearning glances.

But presently the conductor undertook a little diplomacy. He approached one young mother.

"Pardon, lady, but would you take that small child on your lap? You don't pay no fare for her and there's a lot of women standing."

The young woman looked most annoyed. "How can I take her on my lap? She glared. "I have on a pleated skirt and a child on my lap will crush it all out of shape."

"I can't help that, lady," said the conductor less respectfully, "I need this seat."

"Then I'll get off at the next stop," she said indignantly. Which she did, the conductor lifting the little girl off politely but smiling cynically.

Then he returned to the other mother.

"I'll pay my child's fare," she said at once. "She must have a seat. I have a pleated skirt too, and it simply wrecks it to hold a child on my lap." Reluctantly the conductor accepted the fare for the child as he noted the many even quite elderly women who were standing.

Later when she had left the car and only the regulars who lived out near the end of the line were still there, they all debated this incident.

"You hear a lot about the impoliteness of men not giving their seats to women, but what about the selfishness of women?" snorted a man.

"Yeah," said the conductor, "and it's getting worse since these pleated skirts they talks about has come in. They ain't all so frank about it as this skirt was, but I am kind of recognising that women in pleated skirts, babies along always acts that way. Or sometimes they will stand theirselves and give the baby the seat or maybe let some motherly soul whose skirts ain't pleated, hold the child."

"Well, of course, it must be hard luck to spoil a pleated skirt in one trip at that," grinned a jolly business girl. "If they stays in style, I guess us girls will have to choose between pleated skirts and motherhood. Even when that dame paid her kid's fare and saved her pleats for the price of a dime, it didn't seem just right—with all them other dames having to stand."

"There was a lot of men sitting—" sneered a woman.

"Yes, but they get mighty tired, too," laughed the girl. "Gee, I have often wanted to give my seat to a tired man, or an old man, or a sick-looking man. I sit most of the day and it wouldn't hurt me to stand, but I never can quite get round to asking a man to take my seat. Anyways I won't take theirs if they look tired or sick, and the people in the car usually look at me like I was a fool for that."

"For my part, I can't understand why a woman with a darling little child would ever want to wear pleated skirts," said a pale-looking woman who might have been a spinster.

"It's time the style folks put them pleats on the blink," murmured the conductor, as he called "End of the line. All out."

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Dainty and Inexpensive

Dainty bedroom curtains can be made from plain voile or marquisette, decorated only by a border of colored threads harmonizing with the draperies, drawn through in the same manner as the popular one of making handkerchiefs. Edge with a two-inch hem.

Buying Silk Stockings

It is a good plan to ask the saleswomen to examine the stockings you buy. She does this by putting her hand through the stocking to show up defects in the weave. If you always request this favor you will never have the embarrassment of returning them later on.

Smoother Gravy

While cornstarch is more expensive than flour, it makes a much smoother gravy when it has to be added to a quantity of liquid, such as in stews, potroasts, etc.

Discolored Clothes

When white clothes become discolored, soak them overnight in a solution of cream of tartar and water, one teaspoonful to a quart of cold water, the next day wash in the usual way and they will be as white as when new.

Straight Seams

With any article that must be made on absolutely straight lines, such as curtains, towels, etc., whenever possible, pull a thread before cutting into the material and then follow that line. Then you are certain that your seam will be straight.

Funnels to Order

Often we are in need of a small funnel to fill salt and pepper boxes. This can easily be made by cutting off the tip of the corner of an envelope and using that corner as a funnel.

UNBOBBED AND BOBBED TO COMPETE

Real Estate Association Widens Rules for Bathing Beauty Contest

Bathing beauties, bobbed and unbobbed, will be seen at the twenty-third annual convention of the California Real Estate Association which opens in Santa Monica, October 14, as a result of a decision made yesterday to abandon plans for a strictly unbobbed beauty contest and open the affair to all, according to Fred S. Wilson, convention chairman.

The bathing beauty parade, as well as a beautiful costume pageant, will be arranged by Peggy Hamilton, fashion expert of The Times. Miss Hamilton has spent much time on the affair and promises it will eclipse anything she has done previously. She will be at the Deauville Club in Santa Monica from 3 to 6 o'clock tomorrow and will interview applicants desirous of entering the contest.

Three prizes will be awarded, said Miss Hamilton, one for the best form, another for the best facial features, and one for the most outstanding personality. In addition, the leading fifteen girls will be selected to take part in the costume pageant that is to be staged at the banquet in the Deauville Club on the closing night of the convention.

Cheaper Than New Plumbing

If your sink is just a little too low and causes backache when washing dishes, why not have a small table built that will fit in the sink and elevate the dishpan to the desired height. It would not be expensive and the comfort would be worth the small expenditure.

"Times" Daily Short Story

THE OLD-TIMER - -

By VINGIE E. ROE

"The cold wind shrieked in at the swaying window. The old coach staggered drunkenly."

WELL, well, you young fellows will have your way sooner or later, I suppose; while I admit the truth of your argument, I think you carry your point too far."

The president of a great northern railway system knock his head and glanced out of the window at the old coach lumbering over the Siskiyou Range in Grant's Pass. Opposite, eagerly watching his face, a younger official of the same system smiled as if to speak, but the president went on:

"For most places, yes, the younger man is assuredly—in the shops, where long hours and heavy work demand strength; in designing and improving, where the young brain reaches out for new ideals unhampered by use and custom; in civil engineering, where energy and sometimes fool-hardiness is needed; but in the cabs ahead of the trains of human freight no!"

"But right there is the acme of your argument," broke in the other. "There else is more needed the firm nerve of youth—not callow boyhood, nerve, but the young nerves of a man just at his prime, the quick undimmed, the mind at its best, able to swing to any emergency in a fraction of a second? Why, man alive, where else in the whole system is the perfect man so greatly needed?"

The president stuck his head out of the cab window, and craned ahead. "Road!" he said wonderingly. "What a road! Look out, Hillis."

The other looked. Ahead, the leading rails were lost sight of around a curve that stuck out into space, while at the left there were two feet between the wheels and nothing.

"Nine miles to that," Hillis said.

As they straightened back again, the third occupant of the stage, a lumber-jack, broke into the conversation, happily unconscious of social differences.

"There's somethin' on both sides," he said; "but in the hills, when a man's needed for a ticklish job, they call up an old-timer. They know!"

The president looked keenly at the speaker, enjoying this succinct abstract of his own belief.

"Yes," he said. "I think they do, and so do I. It's custom, and habit, and good knowledge of long years, the confidence of well-trodden ground. When I come West, my private car is always attached to a good man with Foggarty in the cab. He's old, and grizzled and as steady as a rock. He could run an engine in his sleep, he is so used to it; and I know he'd do ty instinct the best of him in any crisis. I hope he'll last as long as I do."

The younger man nodded.

"Keep Foggarty," he said, "for consumption, but get in line with progress. Cut out the antiques and get in new stuff!"

"That will put out of business for the rest of their days two hundred and sixty-eight of the best engineers in America, for we have in our system at that number over your proposed limit."

"I have no sentiment," returned the other. "With me it's the system, nothing but the system."

"That's very good, my boy, but you see that with me it has been the man, and nothing but the system, for forty years. I'm an antique myself, I'm bound to go that line in time—"

The sentence was jerked unfinished from the speaker's mouth. With a sickening tilting of his silk hat, he was hard against the back of the front seat. From the front seat the young man and the lumberjack fell to their knees on the floor. There was a lurch, a great creaking, a wild jangle from the bells on the horses, and the rock wall on the left began to merge its diagonal lines and fissures into a rushing blur.

Out of the melee of sounds there rose a voice cutting through with a calmness, deep and caressing.

"Whoa, boys! Whoa, boys! Whoa, my steady boys, Whoa!"

The young man on the floor opened his mouth and stared at the president, and the blood slowly drained out of both faces.

"Runaway!" jerked the former. "We're running!"

A cold wind shrieked in at the swaying window. The old coach staggered drunkenly, its railed top missing the flying wall, again flung far out over the edge. The wheelers caught one sickening glimpse of a soft, white floor in the canon below, its belying assurance betrayed by the spike-like tops of pines and one tall needle of rock.

A grim line settled about the younger man's lip. He struggled up clutching the door; but the old latch had been sprung by that first lurch, and held. Silently he grasped a hold and looked ahead.

Like a ribbon running down a turning spool, the smooth, white road ran down around the cliff. Here and there it straightened a bit, and he could see the leaders, a splendid pair of rangy duns with dapples on their gaunt hips, running with flattened ears and stretched necks.

In a maze he heard the roar of mingled sounds, the exciting pound of the hoofs, the turmoil of the bells, the creaking of the crazy old stage, the wild squeal of the brake and through it all the deep, caressing voice of the driver talking to his horses:

"Whoa, boys! Steady! Steady thar! Pete! Pete! Whoa, Pete.

Then suddenly there jumped into his consciousness the voice of the lumber-jack on the floor. It was broken and in jerks, but this is what it said:

"It's—Hicks—on the box—the old-timer. Drove forty years."

Old-timer! Drove forty years!

Hillis gathered his scattered wits, and strove to focus his dilated eyes on the network of lines, four of them, that ran tautly up to the box.

There he caught swaying glimpses of a figure in a red flannel shirt, as it swung from side to side, one booted foot braced on the footbar, one on the brake, its naked arms brown as leather under the rolled-up sleeves, the muscles slipping and rising with every lurch. Heavily he got his eyes up to the face—a lean face, brown as the arms, peaked and sharp with sun and wind, under ragged gray hair that blew back. And he saw there Hicks, old-timer; saw the set of the lean jaw, the eagle look of the eyes, the whole man bent to the moment; saw habit in the grip of the knotted hands on the lines, assurance and confidence and instinct in such skillful handling of each pregnant moment as is rarely given one to witness.

He did not know that he saw all this at the time. He recalled it afterward. And then, suddenly as it had all begun, like a shot one sound left the rest—the high, shrill scream of the brake. The red-shirted figure lurched perilously, regained itself and straightened, just as the stage plunged forward upon the heels of the wheelers.

Ahead was a sharper turn. The wheelers, hitherto obeying against odds, leaped forward and fate poised its fingers, waiting.

It was then that Hillis saw the weathered arm fly to a hip, saw a gun whip out and heard its vicious crack. Hicks was shooting his horses!

Pete, the near leader, lunged down and slid, but the pace was no more affected than if a drop of rain had fallen. The mighty impetus carried them on.

One, two, three shots followed rapidly. The remaining leader stumbled, but thundered on; then off wheeler fell, kicking frightfully. They were slowing. The young railroad man, clinging in the window, was dumb and aghast.

The old driver aimed once more, got an empty click, and threw away the gun. Dragging the two fallen horses, pushed by the brakeless stage, heavy and cumbrous, the others went for the curve. It was sharp, and the blue sky of the morning showed across it.

Calmly, old Hicks slid from the box into the struggling mass. He did it easily, as if by instinct. The man in the window gasped.

The rest was too swift and tragic to grasp. He only knew that the leaders had lurched loose from the scoring tongue, whipping a broken chain; that there was a flash of red behind the wheelers; that the sky-bounded curve was drawing up; that there was one moment when a mix-up of dun horses and bay staggered on the edge, to struggle with a neigh or two of terror before they went dragging over, leaving the half-wrecked vehicle with one wheel whirling in space.

Hicks went over with his horses. He had first, very thoughtfully, slashed the one fastened trace.

Half an hour later the three men stood beside the heap below.

"He was an old-timer, all right!" said the lumber-jack regretful'y. "That's an old trick in the mountains, shootin' the horses, and it 'most always works. Would have this time if the brake had held. It was a ticklish job, old boy," he finished, as he spread a blanket from his turkey, fallen from the boot, over the limp, gray-haired figure and unwound a line from the left hand; "and you was Johnny-on-the-spot. We'll have to walk in to town, gents!"

Early the next morning the president's private car went south from Grant's Pass.

"Sir," said the younger man, very gravely, after breakfast. "I recede from my argument. There is something in use and familiarity and long service, after all—in habit, instinct, if you will. By all means let us keep our old-timers!"

GERMAN FILM PARTY IN CITY

Travel Pictures Taken for European Theaters

Now Engaged on Second of American Series

Local Industry and Scenes to be Photographed

Dietrich W. Dreyer, owner of the Doering Film Works, Hanover, Germany, with his assistants, Karl Pindl, artist, and Hugo Urban and Arthur Neurmann, cameraman, arrived in Los Angeles yesterday afternoon. The party, financed by the North German Lloyd Steamship Company, is completing a travel film of the United States and Canada which will be shown in German schools and theaters and on all North German Lloyd steamers. Mr. Dreyer completed the first part of his American film, taking in the United States as far west as Chicago, last year. Under the title of "America at Work" it now is being shown in Germany. On the present trip he is covering the country from Chicago west and will call his film "The Wonderful West."

The party arrived here from Zion National Park, and will spend the remainder of the week in and around Los Angeles. Today they will film the oil fields, fruit canneries and orange groves. On Thursday they will visit the fish canneries and on Friday they will film the motion-picture studios. Saturday and Sunday, at the invitation of William Wrigley, Jr., will be spent at Santa Catalina Island. Monday the party will leave for San Francisco, where they plan to spend about a week after which they will return to the East through Salt Lake City, Denver and Kansas City.

Mr. Dreyer's company films and handles travel and educational pictures exclusively. The films are run without titles, but each is explained by a lecturer furnished by the company. Historical development of the various countries also is a feature of the Doering films.

FRESNO TO HAVE FIRST LIGHTHOUSE

Mrs. McPherson Tells Plans for Dedication of Initial Church in Chain

Fresno has been chosen as the site for the first new lighthouse to be established as a branch of Angelus Temple since Aimee Semple McPherson, pastor, took over management of the church relinquished by her mother, according to an announcement made by the evangelist last night.

Mrs. McPherson will leave Angelus Temple Monday for the first time since conducting a religious meeting in Chicago last summer, to go to Fresno and take personal charge of a four-day revival.

The evangelist will speak every afternoon and evening opening the meetings Tuesday afternoon. Friday night, at the closing service, Mrs. McPherson will dedicate the lighthouse.

Plans also are being made for establishment of a lighthouse in San Diego at an early date, it was announced. It also is reported that plans for founding a Bible college at Des Moines, Ia., are under consideration.

Under the plan adopted by Mrs. McPherson upon her mother's withdrawal from active management of the church, all new branches are termed lighthouses and church officers are given nautical titles. Angelus Temple is known as Central Lighthouse.

MRS. McPHERSON CASE JURY DISAGREES

SAN DIEGO, Sept. 27. (AP)—A Federal jury which today heard the case of A. R. Sauer, editor of a local weekly paper who was on trial charged with sending obscene matter through the mails, was discharged this evening after it had discussed the evidence for several hours without being able to agree. It was announced that Sauer will be tried again at the next term of Federal court here.

The article on which the charge was based was about Aimee Semple McPherson, Los Angeles evangelist.

AID SOUGHT FOR WOMAN IN "TRANCE"

Mrs. Drummond Declared Destitute as Long Stupor Robs Her of Strength

Declaring that Mrs. Clara Drummond, victim of a trance-like stupor for more than four months, is in destitute circumstances and that her probable recovery depends on better care, Mrs. Mayme Matthay, 801 South Plymouth Boulevard, president of the Soroptimist Club, and Mrs. Katherine Musselwhite, 2321 Thirteenth avenue, another club woman, yesterday made plans to raise a fund in behalf of the stricken woman.

Although Mrs. Drummond for a time showed signs of improvement and regained her speech, another development of her peculiar illness, again has robbed her of her voice, according to Mrs. Musselwhite. Her body, however, the club women said, has lost the rigidity that characterized the illness from its inception and the symptoms as a whole are regarded favorable to recovery.

At present Mrs. Drummond is declared to be under the care of a practical nurse and Dr. W. J. Peacock. The nurse, although a widow with three children, is said to have given practically all of her time to her patient without remuneration.

Mrs. Drummond, originally a resident of Fresno, received considerable publicity when she was brought here for treatment some months ago.

R. W. Hambrook to Federal Post

Assigned to the Pacific Coast region, consisting of eleven States, Robert W. Hambrook, co-operative instructor of machine shop classes for John C. Fremont High school, has been appointed an agent of the Federal Board for Vocational Education. Mr. Hambrook expects to begin his duties early in October.

Slightly more than a year ago Mr. Hambrook started the first co-operative trade training class in a regular high school in Los Angeles. Under this system the students spend one-half their time serving apprenticeships in industry and the other half in school. This fall he also started the first course in aeronautics to be given in any high school in this section of the country. He is a graduate of the University of Southern California.

ROBERT W. HAMBROOK.

Nick Lucas Is Vaudeville Hit

The bill opening at the Hillstreet Sunday is said by its sponsors to be the biggest show ever assembled for this popular playhouse. The vaudeville program will be headed by Nick Lucas, the "Crooning Troubadour," while the screen will feature Jackie Coogan in "The Bugle Call."

Nick Lucas will offer a selection of popular song-and-guitar numbers—the kind that have made him liked on the stage and phonograph.

The vaudeville program will be augmented by Claudia Coleman in "Feminine Types" and Harry Holman in his skit, "Hard-Boiled Hampton." Miss Coleman will present a series of impersonations of women from all walks in life. Harry Holman's contribution will be a new version of his comedy farce.

Gilson and Scott will be seen and heard in a series of popular tunes, both in harmony and solo. Two other stellar Orpheum Circuit features are included.

Jackie Coogan, brings a new "Kid" to the screen in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "The Bugle Call." This story is from a historical incident and was produced for the screen by Edward Sedgwick with Claire Windsor, Sarah Padden, Herbert Rawlinson, Tom O'Brien and Harry Todd featured.

Yvette Rugel Tops New Acts

Yvette Rugel, the Sherwoods and Eddie Conrad will form the "three-some" of bright headline features scheduled to appear at the Orpheum starting Sunday matinee.

Miss Rugel may be remembered as an outstanding feature in Earl Carroll's "Vanities" and George White's "Scandals."

The Sherwoods, Bob and Gale, are bringing with them a new array of talent and "stunts."

Eddie Conrad, with Marion Eddy, will offer for a second week, his funny "Whoo-ha."

Two other unusual features will be Arthur and Morton Havel, featuring Helen Lockhart in "Oh! Uncle;" and Hooper and Gatchett in a comedy offering entitled "The Rookie" which has Marie La Fierre in a featured role. Eddie and Morton Beck, the Bardelangs and one other feature attraction will complete the new bill.

Stars Reunited in Warner Play

May McAvoy and Conrad Nagel, the stellar combination that made such a hit in "Grumpy," several years ago, are playing together again for the first time in Warner Brothers' production of "Slightly Used," directed by Archie L. Mayo. They are supplemented by a cast which includes Robert Agnew, Audrey Ferris, Eugenia Besserer, Anders Randolf, Sally Eilers, Arthur Rankin, David Mir and Jack Santoro.

"Slightly Used," a comedy of youth and love, opens at the Boulevard Theater Friday, with the popular Abe Lyman and his orchestra on the stage.

BANKER TO ADDRESS CLUB

The Woman's Advertising Club will have as its guest of honor C. C. Lincoln, assistant vice-president of the Security Trust and Savings Bank, at the Alexandria today noon. He will speak on direct-mail advertising. Dean Helen Matthewson Laughlin of the University of Southern California and also commissioner of the Girls Scouts, will speak on "The Future of the Girls Scout Movement." What advertising women can do for the Girl Scouts will be the topic of Gladys Bruner, director of the Los Angeles chapter of the Girl Scouts.

NOTED PLAY TO BE SCREENED

Mel Brown Makes "13 Washington Square" for Universal; Mama's Boy of "What Price Glory" With Lasky; Patsy Ruth Miller to Europe

BY GRACE KINGSLEY

Mel Brown is at last to have his heart's desire. He is going to direct "13 Washington Square" for Universal. As you will doubtless remember, "13 Washington Square" was a highly successful play in which May Irwin starred in New York a few years ago. The story is by Leroy Scott, who thriftily made a novel as well as a play of the tale.

MELVILLE BROWN.

Jean Hersholt is to star in the picture, the story of which has been somewhat changed, as you can readily imagine, since originally it served the highly feminine if robustly humorous Miss Irwin as a starring vehicle.

Director Brown is in the throes of casting and will not be finished with that arduous task for a few more days at least. This being his pet story, he is collecting all the exactly right players for the different roles. So far, besides Hersholt, he and Universal have signed George Lewis, the clever young actor who has been starring in Universal's "Collegian" series, and Helen Foster, a charming young ingenue in stock with Universal.

Jack Townley wrote the adaptation of the story for the screen.

Barry Norton In It

If you saw Barry Norton in Raoul Walsh's "What Price Glory," of course you are interested to know what this promising youth is going to do to promote his future.

BARRY NORTON

Paramount revealed yesterday that it has signed Norton to play an important role in the new aviation picture, "The Legion of the Condemned," by John Monk Saunders, who also wrote "Wings."

Just by way of adding realism to the picture, Paramount has also signed five air pilots. These include Capt. Sterling C. Campbell, former British ace during the war, Ross Cook, Robert de Couedic, Ted Parsons and Tom Wouteon.

William Wellman, who made such a good job of directing "Wings," will direct "The Legion of the Condemned."

Patsy Ruth Miller to Travel

Unless something serious happens to prevent, Patsy Ruth Miller is going to Europe next spring. She has her heart all set on it, she told me a day or two ago.

PATSY RUTH MILLER

Never having set foot on foreign soil, other than that of Mexico, Pat feels it is up to her to complete her education with travel in far lands.

If Patsy Ruth's parents are very good between now and the time she departs, she is going to take them along with her.

Warner Brothers' Aviation Film

Now that aviation is holding the center of the world stage in point of popular interest, what more reasonable than that it should pop into the heads of the Warner Brothers to make a picture exploiting the important subject?

Darryl Zanuck, associated executive, announced yesterday that the Warners are planning to make a motion picture dedicated to those who have risked and in some cases lost their lives that aviation might go forward.

MONTE BLUE

This production is to be "Across the Atlantic" and will star Monte Blue. It will tell a thrilling tale of a trans-Atlantic flight, and the events of a man's life, which brought him to the test.

Millard Webb With Universal

There is at present every likelihood in the world that Universal will sign Millard Webb as one of its directors.

And in the meantime he is now planning to make his annual picture for that concern. The picture will be a film version of Earl Derr Biggers's "Honeymoon Flats." His cast is not yet announced, but will be within the next fortnight.

Arthur Stone and Bride Home

Since the Los Angeles papers do not penetrate to the wilds of Humboldt county, we are divulging no secret to the party most concerned when we let you in on the fact that Arthur Stone is having his Hollywood home entirely renovated in preparation for the arrival of himself and his bride, now away on their honeymoon.

This is designed as a surprise for his wife. They have been in Humboldt county on their trip.

Incidentally, Stone has been suffering from a severe case of poison oak, acquired while camping out in the northern woods.

Facts About Your Favorites

Myrna Loy and Andre Beranger were signed yesterday for important roles in May McAvoy's current Warner picture, "If I Were Single."

Adela Rogers St. Johns and Willis Goldbeck will make the film treatment of "Lilac Time" for First National and Colleen Moore.

Patricia Avery has just completed her work in the new Tiffany production, "Night Life," under direction of George Archainbaud.

Ethlyn Gibson has completed her work in "Ladies Must Live."

Lew Cody started his second week of Orpheum tour in Chicago Sunday, breaking all holiday house records at the Palace.

Dancers Report Progress

Those two clever young steppers, Sylvia Sydnor and Leontine Nolet, offshoots of the parent terpsichorean team of Panchon and Marco, and known professionally as Sylvia and Leontine, are about to depart for Europe.

A two-year tour on which they started last August, was under the management of Brewster Pomeroy and the itinerary included Chicago, Boston, New York and Australia, New Zealand, England, France, Austria and Germany.

Lon Chaney Home

Lon Chaney, who has been absent in the Sierras on a fishing trip, has returned to the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios to plunge into preparations for his next starring role in "The Big City."

Hatton and Beery Vacation

A friend writes me from Silver Lake that Raymond Hatton and Wallace Beery are having a great time up there at their respective mountain homes.

"Both Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton are up here with their wives," the letter tells. "They are acting like a couple of school kids on a lark. Each has a cabin on the lake here in the high Sierras. They spend their days in overalls hammering on nails and sawing boards, building additions to their cabins. They're dressed worse than the natives and both have long beards. No one would guess that they are two of the biggest stars in the industry. Campers who stop over here mistake them for farmers or guides.

"At this minute Beery is on the roof of his house, shingling it, and Hatton is in the middle of the lake puttering with the small motor attached to his boat. They spend their early mornings and evenings fishing. Wally is leaving tomorrow on a deer-hunting expedition with an Indian guide, probably getting ready for his next picture, 'The Big Game Hunt.'"

Looking for Historic Counterparts

Searching for the physical counterparts of three famous persons of history is the task which Alan Crosland has set for himself. All Hollywood is being viewed in order to find three men who resemble Napoleon Bonaparte, Henry Clay and Thomas Jefferson. These three figures in American and French history play prominent roles in Crosland's next production, "Glorious Betsy," for Warner Brothers.

"Glorious Betsy" is an epic of the Napoleonic period. France, New York, Baltimore and Virginia of the early nineteenth century are the setting for the screen drama. The Napoleon sought must be like the famous warrior of two years before and during the first year of his power in France. The counterparts of Clay and Jefferson, says Crosland, must look as these statesmen did between the ages of 28 and 30 years of age.

Actual shooting on the production will begin some time in October. Dolores Costello will play the star role of Betsy and Conrad Nagel will play the role of a noted Frenchman.

Kane and Lyon Arrive

If nothing happens to prevent, Robert Kane and Ben Lyon of the First National Company will arrive in town Monday morning, all set to go to work. Lyon is under contract to Kane, who produces the star's pictures.

It isn't settled yet as to what picture Lyon will do, but it is known that First National is lining up some of its best stories for him.

'Turandot' Read Brilliantly by Ethel G. Lynde

"Turandot," the posthumous Puccini opera, was given a brilliant reading at the Auditorium yesterday afternoon. Ethel Graham Lynde, whose opera interpretations are deservedly popular, gave the exposition in a dramatic and illuminating way. She was aided by Marjorie Hall Hicks, pianist, who played the score.

Judging by the vivid portrayal of the opera given by Mrs. Lynde, "Turandot" will be one of the grand spectacles of Los Angeles opera. The Chinese beauty of ice who puts the prince to three terrible tests and then refuses him the reward, will be surrounded by fascinating lure of oriental fairy tales and the Puccini arts of music love will not be missing.

As the opera was not finished at the time of Puccini's death, it was completed by Alfano, composer of "Resurrection."

Today at 2:30 Mrs. Lynde will read "Falstaff." This work is one of Verdi's masterpieces and has not been frequently done here. To hear the themes and know their meaning before attending the performance enriches the pleasure of opera. Thursday "Tristan and Isolde" will be given, Friday "La Tosca," and "Manon Lescaut" and on Saturday, "Aida" and "La Boheme."

Biblical Film Will Depart Within Month

The presentation of "The King of Kings" will end its engagement in Grauman's Chinese Theater before November 1, according to wires from Sid Grauman in New York to members of his executive staff in Hollywood.

Grauman advises that closing of negotiations for another production to follow the De Mille opus into the Chinese, scheduled for an early opening, makes it imperative to terminate the engagement.

Since "The King of Kings" had its premiere on May 18, dedicating the new theater, between 400,000 and 500,000 persons have made the pilgrimage to Hollywood to view it.

The day of the last showing of "The King of Kings" and the identity of the production to follow it into the Chinese is expected to be made known by Grauman on his arrival here from New York early next week. Rumors name "The Trail of '98," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, as the "Kings" successor.

DIRECTOR TO REST

Following the completion of the direction of Will Rogers in "The Texas Steer," which Sam Rork is producing for First National, Richard Wallace intends to his himself to some secluded spot in the mountains. During the past year Wallace has, without interruption, directed such successes as "Raggedy Rose," "Syncopating Sue," "McFadden's Flats," and "The American Beauty."

MASS MEETING TODAY

A taxpayers' mass meeting to discuss the Third street viaduct proposal will be conducted today at 8 p.m. at the Union Avenue School under the auspices of the Loma Drive and Union Avenue Property Owners' Protective Association.

ESPINEL CREATES ILLUSION OF SPAIN

"Song Pictures" Fascinate With Their Simplicity and Primitive Grace

BY ISABEL MORSE JONES

Luisa Espinel's "song pictures" of Spain portrayed at the Beaux Arts Auditorium last night were charming in their simplicity and beauty. Espinel is an artist who has taken the pains to diligently search for loveliness by forgotten Spanish waysides and her reward is appreciation from all who are sensitive to the refinement and enchanting subtleties of this romantic nation.

The interesting variation between the regiones of Spain was set forth by the clever diseuse in folk-songs from Castile, from Galicia and from Valencia. Beautiful costumes of brilliant color characterized each graceful entrance and the musical background was admirably supplied by Nino Herschel at the piano. His accompaniments were high artistry and often made possible the extremely effective nuances of Espinel.

Many of the songs would have delighted the heart of a collector. They were so old and are so rarely heard even in Spain. True, as the Senorita said in her cultivated English, they needed a patio, a garden, a guitar and a brilliant sky, but without these and in the somewhat conventional auditorium with a simple curtain as a back wall, the illusion was skillfully created by her speech and song, and never lost until she left the stage.

Musically, some of the songs were of higher rank than the others. An Asturian lullaby of superior melodic interest was one of these. A Canto de Pandeiro sung unaccompanied, was haunting in its stark beauty. A certain arresting strength in this song and an effect of inevitable rightness in its pitch brought a question to mind.

Would this music of a primitive people sound better without the rigid intonation of a piano back of it? There were moments in "Senorita Espinel's singing when the pitch seemed uncertain and the tones roughened. After hearing the unaccompanied number, these fractional differences in intervals seemed right and the piano's rigidity of pitch at fault. It would be a nice point for the musical technicians to wrangle over.

Espinel's castanet playing was particularly good and a scene with a tambor brought out new possibilities for that instrument.

Espinel should never be compared to Raquel Meller for she is utterly different. She is extremely sincere and for that very reason, perhaps, lacks the sophistication and lure of Meller. Her costumes are exceedingly beautiful but, unlike Meller, she is too generous with her numbers. They are wonderfully varied but even so, not different enough for too long a program. A little less movement of the arms and fewer steps except in the graceful freedom of the dance would be better. A heightened reserve made Meller intriguing and although it might have been artificial, it was good.

NAT CARR ENGAGED BY LOEW'S

Hebrew Comedian Will be Feature of Fanchon and Marco "Idea"

Fanchon and Marco announce the engagement of Nat Carr, comedian, for a one-week engagement at Loew's State Theater, starting Friday.

Nat Carr was last seen in Los Angeles in "The Great Necker," with Taylor Holmes. At Loew's State Theater, he will be the featured star of the Fanchon and Marco "Idea." He has had a long and popular career on the variety stage and in motion pictures. His repertoire of Hebrew jokes, gags and comedy bits is said to rank with the greatest of its kind on the American stage.

Carr's engagement at Loew's State is the first of a series of big attractions of the stage, which Fanchon and Marco have booked for the season of 1927-28.

Concurrently with Carr's appearance at Loew's State, Paramount Pictures will present Adolphe Menjou in "A Gentleman of Paris." Other attractions will be Cliff Nazarro—that mighty musical mite—and the Our Gang comedy, "The Old Wallop."

BOOKED, NOT LEASED

Lillian Albertson, who was reported to have leased the Biltmore Theater for a presentation in January of the Fields-Youmans musical comedy, "Hit the Deck," states that the playhouse will be occupied by her company as a regular road-show booking in the manner of other attractions.

Leading lady with the players at the Mission Playhouse at San Gabriel, where popular plays with a reputation are being staged. "The Gorilla" is the current attraction.

"THE PATSY" WILL RETURN

Word is forthcoming from the local headquarters of the Henry Duffy Players at El Capitan Theater, that "What Ann Brought Home" is in its final fortnight and will make way October 9 for Henry Duffy and Dale Winter, who are returning to Los Angeles to appear in Barry Connor's comedy success, "The Patsy," which Duffy declares is one of the "best-selling" that has been written by an American author in many years. Duffy and Dale Winter appeared in "The Patsy" in the other houses on the Duffy chain of theaters along the Pacific Coast and it proved one of the most popular of their offerings. The young producer is anxious to do it hereabouts.

Edwin Curtis, stage director of the Duffy Players, has been hard at work for the past ten days leading rehearsals of the forthcoming production.

"The Patsy" was seen recently with the Morosco players.

TWO BEAUTIES CAST IN NEW LANE FILM

Lupino Lane had lots of delectable bathing beauties in his last comedy recently completed at the Educational studio, but he didn't have a leading lady. He played his own!

In the new fun fest he has just started, the agile little comedian makes up for the previouns deficiency by having two fair charmers, Anita Garvin and Marjorie Moore. As Lane is producing satirical comedy laid in a Spanish-American republic, Anita Garvin was especially selected because of her dramatic ability as well as her exotic beauty. The other screen sweetheart is a new discovery of the comedian's. Miss Moore has just been recruited from the vaudeville circuits and shows rare promise, according to the comedy star.

Wallace Lupino is playing opposite his brother, as usual. Tom Whitely, Lee Mattison and Phil McKenzie complete the cast.

ILLINOIS WEEK WINS RESIDENTS' APPROVAL

There are said to be 850,000 persons from Illinois in Southern California. The Hollywood Play House, which is honoring all former residents of Illinois with a "week," is the mecca for a great many.

"The Home Towners," the George M. Cohan play which was such a success in New York and Chicago, is duplicating its success here, the management avers.

It makes the fourth success for the Hollywood Play House.

The cast includes Frances Underwood, Robert McWade, Landers Stevens, Hazel McConnell, Gloria Gordon, Edward Cassidy, Thomas R. Cassidy, Pearl Wyard, Cyril Gordon Weld, Burdell Jacobs and Douglas Lawrence.

Douglas Lawrence, who portrays the comical role of the bell boy, is also a native of Illinois.

CINDERELLA TALE IS WOVEN ABOUT PLAYER

"Connie Goes Home," which opens at the Morosco Theater Sunday afternoon, is one of those Cinderella stories. However, in this new play by Edward Childs Carpenter, the little "cinder girl" is a stage actress.

Kay Hammond, who plays the role of Connie, will be the girl. John Litel, as Mister Jim, will be the "Prince Charming."

Carpenter, in a series of ingenious situations, brings the Cinderella to the Prince Charming. And everything ends well.

WORKS INCESSANTLY

"Hoot" Gibson, filmdom's human dynamo, continues on his record-breaking production schedule. For the past four years Universal's western star has been working on one picture after another without more than two days' rest between productions.

MADISON WRITES ANOTHER

Glenn Tryon's new comedy for Universal, "A Broadway Clown," is now being written by James Madison, who was co-author with James Gruen of "The Cohens and Kellys in Paris." For twenty years Madison had been writing comedies for the stage, before changing to pictures.

ARE GUESTS TONIGHT

The Sons and Daughters of the Golden West, as well as other California pioneers and Spanish societies, have been invited to Loew's State Theater tonight, in order to view "Rose of the Golden West," starring Mary Astor and Gilbert Roland.

FILM STAR TURNS TO FOOTLIGHTS

Metropolitan Secures Mae Murray for Week; Jolson Sets Precedent

Mae Murray in person on the stage of the Metropolitan Theater is the feature for one week starting October 13. Miss Murray, who has won fame all over the world with the "Merry Widow" and other great productions, will illustrate the grace of the famous "Merry Widow Dance," and will execute other steps such as the "Blue Danube Waltz," given in its modern form.

This theatrical deal, coming closely on the phenomenal run of Al Jolson at the Metropolitan Theater, when all house records for that theater were smashed, further emphasizes the fact that Los Angeles has become a theatrical amusement center second only to New York.

Mae Murray, who has just returned from Europe, refused many tempting offers in New York, it is said. One of them was to appear under the Ziegfeld banner at a highly attractive salary. She refused these offers owing to other contracts which she held. When she reached Los Angeles and was approached regarding a week of personal appearances at the Metropolitan, Miss Murray was ready to accept, having had a change of heart.

Hugo Classic Being Filmed

Amid a large gathering of representatives of practically every important news and film publication, director Paul Leni yesterday started shooting on the first scenes of "The Man Who Laughs," Victor Hugo's immortal classic, which is being produced by Universal under the direct supervision of Paul Kohner.

Leni, whose recent directorial effort, "The Cat and the Canary," revealed him as a megaphonist second to none in Hollywood's film colony, was intrusted with the directing of Universal's biggest spectacle on next year's program, because of his faculty for being able to combine both the American and European touches, a salient feature which seems to have struck the popular fancy of the picture-going public.

Mary Philbin, Conrad Veidt and George Siegmann will portray the three featured roles.

Niblo's Record Is Lengthy One

Twenty-five films in two years, and only thirteen in the ensuing seven years.

That is the unusual distinction held by Fred Niblo, director of "Ben Hur" Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's spectacle production now playing at the Million Dollar Theater.

Niblo began his directorial career in 1918, which field he was persuaded to enter by the late Thomas Ince. His first assignment was "The Marriage Ring," starring Enid Bennett, with Jack Holt as the hero and Robert McKim as the villain. It was an elaborate production which included volcanoes, fires, shipwrecks, and scenes laid in Hawaii and San Francisco. It was declared a huge success. The entire production took four weeks to complete.

In a little over two years, Niblo made twenty-five films for Ince. Since then, he has made but thirteen.

Horton Seeks Embryo Author

Because of the scarcity of genuine laugh-provoking comedy dramas of the caliber of "So This is Love" at the Hollywood Music Box, Edward Everett Horton, star of the play, announced yesterday that he will give embryo playwrights an opportunity.

Horton's announcement, it was reported, places him on the market for comedy dramas from both embryo and established authors.

Each manuscript submitted to the play reading department of the Hollywood Music Box will be given careful consideration by Horton himself. Embryo writers will be given first choice, it was announced. Those selected for production will be announced and the authors notified will be called in for a conference. All manuscripts rejected will be returned to the author providing return postage is inclosed with the contributions.

Wagner Number Leads Program

The program for the opening pair of concerts of the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra, Thursday evening, October 27, and Friday afternoon, October 28, has just been received from Georg Schnevoigt, the new conductor, who is now en route to the United States.

The program will open with the prelude to "Die Meistersinger" by Wagner. Two numbers which will be given their first hearing at these concerts are Manuel de Falla, tunes from "The Three-Cornered Hat" and Respighi, symphonic poem, "The Fountains of Rome." The closing number will be the Brahms Symphony No. 1 in C Minor, Op. 68.

As has been the custom the first concerts of the season are in honor of the conductor, and at which there will be no soloist.

WINDOW IS ARTISTIC

Richly Colored Glass Used in Tower Theater Design New

An art glass window, said to be one of the most beautiful and distinctive ornaments of this sort ever used in a theater building, will be one of the many special features to be incorporated in the new Tower Theater at Eighth and Broadway, opening October 12.

The window, above the entrance to the building, is lunette shaped and is eighteen by fifteen feet in size. Three months were required to fire, paint and assemble the richly colored glass used. The design, a coat of arms suggested by a similar work in the famous Palace of Versailles, was executed by artists from the Tiffany Studio.

A Personal Message to Wives and Mothers in Southern California

WE, the independent grocers whose names and addresses are listed in this advertisement, believe that the coming of Reid, Murdoch & Co. to Los Angeles is an event of lasting benefit to the people of California, for it insures a dependable supply of the best foods obtainable at prices always comparatively low.

Their local establishment, with its executive offices, coffee roasting plant, laboratories, kitchens, and staff of California salesmen, is a needed and welcome addition to Los Angeles' great and growing list of national commercial institutions.

A Long and Enviable Record

For more than 70 years Reid, Murdoch & Co. have constantly searched the markets of the world for the highest quality foods obtainable to sell under the Monarch trade mark. The greater portion of these are now manufactured or packed under their own direct supervision.

California canners and packers have long known Reid, Murdoch & Co., who were among the very first to take California fruits and vegetables to Eastern Markets—and today the old house is numbered among the largest buyers of Pacific Coast products.

The business of taking the foods grown in one section of the world to market in another is handled with the greatest economy by Reid, Murdoch & Co., who buy direct from producers and sell direct to retail distributors, saving all unnecessary handling costs.

Always the Best Quality Obtainable

Their buyers have one emphatic instruction. That is, that no merchandise is good enough for the Monarch brand unless ample proof is given that there is none better to be had at any price.

This care in selection and manufacture not only brings to your table a large variety of foods of unusual purity, flavor and excellence, but gives you a safe guarantee at all times that you are supplying your table with the best to be had (and at a low cost) if you insist upon the Monarch brand.

Here in California are gathered folks from every state in the Union. You enjoyed Monarch foods in your old home. We are certain you will welcome the opportunity to have your old favorites on your table.

We are ready to serve you.

Yours very sincerely,

WIFE BALKS AT PAYING ALIMONY

First Woman Ordered to Do So Under New State Law Adjudged in Contempt for Refusal and Told by Judge to Return to Court Prepared for Punishment

Mrs. Daisy Lorentzen, the first woman to be ordered to pay alimony to her husband under the new California law, seemed likely yesterday to be the first woman to be punished for contempt for not doing so. She was before Judge Scott on the complaint of her husband, H. J. Lorentzen, that she had not given him the $50 the court told her to pay several days ago.

She had a defense that Judge Scott held to be more ingenious than meritorious.

"My attorney, Mr. C. N. Carns, holds a judgment against Mr. Lorentzen," she said. "As soon as the court ordered me to pay him this money, Mr. Carns garnisheed the fund I was holding for Mr. Lorentzen's account."

"No, he didn't," Judge Scott ruled. "Money ordered to be paid forthwith may not be garnisheed. So that does not explain this situation, ignorance of the law being no excuse. You are in contempt and you will appear in this court tomorrow for sentence."

Lorentzen, who is represented by Attorney Henry Trowbridge, has set forth in his pleading in the divorce action that Mrs. Lorentzen is in possession of all the community property amassed by him as a cattleman in the San Fernando Valley.

AGREEMENT REACHED IN AIRLINE SUIT

Burdette Company Will Continue Business Under Same Name

An amicable settlement was reached outside court yesterday in the case of Christopher H. Hurtt, who filed suit in the Superior Court against the Burdette Airlines, Inc., asking dissolution of partnership and an accounting of funds of the company.

Indication that a settlement of differences might be expected came at noon yesterday when attorneys for both sides asked Superior Judge Bush, in whose court the trial opened Monday, for a continuance until 10 a.m. today. Later Attorney F. L. Botsford, representing the plaintiff, said the settlement had been consummated.

"While we are not at liberty to reveal the terms of the agreement, it was satisfactory to all sides," said the attorney. "The Burdette Airlines will continue business under the same name."

The case attracted more than usual attention when it was set forward on the Superior Court calendar of civil actions on order of Judge Gates, who asserted the infant aeronautic industry is a vital matter of public policy.

Pair Bound Over in Car Stripping

An ingenious system of stripping stolen cars of tires, motormeters, wind protectors and other parts and then selling them to a second-hand automobile dealer of Long Beach, was related on the witness stand yesterday in Municipal Judge McConnell's Court by Robert Lee Johnson and Harold Wells.

On questioning of Dept. Dist. Atty. Kearney, the defendants pleaded guilty to twelve felony charges, six of grand theft and six of driving a car without the owner's consent and waived preliminary hearing. They were held to answer to the Superior Court for trial on bail of $5000 each.

Fifteenth Annual Southern California Fair Opens at Riverside

THE fifteenth annual Southern California Fair opened yesterday at Riverside with one of the most extensive and elaborate agricultural and industrial displays in the history of the exposition. From an artistic standpoint it eclipses any previous Riverside fair. Among the features of the show are the date display, possible in but few communities in the nation, an Indian school industrial display and an exhibit of modern aircraft. The Famous "Wagon Box Fight"—VI. Just Before the Battle.

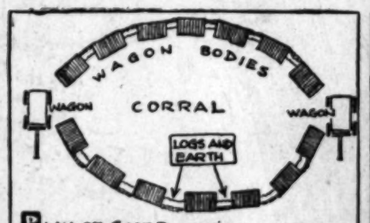
by J. CARROLL MANS



PLAN OF CAPT. POWELL'S WAGON BOX BARRICADE.

HAVING REACHED THE LOW CIRCLE OF WAGON BODIES IN SAFETY, THE TROOPERS OF CAPT. POWELL'S COMMAND CRAWLED TO THEIR STATIONS AND PREPARED FOR ACTION. THEY HAD PLENTY OF AMMUNITION WITH WHICH TO MEET THE ATTACK, AND A SURPLUS OF WEAPONS. CROUCHED IN THE WAGON BODIES THEY SIGHTED THEIR REPEATING RIFLES THROUGH LOOPHOLES AND WAITED GRIMLY FOR THE SIOUX.

WITHIN THIS UNIQUE FORTIFICATION WERE TWO OFFICERS, TWENTY-SIX SOLDIERS AND FOUR CIVILIANS—THIRTY-TWO DAUNTLESS WHITE MEN AGAINST THREE THOUSAND HOWLING SIOUX! REMEMBERING THE DREADFUL FATE OF FETTERMAN'S COLUMN, EACH MEMBER OF THE BRAVE LITTLE BAND WAS DETERMINED TO SELL HIS LIFE DEARLY.

ON THE OTHER HAND, RED CLOUD WAS SO CONFIDENT OF VICTORY THAT HE HAD BROUGHT ALONG A CROWD OF SQUAWS AND CHILDREN TO CARRY AWAY THE PLUNDER HE EXPECTED TO TAKE.

HE BELIEVED THAT THE WHOLE [illegible] POWELL'S LITTLE COMPANY WOULD [illegible] PLAY FOR HIS WARRIORS, AND SEIZE [illegible] A BAND OF FIVE HUNDRED MOUNTED [illegible] TO RIDE DOWN THE FRAIL BARRICADE.

STREET PARKING AREA ENLARGED

Red Zones Reduction Gives Room for 1000 More Cars

Traffic Commission Tells of Headlight Campaign

Progress Made in Lowering Children's Accidents

Parking space for nearly 1000 additional cars daily has been provided by time-limit parking spaces through the reduction of the number of feet in red zones, according to a bulletin issued yesterday by the Los Angeles Traffic Commission.

Approximately 5400 cars now can be parked in the downtown district at one time, about 100 more than last year, according to the bulletin. On the basis of forty-five-minute parking, about 54,000 cars could be parked during a working day.

An intensive campaign against automobile headlights will be carried on by the California Public Safety Commission in co-operation with Frank Hook of the Motor Vehicle Division, the bulletin also states. The traffic accident committee of the commission, of which Ivan Kelso is chairman, has succeeded in arousing tremendous interest in the reduction of traffic accidents to children, the bulletin announced.

Other reports of the commission include the starting of proceedings to complete San Fernando Road as a wide, well-paved thoroughfare from Dayton avenue to the Newhall Tunnel, opening of the Seventh-street bridge, signing of the contract for the First-street viaduct and completion of the plans for the Washington-street bridge.

SUIT AIMED AT COMEDIAN

Asserting that Lloyd Hamilton, film comedian, not only failed to pay the usual $7.50 charged for cleaning vacated apartments, but also deserted his rented suite at 8287 Santa Monica Boulevard without replacing assertedly broken articles, Miss Flora Abrams, owner of the building, yesterday filed suit in the Municipal Court for $237.02 damages against the actor.

On April 2, last, Hamilton rented the apartment at $100 per month, agreeing to pay the regular sum for cleaning it on leaving, according to the complaint filed for Miss Abrams by Attorney Romaine L. Hogan.

HILL PARK SITE SEEN BY PARTY

Civic Group Looks Over Verdugo Section Proposed for Recreation Area

For the purpose of examining the territory with a view to making the Verdugo Hills a feature in Los Angeles county's future park system, a barbecue luncheon and tour of inspection of the hills was conducted yesterday as a community project.

The site offered for inspection includes 1800 acres on the northern slope of the Green Verdugo Hills, immortalized by John Steven McGroarty, between the city limits of Glendale and Los Angeles. It includes canyons and valleys with riding and hiking trails and picnic grounds capable of accommodating 200,000 persons, with parking space for 50,000 automobiles.

Access to the park is provided by paved highways from the heart of Los Angeles through Glendale and the proposed Tunk Canyon road will skirt the park on the northern edge, bringing it within thirty minutes' drive of Hollywood.

The luncheon, sponsored by the Verdugo Hills Park Association, composed of representatives of civic and fraternal organizations of La Crescenta, Montrose, Verdugo City and Tujunga, was attended by city officials of Los Angeles, Glendale and Pasadena and members of the citizens' committee on parks.

RAIN DRAIN UNIT GIVEN APPROVAL

West Jefferson Project Accepted by Shaw After Elimination of "Extras"

City Engineer Shaw yesterday accepted for the city as having been satisfactorily completed section No. 2 of the West Jefferson-street storm-drain system. There was not 1 cent of extras on this job, as contrasted with the West Adams storm drain, where the extras of $298,985 exceeded the contract price. As a result of the expose of conditions under which the West Adams storm-drain extras were ordered installed all construction work thereafter was placed under the direction of City Engineer Shaw and no extra construction now can be installed without his approval.

Section No. 2 of the West Jefferson-street project was designed by City Storm Drain Design Engineer Armstrong and the contractor was Robert Metcalf. His contract price was $333,000.

This section of the system will provide storm-water drainage for the district north of Jefferson street to Washington street and extending from Vermont avenue to Eighth avenue, the waters from this area being emptied into the main outfall on Jefferson street, which was Section No. 1.

NEWS OF SOUTHERN COUNTIES

NEW REDLANDS CHAPEL IN USE

First Services Conducted in Modern Structure

Second in Beauty to That at Stanford University

Completion of Edifice Lacks Few Finishing Touches

REDLANDS, Sept. 27.—The new chapel of the University of Redlands, said to be second only to that of Stanford in beauty, was placed in use today although it is not quite completed when the students, the faculty and friends of the university gathered there for the first assembly and services. The building can be used although not completed yet.

President Victor L. Duke presided and said that when completed everything in the beautiful building, erected at a cost of $250,000, including the $40,000 Cassal organ which is, yet to be installed, has been the gift of one family to remain unnamed. It is designed and to be used only for chapel services and musical concerts.

The exterior of the building is severely classical with a porch supported by great stone columns and broad flights of stairs leading to it. This leads into the narthex, which has openings into the main auditorium and also flights of stairs to the balcony.

The auditorium with the balcony seats almost 2000. There are four stained-glass windows over a like number of alcoves on each side and at the north end is the great choir loft with a marvelous stained-glass window behind it and the grills for the organ on each side. The stained-glass windows each have an appropriate seal, one that of the university, another of the Y.M.C.A., another a cross resting on faith, hope and charity, another lilies of resurrection, another the open book, one of a missionary design, and the torch of education. The great window really is three arched windows and the stained glass a work of art. The interior is all of acoustic plaster in panels with beamed ceiling and the acoustics are perfect.

The feature of the exterior is the lovely tower, which has a clock in it. The chanel commands the north end of the quad as the administration building does the south end.

Heavy Damage From Downtown Fire at Fresno

FRESNO, Sept. 27.—Fire of undetermined origin today destroyed the Connors Juvenile Shop in the heart of the downtown business district, entailing a loss to that store and adjoining mercantile establishments estimated at approximately $60,000, according to estimates of the owners of the properties.

Starting in the basement the fire sent up huge billows of suffocating smoke, which for a time thwarted efforts of the firemen to locate the flames, and it was not until a hole had been cut in the roof, and the front of the building opened providing ventilation, that the blaze was reached and extinguished.

District Chief Berkholtz was slightly injured when a portion of a wall fell, some of the bricks striking him on his feet and legs, spraining his ankle and inflicting bruises.

KERN COUNTY MEN INJURED IN TRAFFIC

McFARLAND, Sept. 27.—Two men were injured painfully thought not seriously in accidents on the highway near McFarland this morning and last evening. Crowded off the highway by another machine which failed to stop and render aid, T. Navarro, Rich Grove, received a severe scalp wound and numerous bruises, when his car overturned at 6 o'clock this morning. T. Waters, employee of the Valley Paving Company, working on the highway just south of here, was struck down by a small truck which was hauling asphalt. He was knocked unconscious into the soft dirt at the side of the road, but suffered no serious injury other than painful bruises. Both men were brought here for medical treatment.

Long Beach Man Sought for Shot Which Hit Wife

LONG BEACH, Sept. 27.—Because she refused to talk to her husband at the breakfast table this morning, Mrs. Fred S. Garlinger, 28 years of age, of 1528 Harris Road, is at Seaside Hospital with a bullet in her right lung. Police were on their way to Pomona this afternoon to apprehend the husband, Fred Garlinger, night watchman, who, police and neighbors charge, did the shooting.

A quarrel between the couple, started last night before the husband went to work, was continued this morning when Garlinger made overtures of peace. Mrs. Garlinger, neighbors declared, declined to make up and refused to talk to her husband. Garlinger, it is alleged, went to another room, returning with a pistol. He began firing at the ceiling and the walls of the kitchen. The wife turned to flee and one of the bullets struck her in the left breast, police said.

Mrs. Jose Cuervas, 35, Earl McKenzie, 14, and Wanda Warren, 12, neighbors, were witnesses. Garlinger is an overseas veteran and was wounded at the Marne, police were told. After the shooting Garlinger fled from the house and later police were told he was making for Pomona.

Bakersfield in Huge Program of Street Work

BAKERSFIELD, Sept. 27.—Thirty-eight blocks of Bakersfield streets will be paved and sidewalks and curbs along an additional fourteen blocks of city thoroughfares will be constructed as the result of three street-improvement proceedings unanimously approved by the Bakersfield City Council. The improvement project is one of the greatest ever undertaken at a single time in the history of Bakersfield.

City Engineer W. D. Clark was instructed to prepare plans and specifications for laying five-inch pavement along twenty-five blocks of streets east of Union avenue. The plans will call for paving Eighteenth sereet for a distance of six blocks, between Q and Union avenue; seven blocks of paving on Fremont street between Union and Truxton avenue; Truxton avenue from Fremont street to East Nineteenth street, a distance of two blocks; seven blocks of Sonora street between Truxton and East Nineteenth, and three blocks of Eureka street from Sonora street to Union avenue.

RANCHER AT DUARTE CRUSHED BY BARREL

DUARTE, Sept. 27. — S. A. Price, Duarte rancher, while working in an orange grove on the Thomas Holmes ranch yesterday, was painfully injured when a 600-pound barrel of oil fell from a wagon in which he was riding as the vehicle ran into a rut, and pinned him beneath the barrel. Price, who was working with Earl Dickey, was spraying an orange grove when the wagon in which he was riding hit a hole in the road and hurled him to the ground. Before he could get away the barrel fell from the wagon landing on top of him. Dickey moved Price from beneath the barrel and took him to his home. Price has lived in Duarte for thirty-eight years, and has been in the fumigating and spraying business for more than forty years.

MONTEBELLO'S WINNER OF FAMOUS BRITISH PRIZE

Garden of Amacrinum Lilies Which Will Be Seen at Flower Show

One of Many Rare and Lovely Blooms to Be Shown

Mary Pyle in a bed of hybrids originated here and which won the Cory Cup of England in competition with growers from all over the world.

MONTEBELLO, Sept. 27.—The "big top" which has been erected adjoining the Municipal Park, facing Whittier Boulevard, does not mean that the circus has come to Montebello. It does mean that the third annual flower show, sponsored by the local Chamber of Commerce and the nurserymen of this city is about to take place. This is an event which flower lovers of Southern California have learned to anticipate with keen pleasure, for it is a general flower show, one which gives opportunity for the satisfaction of a wide variance in individual enthusiasm. September 30, October 1 and 2, will find hundreds of such visitors in attendance at the show.

From a background of flower production second to no other community in the United States, Montebello will select her choicest blooms to grace the exhibition, entering them in competition with displays representing some of the best flower growers and nurseries in Southern California, for this show is open to all comers, both professional and amateur. More than forty commercial growers are on the entry lists and over 100 amateurs have reserved space. The exhibits will range from delicate hothouse flowers and plants to water lilies and field-grown blossoms, from roses to zinnias. There will be an exceptionally comprehensive display of fine ornamentals.

An award at this show will be a decided honor for the judges who will pass upon the merits of the entries are all men of widely recognized ability. Frank Shearer, superintendent of Los Angeles City Parks; John G. Morley, superintendent of San Diego city parks; Hugh Evans of Santa Monica; Frank Mulkey, former president of the Dahlia Society; W. T. Shields, editor of Western Horticulture; H. J. Sherer of San Pedro; Joseph Vavra of Santa Monica, and Lovell Swisher, Jr., are the judges for this show.

The show will be opened officially at 7 p.m. Friday night by J. D. Merriwether, president of the California Nurserymen's Association. Dr. M. L. Parmelee, Mayor of Montebello, and Walter F. Malone, president of the local Chamber of Commerce. Friday night will be California night, and a program of Spanish songs and dances will be a feature. According to Carl Kieselhorst, manager of the show, music and other entertainment features will be provided for the balance of the show which closes Sunday night with the presentation of the silver cups and trophies won by the exhibitors.

FIDO FINDS FRIEND IN UPLAND POLICE

UPLAND, Sept. 27.—At last the greatly misunderstood Fido has found a friend in the Upland police force. Yesterday a "mad-dog" alarm spread through Upland and police hurried to the scene. There was a dog, all right, he looked mad and he looked sick, and he looked as though he needed a friend. Before shooting, the police investigated. They discovered the dog wasn't mad, he had run into a bunch of bees and had been badly stung, and was suffering, and trying to get away from the pain. Instead of giving him a piece of lead, the police gave him a bit of attention and won the undying friendship of the dog.

LONG BEACH IN BUS FIGHT

Council in Wordy Battle Over Question of Public or Private Owned Transportation System

LONG BEACH, Sept. 27.—A decided split in the city administration resulted today in the Council chamber but after the smoke of battle had cleared away Long Beach faced the definite promise of a bus transportation system, that will meet, partially at least, the needs of a city of 145,000 people.

Municipal ownership of transportation lines was the rock on which the administration split, an open break between Mayor Oscar Hauge and City Manager H. S. Callahan occurring during a heated debate before a Council Chamber crowd with interested spectators and advocates of a new era in bus transportation here.

The Council meeting closed with the city committed to accept a formal offer of the Lang Transportation Company of Los Angeles, to operate an almost city-wide bus system for a 7-cent fare with new, modern equipment. Permits to operate the proposed system for a period of thirty months will be granted to the Lang company by the city as soon as formal application has been filed with the City Clerk, it was said.

Under its proposal, the Lang company will operate frequent schedules with new busses on eleven permit lines, to be established and in addition will operate three franchise lines which it has agreed to take over from the B and H Transportation Company. Because of franchise restrictions the Lang company will be required to operate these three lines on a 5-cent fare basis with free transfers to other lines. A transfer agreement will be worked out, also, it was said, between the Lang company and the West Side Transportation Company, operators of one small bus line on the west side of the city. A city-wide 7-cent fare on all other lines will prevail under the proposition of the Lang company which the Council officially sanctioned today.

Hints of a recall for city officials who sanctioned the Lang company's proffer were heard today among municipal-ownership advocates and it was not denied at the City Hall that the rift in the ranks of the new administration, in office only two and a half months, and failure of the straight eight to stand together on the municipal gas question, the transportation question and other matters to which they were committed by pre-election pledges, will probably bring a deluge of recall petitions within the next three months.

MERGER OF CHURCHES SUGGESTED

Ontario Pastor Receives Answers to Questionnaires Sent to Representative Business Men of His Community

ONTARIO, Sept. 27.—There are too many churches in Ontario, one would be ideal, but not possible; the Protestant churches are just about at a standstill, and division and diffusion are to blame for the situation.

This in brief is a resume of replies received to questionnaires sent out to seventeen representative Ontario business men by Rev. John Barron Toomay, pastor of Bethel Congregational Church.

Rev. Toomay asked four questions:

(1.) Do you think we have too many church organizations in Ontario?

(2.) About how many churches would be sufficient to adequately meet our needs?

(4.) On what facts do you base your answer to the third question?

Question No. 1 was answered that churches of similar creeds be merged into one. There are too many of the same creed and not one strongly self-supporting.

Number 2 was pretty well answered by No. 1. The Protestant churches are at a standstill, according to replies. The automobile received blame for this, along with the frantic effort to be entertained constantly.

A better preaching standard was offered as a solution to the problem of getting young folks back into the church.

On the other hand, the young folks of today were upheld by a Chaffey Union High School teacher, who said the youth of today is paying more attention to ideals and teachings than heretofore.

MANIAC HUNTED IN KILLING

San Diego Boy Whose Body Found on Mesa Believed Victim of Mentally Defective Man

SAN DIEGO, Sept. 27.—Belief that 13-year-old Nicholas Esparza was slain in a cave at Mission Valley, possibly by a maniac and his body after being dismembered taken to the Camp Kearney Mesa where the skeleton was found last Sunday, was expressed here today by officials.

The theory was evolved by Deputy Sheriff Oliver Sexson and Coroner Schuyler C. Kelly after investigation of the boy's death, and is based on stories told by the boy's playmates, on the condition of the skeleton and on bits of clothing found on the mesa.

Most of the bones recovered yesterday were found buried in the soil, possibly the work of prowling animals.

Nicholas left his home May 28 with some playmates among whom was his brother Paul. He had promised his mother not to go to Adobe Falls where the boys were in the habit of swimming, and remained in the canyons near the end of Fairmount street. He was last seen perhaps a half mile from his home.

Questioning of Pat has revealed that a man, apparently defective mentally, is a frequenter of Young's caves on the west slope of the canyon. According to the boy's story, this man on several occasions has attacked boys 10 to 12 years old.

Officers here lean toward the theory that Nicholas was lured into the caves and there murdered. The killer is believed to have taken the boy's body to the lonely spot eight miles distant where it was found months later.

BEE STING ALMOST FATAL

Quick Work by Physicians Saves Woman Struck on Nose by Enraged Wild Honeymaker

BAKERSFIELD, Sept. 27.—Death hovered with a swarm of wild bees, and a wild honey hunt in the Cuyama Valley, participated in by a group of West Side residents, nearly ended in tragedy, it was learned here today.

Stricken unconscious by the sting of a bee, only a desperate ride to medical aid in an automobile piloted by her husband, saved the life of a Mrs. Mills, innocent bystander in the honey hunt, physicians declare.

On the hunt were Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Upton, Mrs. J. A. Upton, R. J. Potts, all of Ford City, and Mrs. George Mons of Taft. Learning of a spot where a swarm of wild bees had cached its honey, the party drove into Cuyama early Sunday morning.

The bees were buzzing around a huge rock which a dynamite blast showed to be hollow, containing more than sixty pounds of wild honey. In the excitement of the find Mrs. Mills and her husband, who were camping near the scene, drew close. Enraged bees filled the air after the blast and one of the winged workers stung Mrs. Mills upon the nose. A few minutes later the woman fell to the ground unconscious. Picking his wife up, Mr. Mills placed her in their machine and there followed a mad drive to the Emergency Hospital in Maricopa. The bee's victim was in convulsions when the hospital was reached and only prompt medical attention saved her life, attendants said.

Physicians said the sting had pierced a small artery in the woman's nose, placing the poison in the blood stream which carried it to the brain. Delay would have meant certain death.

Kern Banker Has Narrow Escape

BAKERSFIELD, Sept. 27.—Dwight Clarke, manager of the Security Trust Company here, narrowly escaped death Sunday while returning to Bakersfield from Inyo county, where he had been arranging business affairs of the two Bank of Kern branches in that county.

Mr. Clarke was driving his sedan near Little Lake, along a narrow road scarcely wide enough for two machines to pass. There he met a big truck loaded with structural steel which overhung the truck body. The Bakersfield banker swung his car off the road to the right as far up the embankment as he dared without overturning it, but the clearance was not enough and a length of the structural steel ripped through the side of the sedan, narrowly missing Mr. Clarke's head. Mr. Clarke's son, who was riding in the rear seat of the sedan, jumped to the other side of the car and escaped being struck by the steel. The car was driven on to Bakersfield under its own power.

Five different kinds of $10 bills are in circulation in the United States.

Semifinals in Judging Tests at Fresno Fair

FRESNO, Sept. 27.—With twenty-three high schools represented semifinals in the State judging contest were opened today at the Fresno district fair with thirty-five teams participating. Teams of three boys each are entered by the various schools. The winners in various divisions will participate in final events later in the year. The animal husbandry division drew the largest entry list, with twenty-two teams entered. The following schools are competing: Bakersfield, Santa Rosa, Salinas, Lodi, Visalia, Turlock, Dos Palos, Hanford, Denair, Madera, Oakdale, Tulare, Modesto, and the following from Fresno county: Caruthers, Central Union, Fowler, Kingsburg, Reedley, Riverdale, Sanger, Selma, Tranquility and Washington Union.

WOMAN PIONEER OF SAN FERNANDO DIES

SAN FERNANDO, Sept. 27.—The death of Mrs. Anna Pico here Saturday removed one of the early pioneers of the San Fernando Valley who had watched the development of this section from the historic early days until the present. Mrs. Pico, who was 87 years of age, was a native of Pennsylvania. She came to California more than fifty years ago and has lived in San Fernando since that time. Her husband, Benjamin Pico, was a nephew of Gen. Andreas Pico and of Gov. Pico, whose names are linked with the early history of Southern California. Funeral services for Mrs. Pico were held at St. Ferdinand's Catholic Church at 9 a.m. Monday, conducted by Rev. Fr. Stemmus. Interment was in Oakwood Cemetery. Mrs. Pico is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Kate Prasier and Mrs. Mary Hendricks of San Fernando, and by one son, M. J. Pico of Los Angeles. Three grandchildren and one great-grandchild also survive her.

CAR'S FUNNY ACTION BRINGS COURT SUIT

SANTA ANA, Sept. 27.—When E. Thornboro, Santa Ana rancher, crouched down in front of his car to crank it, he was much surprised and hurt when the car suddenly bunted him over on his back in the gutter. His car had never acted that way before and Thornboro was at first mystified but this car was cleared of blame when he discovered that F. C. X. N. Hird had charged his car into the rear of Thornboro's machine. The mishap occurred on East Fourth street, Santa Ana. Today Thornboro had filed suit in Superior Court against Hird, asking $250 damages for his car, $5000 for his own personal damage, which included a broken forearm, $50 medical expenses and $300 for loss of time from business.

PIONEER PASSES

HUNTINGTON PARK, Sept. 27.—Saville J. Clark, 77 years of age, and one of the very early settlers in Huntington Park, passed away at her home in this city Saturday after an illness of several days. This city then was only a very small village. They continued to reside here all of their lives. Mr. Clark having passed away three years ago. Mrs. Clark was one of the best-known residents of Huntington Park.

OIL MAN FOUND DEAD

BAKERSFIELD, Sept. 27.—Becoming alarmed when he failed to appear after supposedly sleeping all night and the greater part of the day, employees of the Pyramid Oil Company at Maricopa went to the home of W. J. McFarland, 54 years of age, superintendent of the company, and found him dead in bed. The dead man was one of the most prominent oil men of Kern county and a pioneer in the industry, having been associated with the Pyramid Oil Company since 1909. A widow, Mrs. Ella McFarland, and son, William, Jr., survive.

Swing to Talk on History of Colorado River

SAN BERNARDINO, Sept. 27.—The story of the history and the future and the development of the Colorado River will be reviewed by Congressman Phil D. Swing at a banquet next Monday night under the auspices of the San Bernardino Chamber of Commerce. The dinner will begin at 6:30 o'clock and today 600 invitations were issued by R. H. Mack, secretary of the chamber.

Mr. Swing is a member of the House Reclamation Committee, which is preparing measures for the improvement of the Colorado River, the Mississippi River, the St. Lawrence River, Muscle Shoals and the Columbia River basin. When he was here on a short visit three weeks ago, Mr. Swing expressed the opinion that the projects should be grouped and should be developed under a huge $1,000,000,000 construction program. There is a growing sentiment in Congress that the United States will need all its resources to keep in the forefront of the nations, he explained. The Congressmen feel that a comprehensive construction program is the only way to develop the resources efficiently.

Note on Death Read in Court at Bakersfield

BAKERSFIELD, Sept. 27.—James C. McCabe, mountaineer, told a crowded courtroom today the contents of a note James Wingfield dictated to him after the slaying of Anton Marius on Greenhorn Mountain. Wingfield is being tried for the alleged murder of Marius before Judge R. B. Lambert. The note, which was entered in evidence without objection from defense attorneys, read as follows:

"Sheriff's office: I have killed Tony Marius, the moonshiner. Come at once to my house and you will find me unarmed and ready to give myself up to you. Bring about three officers with you, one a government prohibition officer. Come at once.

"JAMES WINGFIELD."

While Tony Marius sprawled in a pool of his own blood in front of the Wingfield cabin on Greenhorn, James McCabe sat at a table and at the dictation of Wingfield wrote the note.

After writing the letter McCabe, at the instructions of Wingfield, carried it to the rangers' station on Greenhorn, where its contents were telephoned to the Sheriff's office.

NUT HARVEST BEGINS IN THREE VALLEYS

VAN NUYS, Sept. 27.—Walnuts are rapidly ripening in the many groves in San Fernando, Tujunga and Simi valleys, and this week the first systematic gatherings of the crop have begun. The North Hollywood warehouse of the San Fernando Valley Growers' Association opened yesterday and is ready to receive the first harvestings. In this valley probably 450 tons of walnuts will be gathered, a larger crop than last year. There are also large crops in Tujunga and Simi valleys. Many new orchards in the valleys are coming into bearing for the first time, and it is stated that from now on crops will be larger each year, despite the passing of old groves for subdivision development. Within the next two or three years it is asserted there will be an additional 6000 acres more of walnuts growing in San Fernando Valley, at which time it will become one of the leading nut-growing districts in the State.

ALHAMBRA CITY BARTERS FARM

Bitter Controversy of Long Duration Ended

Profit from Tricity Tract Per Cent

Los Angeles Syndicate Said to be Purchaser

ALHAMBRA, Sept. 27.—After a bitter controversy which has raged for several months, the city commission today voted to sell a one-sixth interest in the municipal city farm in the southern part of Monterey Park. The sale of the 40 acre, submitted by the Hayter realty firm of Hayter & Bush, who is said to be representing a Los Angeles syndicate, was accepted after a session of the city officials.

Commissioner W. W. Smith has opposed the sale of the farm from the first and sponsored a recall petition. He is now the only member of the board against accepting the bid.

About a year ago the city of Alhambra, owner of 400 acres of land, sold its share for $1000 an acre. Alhambra had twice turned down bids for the farm after bids had been advertised.

South Pasadena, owner of the one-sixth interest, has not yet shown any inclination to sell its share.

It is rumored that the bid indicate that purchase of the interest was the necessary step for Alhambra's share, although Mayo refused to make a statement.

Today's meeting of the commission was attended by a crowd that overflowed the Council chamber, the past several weeks the matter has been the subject of general and animated discussion, the opposing forces lining up for a last battle.

Judge W. M. Rutan, one of the pioneers of the city, was active in voicing the sentiment of those opposed to selling the farm at this time, claiming that the city's revenue materially increases every few years and that no immediate need for the money exists.

Spokesmen for those favoring the farm sale declared that the property would be better improved, particularly with the extension of Atlantic boulevard.

Officials of Monterey Park, who were present at the meeting to urge that the city of Georgs W. C. Boden should not accept side organizations, declared themselves strongly in favor of accepting the bid.

The action of the commission in accepting the bid came as a surprise to many, as it was thought in view of the vote of public opinion, the matter would be settled by popular vote at the polls, as was suggested in the recall petition.

The tri-city farm was purchased by the three cities in 1913, the election was held on a bond issue of approximately $200 an acre.

The entertainment features, music, dancing and other attractions for young folks will be made for today noon, and a parade on Saturday.

TOWN MAY BE TELEGRAPH

NORTH HOLLYWOOD. New telegraph lines are being strung between here and Burbank, indicating that North Hollywood will soon to be given a telegraph office by the Western Union. Plans for such an office have been held up by the State Railroad Commission, which believed the company should first grant the request because of the number of telegraph business handled here the last six months. The Western Union has a regular office in Burbank and operates a branch here, but has not granted until now the request taken before the commission.

MOTOR SERVICE. HANFORD, Sept. 27.—Bus and motor service by the Santa Fe from Exeter via Hanford was started today.

HOPE FOR VALLEY SEWER

Randall Asserts There is Nothing Now to Prevent Building of Long-Sought Outfall

VAN NUYS, Sept. 26.—In a statement made here today by Charles H. Randall of this district, the San Fernando Valley outfall sewer line probably will be started within thirty days, the work to be done by the same crew, which under the supervision of H. A. Van Norman established a record in the construction of the Los Angeles outfall sewer.

Plans for the part of the sewer within the Burbank city limits are completed, and the right of way for the sewer through the Toluca Lake section in the old Lankershim area is being sought, with the hope now that the outfall line will be continued up the San Fernando Valley, as soon as the Burbank section is completed, Mr. Randall said.

Although plans for the line as far as Van Nuys are not ready, Mr. Randall said that with the support he has in the Council's Public Works Committee he will be able to recommend the pushing of the line to Van Nuys at an early date. If the work is not interrupted, he said, the outfall will be built to the western edge of the Van Nuys townsite within four or five months from the time the work in Burbank actually starts.

Funds to build the sewer are available out of a general sewer bond issue voted several years ago. Mr. Randall states it is hoped to hold up work in Burbank pending the sale of Burbank bonds, which will be sold, and that the Burbank work under force account will be assembled and ready.

The coming of the Metropolitan Water District aqueduct to the San Fernando Valley is much to influence the growth of the long-discussed sewer system in the valley. It has been more or less a bone of contention between the City Council and the County Sanitation District, the latter having stated that all of the sewage now gone and that to be built would impede all work that the district is to start at once.

All San Fernando Valley sewer projects, including the completion of the Burbank line, will be held up until no large amount of bonds for the districts can be issued, it is stated. Permanent locations for the disposal plants, time and cost are not stated.

ALHAMBRA CITY BARTERS FARM

Bitter Controversy of Long Duration Ended

Los Angeles Syndicate Said to be Purchaser

ALHAMBRA, Sept. 27.—Ending a bitter controversy which has lasted for several months, the city commission today voted to sell Alhambra's one-sixth interest in the 80-acre city farm in the southern part of Monterey Park. The offer of $1000 an acre, submitted by the land realty firm of Naylor & Mayo, said to be representing a Los Angeles syndicate, was accepted after a long session of the city officials today.

Commissioner W. W. Young, who has opposed the sale of the property from the first and against which recall petition is pending, is the only member of the board to vote against accepting the bid.

About a year ago the city of Alhambra, owner of 400 acres of land, sold its share for $1010 an acre. Alhambra had twice turned down offers for the farm after bids had been advertised.

South Pasadena, owner of the other one-sixth interest, has yet to be shown any inclination to sell its part in it.

It is rumored that the syndicate that purchased Pasadena's forest reserve two years ago will buy Alhambra's share, although Naylor & Mayo refused to confirm the statement.

Today's meeting of the commission was attended by a crowd that overflowed the Council room. For the past several weeks the matter has been the subject of general and animated discussion, the opposing forces lining up for a last battle.

Judge W. M. Northrup, one of the pioneers of the city, was the leader in voting for the sale. Those opposed to selling the farm at this time, claiming that the land will increase materially in value in the next few years and that there is no immediate need for the money.

Spokesmen for the opposition to the sale declared that the farm property would be to hinder the development, particularly with reference to the extension of Atlantic avenue and other field avenues.

Officials of Monterey Park were present at the meeting to urge the sale. George W. Cook, leader of the recent side organization, got behind the city farm in favor of accepting the offer.

The action of the commission in accepting the bid came somewhat as a surprise to many, as it was thought in view of the city election opinion, the matter would be settled by popular vote at the polls, as was suggested in petitions.

The tri-city farm was purchased by the three cities in 1918 and the election was held. The land is approximately $2300 an acre.

REFINED waitress with tea room experience. 228 N. MARIPOSA.

ADVICE OF DEBT A HUNDRED YEARS AGO

There are too many persons who contract debts, without perceiving any means of payment to be in their power. Those who transgress in this manner, feel satisfied if they do not feel themselves unable to pay. Were they strictly honest, however, they would take effectual care to see whether they were able or not. Often by overrating their property, their efforts or the markets they feel a loose conviction that they shall possess this power; but they take no pains to render the fact certain; or even probable. We are bound before we become willing to receive our neighbor's property, to know that we have means clearly probable of paying him; otherwise we wantonly subject him to the loss of it, and differ very little, as moral beings, from thieves and robbers.

Another transgression of the same nature is, neglecting to pay our debts at the time they become due. There are many persons whose general character as Christmas is fair, who yet in this respect, are extremely deserving of censure. They contract debts, which they engage to discharge within a given time. This time is, therefore, a part of the contract, a ground on which the bargain is made, a condition on which the price was calculated. This obvious truth is understood by all men; and makes part of the language of every bargain in which credit is given. To the expectation formed by the creditor of receiving his debt at the time specified, the debtor has voluntarily given birth. It is an expectation, therefore, which he is bound to fulfill. If he does not take every lawful measure in his power to fulfill it, or if he does not fulfill it when it is in his power, he is guilty of fraud; of depriving his neighbor, not perhaps by design, but by a guilty negligence, of a part of his property.—[Manufacturers' and Farmers' Journal, 1827.

WILSON SHOWS DRY ERA GAINS

Methodist Leader Speaks to Brotherhood

Mellon Declared to Help in Battling Traffic

"Fight Has Just Begun," He Tells Audience

Prohibition in the United States has not failed and is not losing ground, Dr. Clarence True Wilson, head of the Methodist Temperance Board in Washington, D. C., declared at the annual meeting of the Men's Brotherhood of the First Methodist Church last night.

"For the first time since the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment the enforcement of the Volstead Act has been taken out of the hands of politicians and placed in the hands of experts who are dry advocates," Dr. Wilson told his hearers.

He said that while in the past he has been one of Secretary Mellon's most ardent critics he now is forced to admit that with his hands untied and free to act, the Secretary has appointed men to office who are both efficient and honest in their desire to enforce the law.

PROGRESS MADE

He declared that the men in the Senate and House of Representatives are also overwhelmingly dry.

Dr. Wilson admitted that there is bootlegging being done; that there are a lot of people still drinking bootleg liquor, but said that he and every far-sighted dry leader had anticipated that when the Eighteenth Amendment was adopted.

"But we have accomplished what we set out to do," said the dry leader, "we have outlawed the liquor traffic in the United States. We are now fighting the liquor traffic with the law on our side; in the years gone by we had to fight it without the support of the law. We have also taken Uncle Sam out of the liquor traffic. He is no longer selling his soul and the soul of his men, women and children, for the sake of the revenue to be derived from the manufacture of liquor."

He predicted that as the dry States eventually bring prohibition to the Union so will a dry United States in time be the means of making prohibition world-wide.

BEGINNING OF FIGHT

He pointed out that while in England, since 1914, the consumption of liquor had doubled, the people of this country, since prohibition became effective, have cut 62,500,000,000 from their annual liquor bill. He attributed a large measure of the post-war prosperity in this country to the fact that the money that formerly went for liquor now is going for the purchase of homes, automobiles and conveniences in the home that the average men could not afford prior to the passage of the Volstead Act.

Liquor and liquor manufacturers no longer dominate politics as in the past, declared Dr. Wilson. He called on his hearers to wage an unending war at the polls on the wet advocates.

"The adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment is not the end of the prohibition fight, but only the beginning," said the temperance leader.

WIDENING OF WILSHIRE TO BE REVIVED

Defeated Ordinance for Improvement Expected to Be Again Considered

The ordinance authorizing the widening of Wilshire Boulevard, formerly Orange street, from Alvarado street to Figueroa street, is to be recalled before the City Council for action, if the report of the Council's Street Opening and Widening Committee adopted yesterday, is approved by the Council. The ordinance was defeated by the Council soon after the members took office last July.

The committee decided yesterday to recommend that the ordinance be reconsidered, but that action be delayed for one week in order to give the proponents of the widening an opportunity to file a $3000 bond to protect the city for preliminary expenses in case the street widening is protested out.

This delay also will give Councilman Hall an opportunity to be present when the ordinance is called before the Council, as the Councilman, who is opposed to the widening ordinance until the question of the bridge across Westlake Park is settled, is now in Denver attending the Colorado River development conference.

School Rolls Swelled 35,000 in Two Weeks

Enrollment in the schools of Los Angeles has increased approximately 35,000 since the opening day, September 12, according to figures compiled by C. H. Tritt, chief clerk. The total enrollment last Friday was 236,286, an increase of 34,741 over the enrollment in the same period last year.

The figures include all pupils enrolled in the Los Angeles public schools, including kindergartens and evening high schools.

The enrollment is expected to increase for at least another month, Mr. Tritt said last night, as is usual when eastern people begin to arrive in Los Angeles to spend the winter.

Subpoena Issued for Fight Films

Subpoenas were served yesterday upon the management of Bard's Theater by Deputy United States Marshal Mangerina, compelling the management to deliver to Federal officials today the prints of the Dempsey-Tunney fight at Soldier Field, Chicago.

It was reported that the Federal grand jury here will immediately begin an investigation of how the films were transported from Chicago to Los Angeles, such transportation being in violation of the interstate commerce law.

JEWRY OF CITY MARKS NEW YEAR

Rosh Hashang, Holy Day of Israel, Observed With Traditional Ceremony

With rituals and ceremonies reminiscent of those conducted by their forefathers in the Holy Land, thousands of years ago, Jews of the city yesterday observed Rosh Hashana, the Jewish New Year, in the various temples and synagogues of Los Angeles.

The day marked the beginning of the year 5688 in the Hebrew calendar. Orthodox Jews will continue the observances through today, but the reformed Jews ended the services last night.

The holiday period, which actually began Monday night, will come to a climax with the celebration of Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, on the night of October 5 and through October 6. Rosh Hashana and Yom Kippur are the two holiest days of the Jewish year.

Yom Kuppur is devoted to fasting and prayer and spiritual introspection. On this day the travails of the Hebrew race are recited and worshipers dedicate themselves anew to spiritual life.

In the orthodox synagogues the services yesterday were conducted in Hebrew, but in the reformed temples the ritual was chiefly in English.

Services also were conducted yesterday at B'nai B'rith Hall under the auspices of the Jewish National Fund Committee, organized to extend financial assistance to Jews who have returned to their homeland in Palestine.

FUNERAL OF PLAINSMAN CONDUCTED

Mass at Plaza Church for A. P. Flanagan, Comrade of Buffalo Bill

Funeral services for A. P. Flanagan, 80 years of age, plainsman and comrade of Buffalo Bill, who died Sunday at the County Hospital, were conducted yesterday at the Plaza Church with a requiem mass. He was buried in Calvary Cemetery.

As a member of the commissary department of the United States Army when the Union Pacific Railroad was being built across the plains, Mr. Flanagan took part in many frontier skirmishes and was a close friend of the picturesque figures among the American pioneers. He won the friendship of the indians in Montana when he appealed in their behalf to Gen. Nelson A. Miles that they might be allowed to retain their land.

Born in New Orleans, Mr. Flanagan went first to Iowa and later to the plains of Western Kansas and the Southwest. He was a resident of Los Angeles for about sixteen years.

South American Proposes Films of Latin Motif

Believing that film stories based on historical and fictional South American data would prove popular in the Latin-American countries, Carlos Francisco Borcosque, Santiago, Chile, has arrived in Los Angeles and proposes spending a year in close contact with the film industry.

CARLOS FRANCISCO BORCOSQUE

At the present time, according to Senor Borcosque, there are a number of films produced dealing with the topics that are uppermost in his mind, but, in a large number of instances, they lack conformity to detail that makes them appear ridiculous to the initiated in South America.

Senor Borcosque states that Chile and other South American countries are rich in material, both historical and fictional, for film offerings.

The visitor presents credentials from William Miller Collier, Ambassador of the United States to Chile. He has obtained an apartment at 3218 Sunset Boulevard.

Senator Cole's Son Improving

Seward Cole, a son of the late Senator Cornelius Cole, is showing daily improvement from an illness which has kept him confined to his home for the past two months, it was said yesterday at his residence, 1156 El Centro street.

While Mr. Cole's condition caused grave anxiety for a time, his doctor now states that he is very well satisfied with the progress being made and that he expects complete recovery very soon. The patient is allowed to be up for a few hours each day and has been allowed several short motor trips. A trained nurse has been in constant attendance during his illness.

NAME OF CLARK HEIR INCORRECTLY PRINTED

By an error in the account of the filing of the will of the late J. Ross Clark published in The Times yesterday it was reported that "Paul J. Russell, a grandson" was one of the beneficiaries of the residuary trust estate. This is incorrect. The name of the grandson, as set forth in the will, is "J. Ross Clark, II." The decedent had no grandson by the other name.

Film Player Brought Back From Airplane Mishap

She's Through With Trips by Air

MARION MACK ILL AT HOME

Actress Under Nurse's Care After Return from Near Death in Desert Plane Landing

Snatched from the valley of the shadow of death on the desert, Marion Mack, screen actress, is resting in her home at 2053 Lloyd Lane, under orders of her physician and with a trained nurse in attendance. She was brought back to Los Angeles yesterday morning by automobile from Yermo. According to the nurse, Miss Mack sleeps fitfully, frequently awakening in fear obsessed with the idea that she still is in the Ryan monoplane and about to crash.

With Frank Tomick as a pilot, Miss Mack left Clover Field on the 21st inst. in the plane Spirit of Hollywood bound for Chicago with goodwill messages from the film colony to Jack Dempsey in the recent Tunney-Dempsey battle. Within a few hours the plane was forced down by engine trouble and in making a landing at a point near Death Valley a tire blew out.

Equipped with two sandwiches and two canteens of water the pilot and passenger became considerably alarmed, especially when repeated efforts to start the stalled motor failed. They traveled away from the plane, according to Miss Mack, in a westerly direction, but discovered no signs of life or roads. They retraced their steps and then worked east, locating a road some five miles away. Here they affixed to a sagebrush a message, giving their location and plight. Each day thereafter they journeyed to the spot only to find the message still there.

After repeated efforts Tomick got the motor working. But meantime their water supply had become exhausted and through the use of handkerchiefs and sand they made a pretense of straining the water from the motor radiator which although far from palatable, was thirst quenching.

TIRE TIED ON

With the motor repaired the question of taking off arose. The exploded tire was made secure to the wheel with rope, belts, the canteen covering and some of the garments of the marooned flyers. With this makeshift gear the plane was forced into the air Monday morning and enabled the two to land at a point three miles from Yermo, with both in an exhausted condition.

At Yermo the voyagers learned the road upon which they had depended is infrequently traveled and that it is the one on which a year or more ago a prominent Long Beach man was lost in his automobile and was not discovered for forty-two days.

E. D. King of Yermo who, together with J. L. Kirkland, declared they were the first persons to reach the disabled plane, stated that Miss Mack was in a badly exhausted condition when he reached them and that she collapsed in his automobile as she was helped into it.

PLANE IN DISTRESS

The plane was circling in the vicinity of Yermo, said Mr. King, and appeared to be in distress. Knowing that there was a monoplane missing, King and Kirkland said they followed its course and reached the dry lake in which it alighted, finding Miss Mack lying on the ground in the shade of the plane and Pilot Tomick leaning against his vehicle.

Both showed the results of their experience, according to King, and both were limping badly, while their clothing was torn from wandering through the bush.

King came to Los Angeles yesterday in a rescue plane that was sent out to Yermo. Pilot Tomick drove the rescue plane back, the Spirit of Hollywood having been brought back to Los Angeles Monday evening.

Miss Mack said that neither she nor the pilot slept to any appreciable extent. They lived in constant fear of rattlesnakes and coyotes, the latter approaching within a few feet of the stalled plane. Added to this was a terrific wind that, at times, threatened to carry away the plane, both of the wrecked crew being compelled to hold on to it for hours at a time.

FEET BLISTERED

So far as Pilot Tomick is able to estimate, the plane came down at a point about eighty miles northeast of Barstow, on an airline between that place and Salt Lake City. Both Miss Mack and the pilot suffered from the intense heat of the day and the cold at nights. From wandering over the desert, especially on inspection tours of their relief sign, their feet were badly blistered.

The four carrier pigeons, which it had been planned to release at given points along the route to Chicago, were released when the plane came down. Attached to each pigeon was a message giving their approximate location and asking for a new wheel.

Mrs. Nelson B. Jones and Mrs. Ellis B. Tienan of Tujunga, arriving home yesterday from a motor trip into Death Valley, announced the discovery of a note signed by Miss Mack and Tomick late Monday on a stone marker on Drinkwater Dry Lake, five miles from Cave Springs.

ONE PIGEON FOUND

The note read: "Help! Airplane down five miles from here. Follow road. Out of water and ill. Marion Mack and Paul Tomick."

One of the carrier pigeons was found exhausted on the hot sands of the desert by Adrian Eggert of Cave Springs, Mrs. Jones said, and the bird is still there. This is the only pigeon reported found out of the four released.

Miss Mack said most emphatically yesterday that she is through with airplane trips. Her husband, Louis Lewyn, added that her decision made it unanimous.

ALLOCATION OF CHEST'S FUNDS MADE

Task Nearly Completed as Date Nears for Start of $2,750,000 Appeal

Allocation of funds for the coming year to the 150 relief and welfare institutions maintained financially by the Los Angeles Community Chest virtually has been completed, it was stated yesterday by W. L. Brent, chairman of the Chest's budget committee. Announcement of the allotments will be made within a few days.

An average cut of 15 per cent had been made in the minimum budgets submitted by the agencies, Brent said. In a number of cases the cuts reached as high as 40 per cent. This had been necessary in order to apportion the funds within the limits of the bare subsistence budget of $2,750,000 set for the fourth annual Chest appeal, starting on October 31.

Urgency of an honor goal being reached beyond the minimum $2,750,000 budget was pointed out by Brent. While the 150 agencies will be able to continue with that amount, he said, highly desirable activities for community betterment will be curtailed if a larger sum is not raised.

HIGH FEE ON MEAT SHOPS DEFEATED

After Hour Inspection Charges on Reasonable Basis Given Approval

The City Council's Health and Sanitation Committee yesterday afternoon declined to recommend a high prohibitive inspection fee for meat markets during evenings, Sundays and holidays. The committee's action was applauded by a large audience of meat market owners who declared the public desired the additional service.

W. J. Dalton in opposing the high inspection fee for extra-hour service of meat markets, declared the labor unions and the large chain stores were behind the high-fee movement and that to adopt the plan would drive scores of small meat markets, who depend on after-hour trade, out of business.

Councilman Webster of the committee said he was opposed to any excessive fee that would have the effect of closing meat markets but said that a reasonable inspection fee should be charged in order to secure the public fresh meats, and this statement met the approval of Chairman Foster and Councilman Colden, the other members of the committee, as well as the meat dealers present.

The Retail Meat Dealers' Association, which proposed a city inspection fee of $1 an hour for each hour the meat stores kept open evenings, Sundays and holidays, was represented by Attorney Walter J. Little.

LOS ANGELES DESCRIBED AS OPINION HUB

Jewish Telegraph Agency Head Says Cinema Making It Molder of Feeling

Los Angeles, through the motion-picture industry, fast is becoming the center of American public opinion, according to Jacob Landau, president of the Jewish Telegraph Agency and editor of the Jewish Daily Bulletin of New York, the only Jewish newspaper published in English. Mr. Landau is making his first visit to the West and is inspecting his agencies on the Pacific Coast. Motion pictures, he believes, are a more important molder of public opinion than books, newspapers or the radio because they are more widespread, reaching not only the United States, but also every foreign nation.

Several recent film productions, according to Mr. Landau, have been carelessly made, in that they have aroused religious or racial ill-feeling. Producers should be more careful about the possible effect of their films than they are at present, he declares. He predicts that within a short time the motion-picture industry will have technical advisers who will be able to tell the effect of any production on the public.

The Jewish Telegraph Agency, of which Mr. Landau is head, is a world-wide organization devoted exclusively to obtaining and distributing Jewish news. It has 140 correspondents in all parts of the world. Mr. Landau has just returned from a trip to Europe and the Near East, where he inspected his news agencies.

PAVING ACT ADOPTED

The City Council has adopted the ordinance of intention for the paving of Sepulveda Boulevard from Ohio street to Pico Boulevard.

COTTON MEN IN UNIQUE BATTLE

Valley Growers in War on Seed-Price Rise

Fight Based on Effort to Save Association

Brokers Declared Back of Plan of Disruption

A cotton seed price war with an entirely new twist has developed in the San Joaquin Valley, it was disclosed yesterday by C. H. Rudel, president of the Pacific Cotton Seed Products Corporation, who is in the city for a few days on business.

Unlike other price wars, Rudel says, Mr. Bancini and the other of the present clash has been to raise quotations on cottonseed, but only a majority of the cotton growers refusing higher prices to enable them their recently formed co-operative marketing association from disintegrating.

Two groups are aligned against each other in the present struggle, Mr. Bancini, who is one of the largest cottonseed manufacturers on the Pacific Coast, stated. On one side is the San Joaquin Cotton Growers' Association, formed last January to stabilize the price of cotton seed and to enable the cotton growers in the valley to obtain better terms as well as to insure for crops more efficiently.

AS TO OTHER GROUP

The other group, it appears, is made up of but a few growers, numbering one small seed manufacturer. At the time the association was formed, it was learned, Mr. Bancini agreed to extend aid to the growers in the valley and organized the California Cotton Seed Corporation for this purpose. Recently, he received a contract from the association under the terms of which he was to receive the cotton seed grown by the members on the old three-to-one basis—that is, for every price of crude oil at Bakersfield was 6 cents a pound the growers in the valley would receive 60 cents for their cottonseed. This price, fixing cottonseed prices has been in vogue for years and the growers sold their seed on this basis, Mr. Bancini's corporation in 1926.

Formation of the association, however, served to stabilize and raise the price of cotton in the valley as a result, a number of cotton companies operating independently to the valley were hard hit. According to officials of the Cotton Growers' Association, the price war on cottonseed was the result, with the object of effective the destruction of the association so that the high-handed conditions prevailing before would be reestablished to the advantage of the brokers.

RESOLUTION ADOPTED

A resolution urging the [illegible] members of the association to live up to their contracts and deliver their cottonseed to Mr. Bancini's corporation at the price agreed upon was unanimously adopted by the directors of the association at a meeting yesterday.

The resolution declares that the three-to-one basis is governed by the world market and represents the most equitable price for cottonseed to the valley. It points out further that the three-to-one basis was agreed upon last year by both growers and cotton operators as fair and just and resulted as a result of this agreement in several hundred cotton loans being made to members by the corporation.

Higher prices now offered for cottonseed, the resolution declares, "are clearly intended as a direct and long action against the plan by which depends for its success in large measure "upon the element of good faith by our members in their contractual relations."

The board, in the resolution on record as resenting the [illegible] cottonseed prices and warning growers not to sell except as previously agreed on.
